Born—Wednesday Jan. 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Olmsted, of No. 72, Jackson Ave., Bradford, Pa., a son, Weight 8 1/2 pounds. The Press extends congratulations.

"As Told In The Hills." "As told in the Hills" which will be seen at the Opera House next Monday in the leading role supplies the want for something entirely new in the field of melodrama and stands as an example of the best American melodrama. The plot is original, both in its conception and development and the characters are clearly drawn and extremely interesting.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Martha, wife of Samuel F. Smith, died at the family home on First Fork, Sunday evening, January 2, 1910. Pneumonia was the cause of her death and she was ill for only three days. Mrs. Smith was born near Sinnamahoning and had lived here all her life. She was in her 68th year, having been born April 18th, 1842. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. E. W. Runyan on Wednesday at the Haynes' school house and interment was made in the Gilmore cemetery. She is survived by her husband, three sons and an adopted son who mourn the loss of a good wife and mother.

The grim messenger of death has again visited Emporium and has called to the great beyond a devoted wife and mother, in the person of Mrs. Andrew Blinzler, nee Miss Mary Dulling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Dulling, of this place. Deceased was but twenty-six years of age and been in failing health for some time with the dread consumption which finally claimed her, and relieved a patient sufferer early Wednesday morning at her home on West Allegany Avenue. The funeral will take place from her late home on Friday morning at nine o'clock and proceed to St. Mark's Catholic church where High Mass will be celebrated. Deceased is survived by her husband and four small children and her parents, to whom the Press and a large circle of friends extends sympathy. Mr. Bernard Egan has charge of the funeral.

Miss Mame Lacy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Lacy, of this place, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. E. Williams, at Pittsburg, last Monday. Deceased was only twenty-three years of age and has been a constant sufferer for several months with chronic intestinal nephritis, which caused her death. The body, accompanied by relatives, arrived at Emporium on Tuesday afternoon and was taken to the home of Mr. James O'Day. The funeral of this esteemed young lady, was held this morning from St. Mark's Catholic church at nine o'clock. High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Downey. Deceased is survived by several brothers and one sister and to these bereaved ones the Press extends its sincere sympathy. Mr. B. Egan was the funeral director.

"The Wizard of Wiseland." The second act opens on this mysterious Fairy Island and they all find themselves experiencing a change of heart and circumstances. Ikey Goldberg, the Professor's stupid valet is appointed Wizard and Ruler of the Island and the heiress to millions becoming a poor working girl and so on through a merry tangle of experiences. After sundry adventures all unite in wishing to go home and the Fairy Queen waves her magic Wand and starts them on their homeward journey.

During the argument of the play eighteen musical numbers are introduced with a magnificent ballet dance in the second act. The management have spared no expense in costuming and producing this play to make it first-class in every respect.

Do you want to forget your troubles? Then take the advice of a friend and consult the Wizard of Wiseland. He is the leading comedian in the new, merry whirl that is coming next Thursday. There are other funny comedians with him, a number of them—and the girls! They are there too, principals and chorus. Girls who can sing. Girls who can dance. Girls who can act—and there is the lion. The lion does not sing, but he is the best animal actor to be found anywhere. The "Wizard of Wiseland" is produced with great care and expense and is guaranteed to please.

The costumes worn by the Chorus in the musical number "The Coming of the Moon" one of the interpolations in the musical comedy extravaganza, "The Wizard of Wiseland" was designed by Victor Florenti of Paris, and imported especially for this production.

The boxing exhibition given at the Opera House on Monday night was quite well attended and a very clever affair. The wind up was between Kid Pelkington of Canoe Run and Wm McCoy, of Philadelphia. Pelkington showed up to be very clever.

We call the attention of our readers to the new ads in this issue which will be of great interest to our people in the way of money saving. Jasper Harris was first on hand, followed by H. A. Death of Dr. Bardwell.

Continued from 1st page. January 1889, to accept the place of chief engineer, which he has been compelled to give up owing to pressing professional duties. A skillful physician and surgeon, and a live citizen, Dr. E. O. Bardwell is a man of advanced thought and liberal ideas, and is invariably in favor of those things which will inure to the benefit of his borough and county.

On Thursday afternoon, at two o'clock, the funeral was held at Emmanuel Episcopal Church, the casket being carried to the church by six members of Mountaineer Hose Company, the deceased having been that company's first foreman and drill master. A large delegation of firemen, representing the four companies, was present. A beautiful floral piece rested upon a table, (a testimonial from the hose company), and a very beautiful casket bouquet of carnations laid across the remains—the latter being a token of esteem from Miss Grace A., and Geo. A. Walker.

