A HARD STRUGGLE.

Many an Emporium Citizen Finds the Struggle Hard.

With a back constantly aching, With distressing urinary disorders, Daily existence is but a struggle.

No need to keep it up.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.

Emporium people endorse this claim:

John Montgomery, living on West Sixth St., Emporium, Pa., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a safe and reliable remedy for backaches and kidney disorders. I suffered with lame back and sharp shooting pains through my loins at times that I was unable to straighten up. Every move I made would cause pains to shoot through me. My kidneys were very weak and the secretions irregular causing me much annoyance and forcing me to arise many times during the night. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from L. Taggart, the druggist, and since using this remedy I have been completely cured of all the annoying symptoms of kidney trouble. I am able to sleep soundly all night and do not have any more trouble with my back. I heartily endorse Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.

The Vice-Presidential Office.

The office of Vice-President has proved to be the least satisfactory of the creations of the convention of 1787.

Mr. Bryan appreciates this fact and he has a plan to improve it. He proposes that the Vice-President shall be a member of the President's Cabinet ex-officio, that the President may have the benefit of his wisdom and advice and he himself be in training for the succession in the event that the office shall devolve upon him.

The President's constitutional advisers, whose opinions he is entitled to ask for and receive, are the heads of the Executive departments of the Government. They are men of his own choosing. If association with them and counseling with them are disagreeable to the President he may remove them and appoint others who are more congenial to him. The Vice-President owes his nomination frequently to a desire to placate some disappointed faction of the party. He is not always in perfect accord with the President. Sometimes he is quite antagonistic. To project him into the Cabinet, to compel the President to accept as a confidential adviser one in whom he feels no confidence, would certainly not improve our present scheme of government. It is better that the President should choose his own advisers, as the Constitution provides, rather than thrust into his councils one who is not his choice and whose judgment and opinions he may not respect.

Unless the Constitution is changed the Vice-President would have to continue presiding officer of the Senate even though he is made a Cabinet officer. As he would be the head of a department his place in the Cabinet would amount only to so much as the President chose to make of it. No man of Presidential capabilities would be content to occupy such an ineffective, passive and anomalous position. As presiding officer of the Senate the Vice-President has certain well-defined duties and though John Adams found them insignificant, as they are imposed by the Constitution it may be doubtful whether Congress can add other functions to them without amending the Constitution.

If we went into the business of amending the Constitution to make the office of Vice-President more satisfactory, the question will arise whether the best disposition would not be to abolish it altogether. Frequently in our history we have been without a Vice-President, owing to the death of either the President or Vice-President, and we have got along very well. Most of the States copying the Federal Constitution have given themselves besides a Governor a Lieutenant Governor, but a number of States, New Jersey, Maryland and New Hampshire among them, have denied themselves the luxury of a Lieut. Governor, have saved the salary of that unnecessary official for 120 years and have suffered no inconvenience whatever.

Provision is made in these States for the gubernatorial succession in case of an unexpected vacancy. Generally the Secretary of State conducts the office temporarily until the Legislature can convene and elect a Governor for the unexpired term. Should the President of the United States die or become disqualified when there is no Vice-President, under our present succession law the Secretary of State becomes acting President. He is the President's choice and usually is a leading man in the party which elected the President. His succession would involve much less change than if a Vice-President not in sympathy with the late administration were inducted into office. If this is a good rule of succession part of the time, why is it not a good rule all of the time?

Between 1865 and 1905 three Presidents, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, and three Vice-Presidents, Wilson, Hendricks and Hobert, died in office. These deaths left the country without a Vice-President in office for terms aggregating twenty years in a period of forty. If we can spare the Vice-President half the time in a single generation it is not too much to assume that we could without sensible loss do without this office altogether.—Philadelphia Press.
