Whistler as a Letter Writer.

Early Mr. Whistler as a letter writer became a personage to be reckoned with. His pen was very frequently dipped in gall, but it is a joy to read him, with his very delightful personal style. No one ever wrote quite like him. Hamerton, with whom he had many passes, always to the critic's great discomfiture, once, in reviewing his "Symphony in White," stupidly called attention to the fact that there were many other tints in the picture besides white. There was, he maintained, the reddish hair of the woman, for instance; her flesh color, a bit of blue ribbon, and so on. Whistler responded: "Bon Dieu, did this wise person expect white hair and chalked faces? And does he then, in his astounding consequence, believe that a symphony in F contains no other note, but shall be a continued repetition of F F F F? * * * Fool." And, of course, the world is familiar with Whistler's studied insolence in his reply to a communication in the New York Tribune by Hamerton, who complained that Whistler refused to answer his letters. Whistler referred to the writer as "a Mr. Hamerton," which made Hamerton perfectly furious and so served Whistler's ends.—Arthur Hoeber in Forum.

Ancient Skates.

The English chronicler has recorded that the youth of London in the twelfth century understood the art of flying over the ice like birds in the air, but the origin of skating is far more ancient. An Icelandic saga relates how the Norwegian hero Frithjof not only traced verses upon the polished mirror, but also cut the dear name of Ingeborg. Skates have been discovered near Spandau, in Germany, which those competent to express an opinion attribute to a period of 3,000 years ago. These skates were made from bones of horses, figured and perforated to attach to the sandal. Similar skates have been found at Moorfields, in Finsbury, and like discoveries have been made in Berlin in the bed of the Spree. These and similar discoveries, we learn, enable the authorities to conclude that the European ice area in prehistoric times extended from Great Britain to Finland and from Norway to Hungary.—London Globe.

A Horse's Toe Nails.

Few persons realize that a horse's hoof is really the same thing as the toe nails of human beings or of animals having toes. The horn of a hoof grows just as a toe nail does. The hoof grows more rapidly in unshod horses than in those wearing shoes, and it grows faster in horses which are well groomed and well fed. But on an average the horn grows about a third of an inch a month. Hind hoofs grow faster than fore hoofs. The toe of the hoof being the longest part, it takes longer for the horn to grow down there than at the heel. For instance, the toe will grow entirely down in from eleven to thirteen months, while the heel will grow down in from three to five months. As the new horn grows out any cracks or defects in the old gradually work down to where they can be cut off, just as with human finger nails you can watch the progress of a bruise from the root to the tip.—London Answers.

Pretty Absentminded.

A book about George Canning and his friends contains among its anecdotes two which deal with Hookham Frere and the absentmindedness for which he was noted. Frere married Lady Errol, and "while they were engaged he took her into supper at a ball. While they were talking he drank up the glass of wine he had poured out for her and then took her back supperless to the ballroom. After the wedding he went straight from the church to Mr. Murray, the publisher, who asked him to stay to dinner, to which he very nearly agreed, remembering only just in time that Lady Errol was waiting to start on the honeymoon."

Scotch Profits.

"We have decided," said the head of a Glasgow firm, "to conduct our business in future on the profit sharing principle. We shall begin at once on the basis of last year's results."
"We are delighted to hear it," replied the foreman, speaking for the men. "May we ask what were the last year's results?"
"We lost a thousand pounds," said the employer, "and, therefore, on the profit sharing principle, there will be a reduction of 10 per cent in your wages."—Dundee Advertiser.

Stood Up For Him.

Dolan—So Casey was runnin' me down an' ye stood up for me? Callahan—O! did. O! siz to him, "Casey," siz O!, "ye're honest an' truthful an' ye're no coward, an' ye work hard an' pay yer dibts, an' ye don't get drunk an' lick yer wolfe, but in other respects ye're no better than Dolan!"—Puck.

Her Hands Full.

"Poor woman; she has scarcely time to eat and sleep."
"Nonsense! Why, she is rich and has no duties whatever."
"But she tells me she reads all the latest novels."—Cleveland Leader.

A chimney burning out in the East End, caused a fire alarm to be sent in on Wednesday afternoon. The fire was stopped before the hose companies had time to get out.

Greatly Encouraged.

Mr. R. Kuehne reports to the Mercantile Appraiser the largest increase in business over 1908 and tells THE PRESS that he is very well pleased and ready to boost Emporium as far as it may be in his power. Mr. K. is popular with our business firms, as well as the trading public, and don't knock. He does not allow dust to gather on his goods and simply pushes on the market. Read his new ad this week and every week in the PRESS.

Sorely Afflicted.
