FIRST FORK

We have had the first hunting accident this season in this neck of woods to report. On Tuesday afternoon some hunters out after birds, camping at Lushbaugh. One man, who carried a 22 calibre Winchester, shot at a bird; the bullet glancing from a limb and striking a man named Wagner, the ball passing through his chin and lodging in his neck. Dr. Geo. Reese, of Costello, came down and "rendered first aid" to the wounded man. On Wednesday morning one of the party took him to Williamsport Hospital, where the bullet was extracted. He is likely to recover. It was certainly a close call. The party broke camp and departed for their homes on Saturday.

On Thursday, a man was killed at Wharton, while coupling cars on the Mexic Run log train, when he was caught between two logs when the train bumped. He leaves a wife and six children at Austin. Did not hear his name.

On Saturday, C. E. Logue and Fred Williams took their tents and "silently stole away" to the woods, where they have opened a "Hunters Resort" for the deer season. On their way out they captured, alive, a large coon and have him for a mascot at the camp.

On Thursday, of last week, George Strickler and C. E. Legue went out in the morning to look at their bear traps. They sat down on the bank of the stream to rest and noticed some wild bees coming to the Run for a drink and also to work on some honey they were using for bear bait. Geo. took their trail, but went only a short distance when he located them in an old maple that had blown down. The same afternoon they went up and robbed the bees of forty pounds of nice honey.

Joe McMurray and Harry Williams, of Johnsonburg, returned home on Thursday with a bear, which they captured alive.

Frank Williams, of Pine Flats, Pa., was here for a bear hunt and a day or two after his arrival was out in the woods, when he came across quite a large bear, that was running away with a trap—the clog having become detached—and he stopped him with a bullet through the head. A day or two following he captured a cub alive and took the whole outfit home with him.

On day last week there was a wreck on the B. & S. R. R., near Fred Pen's, caused by a broken flange. Passengers had to be transferred all day. On Saturday another wreck took place at Bennezette and passengers had to be transferred.

Miss Dinger, teacher at Gilmore school, who was reported seriously ill last week, is better and hopes to resume teaching on Tuesday.
