The Cause of Colds

Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds.

If people would only fortify and strengthen the system, the majority of cases of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are frequently due to weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened it becomes easily infected with germs which cause many of the diseases to which flesh is heir. Healthy mucous membranes are essential safeguards of the body's general health.

An excellent aid in the prevention of coughs, colds, pneumonia, and such like infectious diseases, is a remedy that will prevent or cure catarrh.

We have a remedy which we believe to be unsurpassed in excellence for the prevention of coughs, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of thirty years of cures gained through the use of this formula. We promise to make no charge for the medicine should it fail to do as we claim. We urge everybody who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Mucu-Tone.

It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our personal guarantee to this remedy if we were not prepared to prove the reasonableness of our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why any one should hesitate to accept our offer and try it. We have two sizes of the Mucu-Tone, price 50 cents and $1 00. Sometimes a 50-cent bottle is sufficient to give very marked relief. As a general thing the most chronic case is relieved with an average of three large bottles. You can obtain Rexall Remedies in Emporium only, at our Rexall Store, the Emporium Drug Co.

seemed much pleased with those taken from Russia.

The weather is getting colder, so we did not go out this p. m., only to take a train for Yokohama. On the 11th and 12th, the weather being wet and cold, with about four inches of snow and slush, we did not go out much but remained at the hotel. On the 13th it was still raining and we did not go ashore, but remained on ship until we sailed for Honolulu, the next stopping place which is about 3,459 miles—a ten days' trip without a glance of land and we bid good bye to the Orient and hie ourselves across the broad Pacific for home. It does not hold good to its name for it is the roughest water we have yet been on. About nine p. m., the good ship run her hose into some water that made her toss it pretty high for three days and it is not any too quiet yet. All went well until Wednesday the 19th, then, to us, a strange thing happened, but as we were looking for it, it did not take us by surprise. We passed the day all right but sometime in the night we crossed a line so when we got up next morning we had another Wednesday. This is Thursday the 20th and the dinner horn has just sounded, and I will stop right here and say good bye,

Very Respectfully,
MR. AND MRS. GEO. J. LABAR.

NEARING YOKOHAMA, Japan,
JANUARY 6, 1910.

Dear Friends:

Well here we are again trying to write and tell you what we have seen. On the 2nd, we arrived at Kobe, about 6 a. m., and landed at once and took Rickshaws for the station, to go to Osoko, about 25 miles distant. Found the train finely decorated with small Japanese lanterns and parasols and other things, which the R. R. company gave us as souvenirs. We reached Osoko about 10:15 and was met by the Governor and other officials, at the depot, with a speech of welcome by the Governor, which was replied to by one of our party, in a very able way. We then took Rickshaws for the usual ride about the city. We found the city elegantly decorated from one end to the other, with as many U. S. flags as Japanese. It being their New Year's celebration for three days it gave them a chance to spread themselves, and they certainly did it to perfection. The word "Welcome" was everywhere and the people shouting welcome and Banzai, (hurrah) all the time. Osoko, being a city of perhaps two hundred thousand people you may be sure we had a large audience. We stopped to see some of their temples, all cheap wooden affairs, but very dear to them. We went to the hotel and found lunch waiting for us. The hotel was nicely decorated and a book of views and a bouquet of flowers at every place, presented by the Press of the city. A very good band was playing U. S. music during the entire meal. As soon as lunch was over, we again go forth to see the city and give the ladies a chance to do some shopping. As we are at the depot getting ready to depart the shouting is changed to "Good-bye; come again." At 3:40 we take the train for Kyoto, another city of perhaps two or three hundred thousand people and some 45 miles distant and it is of no use for me to describe our reception here, as it is the same thing repeated at Osoko. We found the air quite cold here, with a few flakes of snow. However, we reached the hotel in time for a six o'clock dinner, tired, hungry and cold, as they had prolonged our ride several miles in order to show us all the decorations, and to show us the people. We certainly made quite a sight, about 350 rickshaws lit up with lanterns. We find the hotel very warm, with stoves in every room, and stoves along the hall. We soon make ourselves at home, and go down to dinner, which we found very good, and if this is a sample of Japanese cooking, I am willing to take more of it. After dinner we were invited to a Geiska Girl Dance, which was gotten up at great expense for our especial benefit, and a very nice affair it was too. The Japanese do all their dancing with their hands and arms. When we got up next morning we found it very cold and did not go out, but spent the time exploring the hotel, and a peculiar structure it was too. When we arrived here in they took us through rods and rods of corridors and flights of stairs; we thought it must be an immense house and so it is; it is built on a side-hill and is very steep. The house is built of many different parts one above the other and when you go up stairs you simply go into another house. We went to the top of the house and had a fine view of the city. The whole valley was a perfect sea of roofs. At 3:30 we take our man buggies and go to the train and reach the ship at last, in time for dinner. At about nine p. m., we retire to our bunks, tired and sleepy. Now about Kobe, we find it a city of about two hundred and eighty-five thousand people, the entire city having grown up in the last thirty-five years, where before it was a small fishing village. We found quite a few modern two story buildings, along the water front, and some back a little, but mostly they were native houses, but of a later and better build, than the older towns. The streets are wider and straighter. We visited some of their places of interest; the temples, pagodas and parks, but the stores held the greatest attractions, for most of the party. Again we wear the day out and return to the ship to wait for another day. The next morning it was raining and blowing and we did not go ashore, but content ourselves watching the others that did go, as they are tossed about in the little tenders. At noon the anchor is up and we slip out of the harbor on our way to Yokohama. On our way we pass the snow capped sacred mountains of Japan, and on the opposite side of the strait is an active volcano, but there is so much of cloud and fog we cannot see them very plain. Now I must close; with good bye to all.

Yours Respectfully,

MR. AND MRS. GEO. J. LABAR.

P. S.—One thing that slipped my mind was, when we got in sight of the ship on our return from Osoko and Tyoko, we discovered that the ship was not decorated with flags and electric lights as usual in other ports. We did not expect it at Nagasaki, as they were coaling there, and after such a grand reception given to us, we thought we might reciprocate a little at least, what we could. We wanted to know why there were no decorations and we found that the captain "Damphaul" had been carrying coal for the Russian in the war with Japan, and holds up spite against Japan and will not decorate on that account. I hope the day will come when Americans can ride on U. S. ships, under the U. S. flag and not feel so humiliated as some of us do here.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.
