A Bold Brazen Attempt to Influence the Votes of Organized Workmen.

From the Knights of Labor Journal.

For several years past we have heard much about "injunctions in labor disputes." Thinking men have had the question under discussion for a long time. Congress and the State legislatures have been considering it until now it has become one of the leading questions of the day, and of so much importance that the various political conventions have expressed platform opinions as to how an adjustment to meet present conditions can be effected.

Workingmen, both native and naturalized, agree with the generalities set forth by the two great political parties regarding the courts. They "will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts" as our Republican friends put it, and believe that "the courts of justice are the bulwarks of our liberties, and we yield to none in our purpose to maintain their dignity," as our Democratic friends say. It appears, however, the all-important question that "a notice shall issue before injunctions in labor disputes are granted" was not worthy of a place on either platform. The Republicans have inserted it in their platform with a string attachment however, which most effectually kills all "notices." They say: "No injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay," thus providing for an ex parte and star chamber proceeding to ascertain whether such "irreparable injury would result from delay" or not. The Democratic party goes the Republicans one better by ignoring this question altogether, after which criminal omission, Mr. Gompers and several of his associate officers have, according to press reports from Denver and Fairview, pledged to it, the organized labor vote of the country in the coming contest.

It will be interesting to know just how much authority Mr. Gompers has, and how many votes he can carry around, to avoid a harsher term, for trading purposes. The Constitution and laws of the American Federation of Labor, provide, among other sections that: "Party politics, whether they be Democratic, Republican, Socialist, Populist, or any other, shall have no place in the conventions of the American Federation of Labor."

This settles most effectually the question of party politics so far as the Federation of Labor is concerned and denies to Mr. Gompers the right to carry any vote around in his vest pocket to dispose of for a consideration be that consideration party promises or otherwise. If this section was not sufficient to remind him that the laws of the organization over which he presides as President, prohibit such autocratic action as he is credited with assuming as well as denying to him the right to trade on any man's vote, the report of the Committee on the President's report and resolution, urging political action on the part of the American Federation of Labor at the Annapolis convention clinches the question.

It says in part: "We, therefore, non-concur in the proposition that this convention shall endorse any political party or any plan for the formation of a political party."

"The attempt to delegate any authority by this convention to form political organizations on any specific lines, would to that extent identify the Federation of Labor with a party movement and inevitably vitiate one of the most fundamental principles of trade unionism." "We are not a political party. We disclaim political party jurisdiction. We set up no claim of authority over the political acts of our membership." "If we are to create new tests of regularity in unionism we must first obtain new power from the affiliated bodies which make up the Federation." "We therefore recommend to trade unionists everywhere the duty of independent voting and the formation of such organizations outside the trade union as in the judgment of the membership in each locality may be deemed most effectual." (Pages 184-185 Report of the Proceedings of the 26th Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor.) On motion of Delegate Ryan the report of the Committee was concurred in (Page 204).

In view of these most emphatic declarations against the endorsement or formation of political parties, it was the height of impudence for Mr. Gompers to suggest that the organized labor vote of that organization be cast for any political party or any particular candidate. The organization over which he presides is composed of members connected with all political parties. To coerce them into supporting one party as against all others, when the injunction plank on which this demand for support is based, is "a flimsy, tricky evasion of the issue," and is an unwarranted assumption of authority. It means nothing to labor since it is silent on the vital point so necessary for remedying this evil. The point that a notice shall issue before an injunction in labor disputes shall be granted. When he "calls," as he does officially, "upon the workers of our common country to stand faithfully by our friends (the Democrats)," he is at once repudiated by many leading officers of the various trade unions whose members are a part of the Federation. Mr. Lewis, who succeeded John Mitchell as head of the Miner's Union was not long in calling Mr. Gompers to an account for daring to assume such a position. Since the Lewis repudiation the news wires have been hot with other denunciations for his attempt to barter the votes of his membership and particularly since the consideration means nothing—absolutely nothing to labor.

Mr. Gompers knows, or ought to know that injunction legislation may come if it comes at all, through the Congress. The President, no matter who may fill that high office, will have to plead with Congress for legislative consideration for this and other matters that may be a part of his platform or letter of acceptance. The example of President Roosevelt in "licking" the Gilbert Bill, "into shape," and urging upon Congress its immediate consideration, is not more than a year old. This bill provided that a notice shall issue before an injunction shall be granted, but with all his power, re-inforced as he was with the big stick, he was unable even to secure a favorable report on it from the Judiciary Committee of the House to whom it was referred. Mr. Gompers knew when importuning the Republican Committee at Chicago, for his injunction plank, which, if enacted into law, would not stand the test of the upper court, that both Democratic and Republican members of Congress were opposed to it in the form presented, and that if submitted to them for consideration, it would not secure their endorsement hence could not be passed or become a law, yet in the face of these facts, he carried out his farcical program in order to have no excuse for supporting the opposition ticket.

This anti-injunction campaign inaugurated by our so-called labor leader was a criminal proceeding from the very beginning. Was he honest in his desire for an anti-injunction law, he would have assisted the President to have passed the Gilbert Bill, which meets all requirements in the adjustment of labor disputes, while upholding "the authority and integrity of the courts" and maintaining their dignity. The Gilbert Bill provided:

"That in cases involving or growing out of labor disputes neither an injunction nor a temporary restraining order shall be granted except upon due notice to the opposite party by the court in term, or by a judge thereof in vacation, after hearing, which may be ex parte, if the adverse party does not appear at the time and place ordered: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be held to authorize the issuing of a restraining order or an injunction in any case in which the same is not authorized by existing law."

In view of these facts the almost universal repudiation of the position, unwarranted and unauthorized as it was of Mr. Gompers, by the leading officers of the Federation's allied organizations, is not in the least surprising. He had no such authority conferred upon him and his call for the workers to support his approved ticket, will fail for the reason that the American voter seldom, if ever, follows an unwise or erratic leader.

My kidneys were very weak and I was obliged to rise many times during the night. I suffered with a dull nagging backache splitting headaches. Pains would dart through the small of my back and at times my feet and hands would tingle, so that I was in constant misery. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I decided to try them. I obtained great benefit from the use of this remedy, for they regulated the kidneys and drove out the pains and aches in my back and head. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."