A special choir, composed of Mrs. T. F. Moore, Misses Grace A. Walker, Alice Montgomery, and Messrs. Geo. A. Walker and W. S. Sterner. Mr. W. H. Howard presided at the organ. The singing was beautiful, especially the hymn selected by Dr. Bardwell only a few days before his death.

REV. MR. ROBERTSON'S REMARKS. It is not my purpose to review the details of the career of our departed friend, nor to dwell at length upon his life and character, which for thirty years, with the exception of some short intervals, have been an open book in our midst. His superior mental endowments, the bright promise of his early years, his professional ability and success, his public services in the community, as well as his errors, his misfortunes and his afflictions, are known to us all.

But I do wish to call particular attention to the change which, in God's good providence and through the guidance and enlightenment of His Holy Spirit, had been wrought in our friends personal views and attitude towards the realities of the spiritual world. He who had once been known as a "pronounced agnostic," some months ago, of his own free choice, of clear mind, of earnest purpose and of fearless courage, accepted the Christian faith and hope, and was received into the Church by Holy Baptism.

Some, perhaps may think that this change was due to the breaking down of his powers of mind and body, but those who knew him best can testify that this closing period of his life was the flowering time of his spirit, and that this notable change was a mark of inward growth and progress and not of decay. To feel to the full the measure of a deep personal bereavement and to yearn for the satisfaction of our longing for endless life and endless love, is a token of real life and growth of spirit, and not of mental weakness nor of the spirit's decay.

We may apply to our friend the words of Stevenson in Memories and Portraits: "For this man was one of those who prospered in the valley of humiliation,—of whom Bunyan wrote, that, 'Though Christ had the hard hole to meet in the valley with Apollyon, yet I must tell you that in former times men have met with angels here, have found pearls here, and have in this place found the words of life.'"

In addition to the relations residing here. Mr. E. R. Bardwell, of Penn Yan, N. Y., and Dr. J. S. Bardwell, Ridgway, were in attendance. The remains were taken to Penn Yan, at 4:20 same day. The burial took place there last Friday morning, at nine o'clock, the remains being placed in the family lot. May peace rest with his troubled soul.

"As Told In The Hills." The coming engagement of "As told in the Hills" at the Opera House next Monday evening will be one of the strongest attractions of the present theatrical season. The play is a strongly written melodrama of Western life that abounds in thrilling situations and exciting climaxes during the action of which a goodly number of up-to-date specialties are introduced. The comedy element has been in no way neglected and in contrast with many of the so-called melodramas written in recent years, there are no features that are in any way objectionable.

Friendly Society Banquet. One of the crowning events of the season, was the first annual banquet of the Union Friendly Society, which was held at The Warner last Thursday evening. The affair had been planned by the society several weeks ago and was looked forward to with much anticipation of pleasure. The Union Friendly Society is strictly a social organization, composed of about twenty-five of Emporium's young people. Last Thursday evening, the members, with special invited guests gathered at the home of Miss Margaret Dodson and proceeded to The Warner, where an elaborate banquet was served, at nine o'clock. The tables were decorated with green foliage and carnations and were very pretty. The ladies of the party, were delightfully gowned and with the many merry faces it made a scene that will long be remembered. Following was the menu:

- Green of Tomato, Wafers Baked Pickles Olives Celery Roast Veal, Sage Dressing Mashed Potatoes Green Peas Ice Cream Cake Coffee Cocoa

Mine host, Mr. H. W. Smith and his worthy assistants, at this popular hotel, certainly understand serving a banquet and the society are loud in their praise. After all had partaken of the good things, the entire company repaired to the home of Miss Marion Rentz, on West Fourth Street, and spent the remainder of the evening in games and music.

The Cruise Around the World.

Continued from First page. do not think that one inch of ground was allowed to waste. Rice fields, hills to the very top of the mountain stream made to soak the rice fields, water to be one terrace and then passing to the next. There are tea-fields, coconut groves, bread fruit trees, and cocoa trees the bean of which makes the cocoa you drink. I don't believe there is a useless tree or bush around. Everything growing something to eat on it and where do the people live? for we seem to be in one endless forest but right among the trees as far as you can see is neat little huts or houses. Most of them look as if they were made of white cement and are neat and clean, the natives looking slick and happy. What a contrast with India! but up and up we go until at last we arrive at Kendy and here again we are met at the station with an abundance of carriages and Kickshaws to take us around the town, but where is the town? don't see any, but where did all these rigs come from but we pile in and start somewhere, it all looks like woods, but here we are going through the fine botanical gardens and now we find the town, good streets and some fine bungalows all nestling under the trees, coconut and other fruit-bearing trees. Men, women and children, thick everywhere, and while we are seeing something, so are they. I don't suppose they ever saw such a laughing, happy and bustling crowd in their lives and all wanting to do something for the Americans, they had heard of but never saw before. At noon we took lunch at the Queen's Hotel and a good one it was too. After lunch while strolling around the hotel a lady and a gentleman stopped me, they looked like Americans, "Can you tell us where to find Judge LaBar?" I answered, Yes, I think I can. "Oh, are you Mr. LaBar?" "Yes." "Where is Mr. Felt and Matteson?" "Mr. Dickison, of Ridgway said you would be here and we have been hunting for you." I find here so far away from home we find friends anxious to see us. Mr. G. O. Hecka and wife, nee Miss Hartan, of Ridgway. Were they glad to see some one from home? well I think so. Now comes the hardest tug of all, we must go to their villa and stay all night with them, which we would gladly do if we thought we could but we have to refuse firmly but kindly. Now for another ride at Kendry, went to the Temple of the Sacred Tooth of Buda, but could not see the tooth, as it is most securely locked. We went to the river to see the elephants bathing, which was a novel sight to most of us, but all days come to an end so after dinner at the hotel, we go aboard the cars and leave Kendy behind us and at eleven p. m. climb aboard the "Cleveland" and seek our beds tired but happy.

