Lady

At 14 years of age Admiral Sir Peter Hawkshaw's nephew, Richard Glyn, tell decely in love at first sight with Lady Arabella Stormont, who spurned his attentions. The lad, an orphan, was given a berth as mid-hipman on the Ajax by his uncle. Glies Vernon, nephew of Sir Thomas Vernon, became the boy's pal. They attended a heater where Hawkshaw's nephew saw Lady Arabella. Vernon met Philip Over-ton, next in line for Sir Thomas Vernon's state. They started a duel which was in-herupted. Vernon, Overton and Hawk-haw's nephew found themselves attract-d by prity _ady Arabella. The Ajax in pattle defeated French warships in the Mediterranean.

scarce up to the standard-I was more We took the Xantippe home-the Indomptable went to the bottom of the bookish than Giles. But he replied with some heat: Bay of Biscay-but before our prize money was settled up we were off cation of a gentleman, will be so base again; Sir Peter dearly loved cruising as to sneer at the grammar or spellin blue water. It was near two years ing?" So the letter went as it was, and in reply came a very handsome, we got back to England to before spend that prize-money; for, except well-expressed letter from Capt. Overthe captain and Mr. Buxton and some ton, not only agreeing to postpone it a of the married officers, I know of no month, but for six weeks, which pleased Giles mightily. I wish to say, one who saved any. Sir Peter, I un-derstood afterward, spent much of his in a diamond necklace and tiara for Lady Hawkshaw, in which he was although Giles was inexpert with the pen, he had no lack of either polish or ideas, and was as fine an officer as ever walked the deck. most egregiously cheated by a Portu-guese money lender, and the balance he put into a scheme for acclimating elephants in England, which was to tled, and the ship being paid off, Giles and I started for London, as happy as make him as rich as Croesus; but he lost £1,000 on the venture, besides his prize-money. In those two years I grew more and more fond of Giles Vernon. We generally contrived to have our watch together, and we were intimate as only shipmates could be. He talked much of what he meant to do when he got ashore with money to spend, and assured me he had never had above £20 of his own in his life. In the course of many nights spent in standing watch together, when the old Ajax was sailing like a witch for she was a capital sailer at that time-he told me much about his early youth, and I confided to him the story of Betty Green. Giles' career had been the common one of the younger branches of a good family. His father had been a clergyman, and, dying, left several daughters, who married re-spectably, and this one son, who was put in the sea service very young. At that time several lives stood between Giles and the title and estates of Sir Thomas Vernon, and other lives stood between Giles and Overton; but those had passed away, leaving these two With Her Were Daphne and the Glo distant kinsmen as heirs to a man that seemed rightfully to have earned his two youngsters could be, with liberty title of "wicked Sir Thomas." I asked and £2,000 apiece to spend, for I ac-Giles if he knew why Sir Thomas, who knowledge that I had no more thought of saving than Giles. We so cordially hated his heirs, had never married. Giles replied that Sir Thomas showed no inclination to marno stage-coach for us!—and reached there in a day. We had planned to take the finest rooms at Mivart's hotel, but foit and London Hondone ry until he was near 40. Then his reputation was so well established that he was generally looked askant but fate and Lady Hawkshaw pre upon; his character for truth was bad vented me from enjoying them except and at cards was worse. But he had for the first night of our arrival. Next induced a lady of rank and wealth to morning on presenting myself at the become engaged to be married to him. admiralty to ask for letters-never His treatment of her was so infamous that her whole family had declared war against him, and had succeeded in breaking off several very desirable alliances he would have liked to make Of course a man of his rank and wealth could find some woman-alas! -to take him; but Sir Thomas was bent on money, with an inclination toward rank, and was the last man on to marry unless he had a sub stantial inducement; and several more years had passed without his being able to effect the sort of marriage he desired. Meanwhile, his health had broken down, and he was now a shattered man and prey for the doctors. All this was very interesting to me, especially as Sir Thomas' two heirs would one day have the experience of shooting at each other, and possibly deciding the matter of heirship by the elimination of one or the other from the question.

