Not all of the flowers should be left for the funeral. It a man dererves well from his friends after death, he deserves equally well when with them, wisely remarks the Titusville Herald. One little flower pinned upon a coat that holds a living man, is worth more than all the banks of roses that ever shed their fragrance over a cold and lifeless form. Likewise it may be said that the kind work, the hearty hand elasp, the assurances of friend, ship, and assistance are of no value when your friends has passed over the divide and down into the valley beyond your sight. Those things are worth while only when he knows and feels and appreciates. feels and appreciates.

Over Forty Years in Harness.

Over Forty Years in Harness. Editor H. H. Mullin of the Emporium PRESS recently rounded out his forty-second year as editor of that paper, and he made it the occasion for soliloquy during which he declared that it he were a Carnegie or a Morgan he would "do something grand" for the community, whereupon the Lock Haven Pa. Express remarks: "He doesn't need to be a Carnegie nor a Morgan either. To have been a conscientious, painstaking, diligent editor for forty-two years, as Mr. Mullin has, is a combination of qualities that amounts to grandness."—The American Press, Buffalo, N. Y.

Letter From Herkie Jones.

MR. H. H. MULLIN, EDITOR PRESS:

Dear Friend: -As we have closed our first term, and are about to enter upon the second, thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how we are getting along. We have had our examinations and Dorr Spencer and I passed with very good averages and hope to to do equally as well this coming term. We like our school and surroundings very well, and as you know, this city is spoken of as the city of schools and churches.

The Valparaiso University is considered one of the largest of its kind, there being about 3500 students here.

I suppose we have seen more snow and ice than we ever saw in Penn'a, being located only twelve miles from Lake Michigan.

The city has two beautiful lakes, paved streets, some beautiful buildings, including a fine court house, and I dare say is as busy a city, of its size, as there

Since we have been here we have had the great honor and pleasure of hearing the following speakers: John H. Hopkins, Bishop of the Episcopal Church, of Chicago; Mr. Winship, of Boston; Mr. Kies, of Hartford, a great educator of this country; S. S. McClure, publisher of McClure's Magazine, and the Governor of West Virginia and several noted educators from that state. We also heard Elijah, one of the greatest musicals ever written.

Dorr and I, for three months, have been considered moss backs, (first term), but we are now distinguished as Pa. Kinsey pigs, (second term) and we mean to and are always ready, to apply our name.

We expect to arrive home about May 30, and we shall be certainly glad to get back among the hills. It seems as though we always find plenty to do and it will be but a little while until we hear the longed for and welcome dinner bell, and that is one class we always make it our aim to be present at. I remain

Your sincere friend, HERKIE B. JONES. Valparaiso, Ind., March 9th, 1910.

Printed Evelopes Barred. Printed Evelopes Barred.

The sale of envelopes by the government with return addresses printed upon them is prohibited by an amendment adopted to the postoffice appropriation bill in the house. Advocates of the prohibition against the sale of printed envelopes claimed that the government had no right to enter into competition with private printers. First "Iceless" Fountain for Emporlum. To Mr. J. B. Meisel belongs the distinction of installing the first iceless sodafountain in Emporium. This apparatus marks a distinct change from the old style fountain and is a recent creation of fountain builders art. There are many towns a great deal latger than Emporium, that this fountain is comparatively new to and Mr. Meisel is the first one within 300 miles of here.

The fountain is 12 feet long and is ornamented with a beautiful onyx draft stand; behind the counter you will find the "works" built of solid White Italian Marbel, the syrup jars are of white porcelain, the fruit flavors are drawn automatically through silver pumps, giving the r equired amount with one action of the plunger.

The lce cream cans are placed in a solid marble compartment and the fruit juices and carbonated water is kept cold from the brine, this being the only part necessary to ice, thus avoiding a great deal of handling and dirt.

The work boards are of marble and solid German silver and have a great advantage over the zinc and copper ones ordinarily used.

The sanitary features has been observed throughout as well as the operation which simplifies the labor in dispensing. More could be said but you must see it to appreciate its usefulness.

The back bar is of mahogany construction with a French plate mirror

The opening will be announced later, when suitable souveniers will be given to patrons.

Mr. Meisel has spent considerable time through the east getting new ideas for serving the newest things in ice cream, etc., and the best shall not be too good for Emporium.

Noah's Anchors.

A story of a pair of anchors is told in the book entitled "To Kairwan the Kairwan is the Mecca of the west. It is a city so sacred that women are allowed to move about in it but very little. One of the interesting sights is the Mosque of Emir Ben Said Bon Muphtah. This mosque, with its six melon shaped domes, is the tomb of a most amusing old Moslem who died about the middle of the last century. He had great power over the bey and managed affairs according to his own pleasure. This Moslem got possession in Tunis of four large anchors which probably belonged to some old men-of-war abandoned on account of stress of ather. The gentleman name was not content with any such prosaic explanation of their origin. By means of the labor of 500 Arabs he had the anchors dragged from Tunis and deposited in front of his house. The transportation took five months. He then declared them to be the anchors by which Noah fastened the ark to Mount Ararat. The relics are now in the mosque of their former owner and are regarded as holy.

His Rules of Golf. A lawyer of considerable prominence took up the game of golf. Some of his friends volunteered chapters of advice, while another presented to the beginner a book of rules. After completing his first round the counselor was asked if he had mastered the rules. The perspiring lawyer realized the sarcasm of the remark, but proved equal to the occasion. "The rules? Oh they are quite simple," he replied "There are two I know of, and to my mind they are the most important You must hit the ball with your club and after you have hit it you must find it, of course, before you hit it again. It will take an honest man sev-eral weeks to master these two rules. After driving the ball you must hit it wherever it lies. Good lies are as important in golf as in fishing. Losing ball costs you two strokes and the price of the ball. Hitting a caddle with the ball is justifiable homicide." -New York Tribune.