November 22, 1906. We are up bright and early again and after breakfast we land and take carriages and Rickshaws for a ride about Colombo; saw some very fine gardens, some old temples, one old temple, a gentleman told me about, but I did not go to it, there is a great large image of Buda, all around it were pictures representing the different kinds of hell. If you abused your wife you went to this hell, if you abused an animal you went to this hell, if you killed a horse you went to this hell and so on through the catalogue of hells. Well, I thought I had better not go as I might have a hell of a time. In the afternoon we took a car ride of seven miles to Lanima Beach and hotel and spent a most delightful afternoon hanging around the seashore, buying things from the natives. At four p. m. we started for the boat again. I forgot to state this ride was along the seashore on one side, and beautiful little cottages nestling among the palm trees on the other side but beauty cannot last for ever any more than misery can so we are again aboard the steamer for another night's rest.

November 23, 1909. This morning we are sent adrift on our own hooks, to do and go as we pleased so we put in the day shopping and looking about till near night when we again board the "Cleveland" and at five p. m., amid the playing of bands we take our departure from Colombo, Ceylon, the beautiful, where they have mined precious stones for the last three or four thousand years, also gold in abundance and there seems to be just as much as ever. The town seems to be literally full of every kind of precious stones and pearl. Every street arab seems to have fine stones for sale either mounted or unmounted, if you go into the stores they will show you trays full, you can handle them like gravel stones.

November 24. We now find ourselves in the bay of Bengal. All pleasant and peaceful.

November 25, 1909. Thanksgiving day and what a pleasant day we have spent, speeches and talks on home and patriotism, the first thing I heard this morning was "Nearer my God to Thee" to call us up for the day. We found the dining hall draped with American flags and everything showing they had not forgotten us although we were 14,000 miles from home, or have traveled that distance. Mr. Clark assured us we would have turkey and pumpkin pie for dinner. Well dinner has come and gone. The room was finely decorated with the American colors, they certainly did their best to make it a success and in a measure succeeded, but oh, such punkin pie! Well I did not eat it, but all in all, the dinner was quite a success. Well now I must bring my poor attempt at a letter to a close in order to get it mailed in time, as to-morrow morning we will be in Calcutta for three or four days of more hard work at sight-seeing. We are still moving along smoothly. You friends at home I suppose think we have some rough weather and seas to pass through, but we have not had any storm of any kind, it tried to rain on two different occasions, but it did not amount to much and in an hour or so it was just as bright as ever. As for wind we have had just enough to breathe, we are wearing our linen, silk and cotton suits now without unbecoming and find them plenty warm. We are hoping to get more letters and papers from home when we get to Calcutta. We received one Press at Ceylon, and it looked very familiar.

Good by and good health to all, W. C. T. U. Notice. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of this place will hold their regular meeting, Saturday, Jan. 15th, at the home of Mrs. J. D. Swope on Fifth street, at 7:30 o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend. GRACE F. HEIDECH, Sec'y.

Eye Specialist. Prof. W. H. Budine, the well known Eye Specialist, of Binghamton, N. Y., will be at R. H. Hirsch's jewelry store, Emporium, Pa., Jan. 18th. If you can't see well or have headache don't fail to call and see Prof. Budine, as he guarantees to cure all such cases. Lenses ground and fitted in old frames. Eyes tested and examined free. All work guaranteed.

A Jolly Time. Last Wednesday evening fourteen of Emporium's jolliest young folks chaperoned by Miss Alice Quigley, enjoyed a sleigh ride to Canoe Run where they were most royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Webster and daughter Irene. After the usual games refreshments were served. The party returned home in the "we sma' hours" voting it one of the most pleasant evenings ever spent.