to say, the pimps and the worst class When I reached Sir Peter's house of men and women soon got the money about noon, the same tall and insolent footman that I had seen on my first visit opened the door for me. The officers, in their way, were but Hawkshaw, wearing the same black velvet gown and the identical feathlittle behind the men in their lavishness. Champagne was their common drink, and several of them invested in ers, received me, and sitting with her were Daphne Carmichael and the coaches!-the last thing they would glorious, the beautiful, the enchanting Lady Arabella Stormont. If I had fallen madly in love with desired to spend his money in London, Portsmouth being too small a theater her when I was but 14, and had only seven and sixpence, one may imagine where I found myself when I was near for him. But the pressing affair of the satisfaction he owned Capt. Overton 17, and had £2,000 in a bag in my Lady Hawkshaw's greeting had to be settled. After much hard hands. was stiff, but far from unkind; and she introduced me to the young ladies, thinking, Giles came to me on the day after we reached Portsmouth, and who curtsied most beautifully to me, and, I may say, looked at me not un-"Dicky boy, read this letter and give kindly

"Is that your prize-money in that bag, Richard?" asked Lady Hawkshaw, immediately,

I replied it was.

"Jeames," she said, "go and make my compliments to Sir Peter, and say to him that if he has nothing better to do, I would be glad to see him at once. And order the coach."

James departed. I sat in adoring silence, oblivious of Daphne, but gazing at Lady Arabella until she exclaimed, pettishly: "La! Have I got a cross-eye or a crooked nose, Mr. Richard, that you can't take your eyes off me?"

"You have neither," I replied, gal-lantly. "And my name is not Mr. Richard, but Mr. Glyn, at your ladyship's service. "Arabella," said Lady Hawkshaw in a voice of thunder, "be more par-ticular in your address to young gentlemen."

"Oh, yes, ma'am!" pertly replied Lady Arabella. "But such very young gentlemen, like Mr. Glyn, or Mr. Thin, or whatever his name may be, are al ways difficult to please in the way of address. If you are familiar, they are affronted; and if you are reserved, they think you are making game of them.

By this speech I discovered that although Lady Hawkshaw might rule her world, terrorize Sir Peter, and make the lords of the admiralty her humble servitors, she had one rebel in the camp, and that was Lady Arabella Stormont. I saw that her remarks displeased Lady Hawkshaw, but she en-dured them in silence. Who, though, would not endure anything from that cherub mouth and those dazzling eyes? Sir Peter now appeared and greeted me.

"Sir Peter," said Lady Hawkshaw in her usual authoritative manner, "you will go in the coach with me to the bank, with Richard Glyn, to deposit his money. You will be ready in ten minutes, when the coach will be at the door.'

"I will go with you, madam," replied Sir Peter; "but I shall order my horse, and ride a horseback, because I do not like riding in that damned stuffy coach. And, besides, when you and your feathers get in, there is no room for me."

"You ride a-horseback!" sniffed Lady Hawkshaw. "Even the grooms and stable boys laugh at you. You are always talking some sea nonsense about keeping the horse's head to the wind, and yawing and luffing and bowsing at the bowline, and what not; and, besides, I am afraid to trust you since Brown Jane threw you in the park.

It ended by Sir Peter's going in the coach, where the little man lay back in the corner, nearly smothered by Lady Hawkshaw's voluminous and pishing and pshawing the whole way.

But I was quite happy-albeit I was the victim of Lady Hawkshaw in hav ing my money kept for me-for on the seat beside me was Lady Arabella, who chose to go with us. She made much game of me, but I had the spirit to answer her back. After placing the money, we took an airing in the park, and then returned to dinner at five o'clock. I neither knew nor cared what became of Daphne; for was I not with the adored Lady Arabella?

WHAT COLORS SHALL I USE? This Question is Important in Painting

A proper color scheme is extremely important in painting a house. It makes all the difference between a really attractive home and one at which you wouldn't take a second glance. And it makes a big difference in the price the property will bring on the market.

a House or Other Building

As to the exterior, a good deal de pends upon the size and architecture of the house, and upon its surroundings. For a good interior effect you must consider the size of the rooms, the light, etc.

