The Dog Question In Nazareth. Among many incidents of his wan-derings through Palestine, recounted by Harry Franck in the Century, is

"An American who was in Nazareth long ago," said a native, "told me a strange story. I did not believe him, for it cannot be true. He said that he America people buy dogs." And the mere suggestion of so ludicrous a transaction sent the assembled group that o paroxysms of laughter.

"They do," I replied.
The pompous ex-mayor fell into such convulsions of merriment that his round face grew the color of burnished.

and face grew the color of burnished copper.

"Buy dogs?" roared his sons in a chorus of several languages. "But what for?"

Never having settled that question entirely to my own satisfaction, I par-med it with another, "How do you get a.dog if you want one?"

"W.-w.-why." answered the eldest ach, wiping the tears from his eyes.
"If any one wants a dog he tells some one else, and they give him one. But whoever wants a dog?"

The Widow Was Comforted.

The Widow Was Comforted.

"There is no accounting for the construction which some people will putton certain passages of Scripture," remarked a clergyman. "I remember the story of one clergyman who went to call on a woman whose husband had recently died. He had expected, entire naturally, to find her heartbroken with the burden of her sorrow and was greatly surprised when she greeted him with a very happy smile and ushered him into the parlor.

"Well—er—sister," he said at length.

"'Well-er-sister,' he said at length you have my warmest sympathy.' "Thank you, doctor,' replied the widow casually. 'I did feel ver, bad, very bad indeed. But I cam seross a verse of Scripture which com forted me very much indeed.'

"'And what was the verse, sister inquired the clergyman.

"I don't remember just where to find it,' replied the widow, 'but it was made up of only four words—four helpful words—"Why need I care?""

Eskimo Courtship.

If European death scenes astonish, the consenting "Yes" of a bride at marriage shocks an Eskimo woman. Not only must a bride show herself uncon-centing; she must, if she respects herself and tribal traditions, scream and struggle with all her might when her struggle with all her might when her wooer or his envoy enters her family residence and, laying hold upon her. drags her, usually by the topknot to her new home. She may be prezented with a new-lamp and water pail by her bridegroom, and she is as a general thing mightily pleased at her change of estate. But she is far too circumspect to show her pleasure or affection and keeps up a noisy demonstration until she feels that she has done all that a well bred maiden should do. If she does not exercise proper discrimination in this matter her lord sometimes scratches the soles of her feet so that she cannot run away to her parents.—Harper's Bazar.

Turner's Little Afterthought.

An English critic's reference to Turner's fine pleture "The Wreck Buoy" femilids a faithful newspaper reader of a curious aneedote in connection with it. When Turner first sent this pleture to the Royal academy it was hung among several brilliantly colored pletures. On varnishing day Turner found the effect of his dult gray rendering of a stormy sea altogether spoiled by its bright surroundings. Without a moment's hesitation he painted in the lighted huoy in the force. painted in the lighted buoy in the foreshowed so brilliantly in its gloomy setting that Turner's picture became the prominent one, and its rivals on each side were cast into the shade. It is curious, if true, that the most noticeable feature of the picture should have been an afterthought.—Boston Transcript.

Hard Hit. Lord Fitzfoodle, casting himself on its knees before Araminta, gave utterance to the following: "Oh, that I could snatch a pine from some primeral forest! I would sharpen the end with my penknife, dip it in the molten erater of Vesuvius and write upon the azure wall of heaven in letters of living fire. 'Arazania, I love thee!' "

Theory and Practice.
"Dinglebut has original ideas about family government. He says every home should be a little republic, where universal toleration prevails and every one bas a voice in the government."
"Yes; bis family is managed on that plan. But he and Mrs. Dinglebat have the same old wrangle every day as to who shall be president."

The Foolish Man.

"I see," said the landlady, "that a man in Ohio has got himself into trouble by marrying two women."

"Hull!" growled the bachelor boarder, "Just as though one wife couldn't make trouble enough!"—Chicago News.

Calmass.
Remember on every occasion which leads thee to vexation to apply this principle—that this is not a misfortune, but that to bear it nobly is good fora doctor to lunatics!" High birth is a poor dish on the ta

"I actually had the last word with a woman to-day."

"Amazing! How'd you manage it?"

"It was in the subway—I said
"Madan, have my seat."
