HELPED THE CABMAN.

But Not Because He Had Driven Him Years Before.

A very old man once called to see Lord Stratheona at his offices and explained as the reason of his visit that he was the cabman who drove him to his ship when he set sail for Canada long years before.

Lord Stratheona was interested in this reminiscence of his youth and listened to the ancient jehu when he went on in a tearful voice to complain that death had just deprived him of one of two grandsons and that he himself had fallen on evil times.

Lord Stratheona soothed the old fellow's sorrows with a little money.

Again, after a time, the old man called on Lord Stratheona and this time told him that both his grandsons were down with typhoid fever and, as Lord Stratheona had helped him before, perhaps he would again. After some gossiping chat about Scotland Lord Stratheona again comforted the old man with a little money.

When he had gone an official who had overheard the conversation said: "I hope you did not give that man any money, Lord Stratheona. When he saw you before one of his two grandsons was dead. Now he says both are ill with typhoid fever."

"Thank you very much, Mr. Jones," said the high commissioner, with a twinkle in his eye, "but do you know when I left Scotland for Canada I had no cab to take me to the ship, but just wheeled down my things myself to the dock in a barrow."—London Tit-Bits.

A SECRET SIGNAL.

The Tailor's Comment While Measuring a Customer.

"Did you ever notice how the tailors while measuring a man for a suit of clothes mix in a few letters occasionally among the numbers?" asked a downtown lawyer recently of a friend. "Whenever I have been measured for a suit of clothes the tailor always said S. B. L. in a subdued voice as he took the measure for the length of my trousers. I often wondered what this secret signal meant and on one occasion made so bold as to ask, but was put aside in some casual way, which plainly showed me that the tailor did not wish me to know the meaning of the mysterious S. B. L."

"Well, I never knew what these letters meant until one day not long ago, when I stumbled across the solution quite by accident. I was waiting to have my measure taken while a strapping big fellow was on the rack. As he measured the length of the trousers leg the tailor said, '33, S. B. L.' "Yes," came back the reply from the big fellow, "and bowlegged too." "All these years tailors have been accusing me of being 'slightly bowlegged,' and I had never caught on until I was practically told the answer in the accidental way."—Philadelphia Record.

Books.

God be thanked for books! They are the voices of the distant and the dead and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages. Books are true levelers. They give to all who will faithfully use them the society, the spiritual presence, of the best and greatest of our race. No matter how poor I am, no matter though the prosperous of my own time will not enter my obscure dwelling. If the sacred writers will enter and take up their abode under my roof—if Milton will cross my threshold to sing to me of paradise, and Shakespeare to open to me the world of imagination and the workings of the human heart, and Franklin to enrich me with his practical wisdom—I shall not pine for want of intellectual companionship, and I may become a cultivated man, though excluded from what is called the best society in the place where I live.—William Ellery Channing.

Result of Poor Writing.

The Duke of Wellington, through misreading a badly written letter, made a ludicrous blunder. This letter was written by C. J. London, a botanical author, who wrote to the duke requesting the privilege of seeing his beautiful beeches. The duke misread the signature for that of C. J. Bloomfield, bishop of London, and wrote in reply: "My lord, I shall always be glad to see you at Strattonfeldsaye, and my servant shall show you as many pairs of my breeches as you may choose to inspect. Put what you want to see them for is quite beyond me."—Exchange.

Never ask pardon before you are accused.—German Proverb.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

MILLER.

The funeral of WILLIAM H. MILLER, of DuBois, Pa., who died on Friday last in his 45th year. Deceased was a brother of Mrs. C. E. Crandall, of this place, whose recent bereavement in the death of her daughter prevented her attending the funeral, although her sister, Mrs. Mack, and husband, Chas. E. Crandall attended the last sad rites. We copy the following account of the funeral from the DuBois Daily Journal:

Funeral services over the late William Housel Miller were held from the family residence, 218 1/2 DuBois street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Vernon Bell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The Crescent quartette sang "Rock of Ages" and "Lead Kindly Light" in a very pleasing manner.

Deceased had been a resident of DuBois, several years ago being employed by the Jefferson Supply company, which position he held for about six years, and later was employed by Alex Crawford and served him in the capacity of meat cutter for nearly three years.

He was a great sufferer from asthma and had to resign his position with Mr. Crawford and went to Kansas City, Colorado and Michigan in the hope of regaining his health. His health did improve to some extent and he returned to DuBois about 18 months ago. The disease of which he suffered returned and a complication set in, rendering him almost helpless for months at a time.

During Mr. Miller's illness no one ever heard him complain, always having a cheerful word for all his friends, who were legion as shown by their tokens of esteem and sympathy during his illness and death. He was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church at this place and attended divine service wherever he was able to. At his own request last September the pastor and a member of the church administered to him the sacraments of the Lord's supper at his home.

The meat markets of DuBois were requested to close during the afternoon of the funeral and they with one accord responded to the request. He is survived by a widow and one son; mother, two brothers, Abram and Gus, of Philadelphia; three sisters, Mrs. Crandell, of Emporium, Mrs. Charles Diehl, of Camden and Mrs. Henry Mack of Philadelphia.

Several friends or the deceased from Reynoldsville attended the funeral.

Many gifts of cut flowers were evidence of the deceased's popularity. Undertaker Moore had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Red-Handed Sultan Hamid Out.

CONSTANTINOPLE, APRIL 27.—Abdul Hamid II. has been deposed as Sultan of the Turkish Empire.

Mehammed Reschad Effendi, his brother, was proclaimed his successor at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The deposition was through the regular form prescribed by the tenets of the Mohammedan faith.

The Sheikh-ul-Islam, the head of the church, issued the decree of deposition.

The news of deposition of Abdul Hamid and the selection of his brother to succeed him caused great excitement in the city.

Crowds at once began to gather in the squares and thoroughfares and around the Imperial Palace of the Yildiz in anticipation of the proclamation of a new Sultan.

The Sultan was dethroned by the National Assembly, whose decision on the proposal was unanimous.

A salute of 101 guns, fired at 2:30 p. m. announced to the waiting populace of Constantinople the change in the sultanate.

Mehammed Reschad Effendi was proclaimed as Mehemed V.
