New Process of Making Dynamite is Valuable One

George VanVert, Superintendent at Burton Powder Works, Has Made Imporant Discovery.

Frozen Dynamite can be Exploded

George VanWert, of 63 North Beaver street, superintendent of the Burton Powder works at Covert's station, has just perfected a process by which frozen dynamite can be exploded without the dangerous method of thawing

The process will not only revolutionize the manufacture of this explosive, but will be the means of saving scores of lives that have been sacrificed each year to the deadly practice of of thawing that is necessary when the explosive freezes.

ing that is necessary when the explosive freezes.

The invention, while it is yet kept a secret, is such that its disposal to the various dynamite companies should make Mr. VanWert a rich man.

Dynamite, like liquids, will freeze and before it can be used, it is necessary to put it in an oven or on a stove and thaw it out. The toll collected by death from explosions in doing this has been tremendous. Ever since dynamite has been manufactured, experts in this line, have been trying without success, to manufacture dynamite which might be exploded without danger. The attempts have all failed and the news of Mr. VanWert's success will be important.

By his process dynamite in any state can be exploded. As soon as the idea is patented the secret will be announced.

Until a certain temperature is regis cod.

Until a certain temperature is registered, dynamite is not dangerous, but once the heat overreaches a certain mark, it explodes. The danger of thawing the explosive has always been great, but the deaths that have been caused have resulted mostly from inexperienced foreigners doing the work.

Mr. VanWert has worked on the process for many years and it was only last week that he succeeded in exploding a mass of the frozen stuff. The test was successfully made near the Burton plant.—New Castle Press.

To The Editor:—I hereby announce myself a candidate for Congress in the 21st Pennsylvania district, subject to the decision of the Republican voters at the primaries to be held June 10, 1910. I make this announcement and enter the contest in compliance with the earnest requests of many prominent members of the party in the district and also because I believe that in Congress, if elected, I would be in a position to effectively advocate those principles and measures of good government, which now more than ever, should be embodied in Federal legislation.
