Old School Editor Gone.

Colonel Alexander K. McClure, aged 81 years, passed away, at his country home at Wallingford, Delaware county, Pa., on Sunday.

Only a few days ago Colonel McClure returned to his duties as prothonotary of the state supreme court. This was followed by a relapse, which almost cost his life. Since then he had been at his country home, where he had been slowly losing his little remaining strength, though putting up a grim battle against death. That he anticipated his end within a short time was shown by the disposition he made of his business affairs since retiring to Wallingford. Several times he had been in conference with his brother-in-law who handled his interests during the past week.

Colonel McClure was born in Perry county, Pennsylvania, and when only 19 years of age became the editor of the Juniata Sentinel. Two years later he was appointed on the staff of Governor W. F. Johnson, whom he had supported in his newspaper. He first gained political prominence in 1853 when he was nominated and defeated, for auditor general.

Interesting Letter From the Misses Blumle.

VENICE, ITALY, MAY 22, 1909.

DEAREST PAPA AND MAMA:— No doubt you will be surprised to hear from us from Venice, but we wished to visit Venice, so arrived here Wednesday noon and leave again tomorrow for Milan, our last stop in Italy.

We secured tickets at Rome which entitled us to visit Florence, Venice, Milan, and then via St. Gothard's tunnel to Luzerne, Zurich and then Munich, at the cost of $23.40 each, which covers our railroad fare, second class to Munich, and the ticket is good for 45 days. We are arranging our trip so as not to travel by night, and to always get to the next stop in the day time.

We journeyed from Rome to Florence, and visited that city all by ourselves without any trouble, and also came to Venice without company. However, on our way to Venice we met some very nice people, who were at the same hotel that we were while at Florence, and are at this hotel now, and we have been taking in Venice with them, and they also go to Milan to-morrow with us. There are four in their party, and come from Melbourne, Australia and New Zealand. Two of the crowd are making a trip around the world.

If all is well, think we will be at Rosenheim in seven or eight more days, as we only stay one day at Milan.

Florence, while a very pretty city the only thing of interest there is the cathedral, art galleries, park, and Florentine Mosaic works, which we took in.

Found Venice a beautiful place, and something out of the ordinary. This place is all composed of islands, which are joined to some extent by bridges, but some cannot be reached unless one takes a steamer, which ply from station to station the same as a street car, and 10 centime (one cent) is the fare. A street car or horse is unknown of here, and one must either walk or take a gondola or boat.

We were rather fortunate to get here at just this time, as Wednesday evening the Queen of England arrived in her private yacht, together with Prince George and the Dowager Queen of Russia. The royal palace is right at the Bay, and within a block of where we are staying, so we saw them coming to shore. Thursday night an illuminated procession of gondolas and barges was held on the Grand Canal in her honor, and it was simply beautiful. All of us were on the water in a boat and enjoyed the scene. The Queen's band was in the center of the parade on a barge in the shape of a large crown and simply a mass of electric lights. It took us two hours to cover the Grand Canal, and searchlights were thrown from different towers. This place is filled with American and English people and we always meet some one to talk to.

The weather all through Italy is getting very warm and the thermometer registers 90 in the shade at noon. At Venice it is very pleasant though, as we get a good breeze from the Adriatic Sea, which surrounds Venice.

All of us have been well right along, and have nothing to complain about. Trust all is going well at home, and that you are not worrying about us.

We are staying right next to St. Mark's Cathedral at St. Marks Square, and wish you could see the pigeons all around the square. There seems to be many thousands of them, and all day long people are feeding them. They are all the same color and so tame that they light on a person's hat or on a person's arm and eat out of your hand. People feed them corn and peas, which you can buy from vendors at one cent a bag.

We are going out this morning to one of the islands to visit the largest glass factory in the world, where the Venetian Glass is made. The streets and side canals here are very narrow, so narrow in fact that you can almost reach across and the houses are built right up to the water. Don't think anyone has a cellar here as they never could keep the water out.

Linda, one of the islands is fixed up similar to Atlantic City, and people flock there to go in bathing. You don't see any grass or trees around here excepting at "The Gardens", the only park, and flowers there seem a curiosity. The country from Bologna, where we changed cars coming here, to this place is very level, but from Florence to Bologna it is far from being so, and through that district in traveling 2½ hours we passed through 48 tunnels, many of them being over three miles long. The mountains around Bologna are very high, and the peaks of them covered with snow, while down in the valley the heat was terrible.

Think I have told you all that is new just at the present, so will bring this to a close.

Trusting all are well, and with fondest love, your daughter,

TRESS.

Disinfect

Some disinfectants and germicides might be classed as drugs but, you do not want to be drugged just now with a bug killer. However, now is the time to think of getting after the rose bugs and currant worms.

We have a full line of the "remedies" for that class of pests. Also a non-poisonous bed bug exterminator in small cans.