You can avoid disappointment by studying the books of color schemes for both exterior and interior painting, which can be had free by writing Na-tional Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Building, New York, and asking for Houseowner's Painting Outfit No. 49. The outfit also includes specifications and a simple instrument for testing the purity of paint materials. Pure White Lead which will stand the test in this outfit will stand the weather test. Meeting of National Association for Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis Will Be Largely Attended.

The fifth annual meeting of the Na tional Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis will be held in Washington, D. C., at the New Willard hotel, on May 13, 14 and 15. Owing to the present interest in the campaign against tuberculosis, the meeting will be of unusual interest and importance. The membership of the national association now numbers nearly 2,000, and is distributed in almost every state in the United States. The national association has also a considerable membership in Canada, Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippine islands, and in several of the European countries. Ex-President Roosevelt and Dr. William Osler are honorary vicepresidents of the national association. Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch of Boston is the president; Mr. Homer Folks of New York city, and Dr. Charles L. Minor of Asheville, N. C., are the vicepresidents; Gen. George M. Sternberg of Washington, D. C., is treasurer: Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs of Baltimore, is secretary, and Dr. Livingston Farrand of New York is the executive secretary of the association.

"Little black swellings were scattered over my face and neck and they would leave little black scars that would itch so I couldn't keep from scratching them. Larger swellings would appear and my clothes would stick to the sores. I went to a doctor, but the trouble only got worse. By this time it was all over my arms and the upper part of my body in swellings as large as a dollar. It was so pain-ful that I could not bear to lie on my back. The second doctor stopped the swellings, but when they broke the places would not heal. I bought a set of the Cuticura Remedies and in less than a week some of the places were nearly well. We both got promotion, of course and that brought us into the gunroom; but we were as intimate there as in our reefer days in the cockpit. On a glorious October morning in 1799, our anchor kissed the ground in Portsmouth harbor.

When we reached Portsmouth, the news of our good fortune had preceded us, and we were welcomed with open arms by men, women, and children-especially the women. "Grand-Nephew.-My Lady Hawkshaw desires that you will come and bring your money with you to our house in Berkeley Square, and remain there.

"Yours, etc., "P. HAWKSHAW, C. B."

Great was my distress when I got this letter, as I foresaw there would not be much chance under Lady Hawkshaw's eagle eye of seeing the kind of life I wished to see. And I was obliged to go, for Sir Peter was the only person on earth likely to in-terest himself at the admiralty for me; and I might stay and wither on shore while others more fortunate got ships, if I antagonized him. And when Lady Hawkshaw commanded there was but one thing to do, and that was to obey.

So, with a heavy heart, I took my self and my portmanteau and, in a canvas bag, my 2,000 guineas to the admiral's great fine house in Berkeley Square. My parting with Giles was melancholy enough; for, with the womanish jealousy of a boy, I was unhappy to think he would be enjoying himself with some one else, while I was suffering the hardship of having my money taken care of for me. Giles had no more forgotten the Lady Arabella than I had, and, on reading this note, exclaimed: "Zounds! I wish Peter and Polly had sent for me to stay in Berkeley Square, with that divine creature un-der the same roof. Do you think, Dicky, we could exchange identities so to speak?" But on my reminding him that Lady Hawkshaw had de stick, and watches and jeweiry hung manded my prizemoney, and would her day, registering its customs, just all over him was common enough, and certainly get it, his ardor to stand in as a good thermometer registers the FOOD FACTS What an M. D. Learned.

A prominent Georgia physician went through a food experience which he makes public:

"It was my own experience that first led me to advocate Grape-Nuts food and I also know, from having prescribed it to convalescents and other weak patients, that the food is a wonderful builder and restorer of nerve and brain tissue, as well as muscle. It improves the digestion and sick tients always gain just as I did in strength and weight very rapidly

"I was in such a low state that I had to give up my work entirely, and went to the mountains of this state, but two months there did not improve me; in fact I was not quite as well as when I left home.

"My food did not sustain me and It became plain that I must change. Then I began to use Grape-Nuts food and in two weeks I could walk a mile without fatigue, and in five weeks returned to my home and practice, taking up hard work again. Since that time I have felt as well and strong as ever did in my life. "As a physician who seeks to help all sufferers, I consider it a duty to make these facts public.

Trial 10 days on Grape-Nuts, when the regular food does not seem to sustain the body, will work miracles.
