A Defeated Conscience.

The secretary of the Kansas State Historical society tells a story about an early day Kansas justice of the peace who will be nameless here:

"This J. P.," said the secretary, "would marry a couple one day as justice of the peace and divorce them the next as notary public."

One time, as the story ran, a man surrendered himself to this J. P.

"An' phwat's the matter?" asked the judge.

"I killed a man out here on the prairie in a fight," was the reply. "I want to give myself up."

"You did kill him, sor?" asked the J. P.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Who saw you?" asked the J. P.

"Nobody."

"An' nobody saw you kill 'im?"

"No, sir. Just we two were there."

"An' you're shure nobody saw you?" reiterated the J. P.

"Of course I'm sure," was the reply.

"Thin you're discharged," said the J. P., bringing his fist down on the table. "You're discharged. You can't criminate yourself. Fifty dollars, please!"—Kansas City Journal.

Trouble For Hubby.

At a recent tea party where the fare provided could not by any means be termed palatable a guessing game was instituted, and the lady who won it was asked to say what she would have as a prize. She greatly flattered her young hostess by requesting a slice of the cake with which some of them had desperately struggled at tea time.

"Why did you ask for that stuff?" a disappointed and still hungry youth asked her. "You know very well it isn't fit to eat."

"I have a definite purpose in view," answered the young lady, carefully placing the piece of cake where there would be no possibility of her forgetting it. "I mean to make my husband eat it—if necessary, to force it down his throat crumb by crumb—and thus convince him that somewhere in the wide, wide world there is an even worse cook than he imagines his inexperienced young wife to be."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Tipless Curse.

"Talk about the tip evil," said the traveled girl. "Now, last summer, just before I left London, I got cursed awfully. It was like this: I had tipped everybody on the place—the manservants, the maidservants, the slavey, the bootblack. Then just before I got in a cab a man up and threw an old soiled cloth over the wheel to protect my skirts as I got in. Nobody asked him. It didn't protect my skirts, because it was worse than the wheel, so I didn't think it was necessary to tip him."

"I wish you could have seen his face. It scared me. He swore an awful oath. Then he said, 'I honly 'opes the boat goes down wid ye, that's what I 'opes!'"

"I was pretty wabbly all the way over, thinking it might, but the boat didn't go down."—New York Press.

Too Soon For Her.

Apropos of those who never enjoy the luxury of a carriage save when the death of some one makes for a free ride to the cemetery a clergyman told of a little girl standing at Fifth avenue and Thirtieth street, New York. She was a ragged little thing, and she was watching the carriages rolling past with the most wistful blue eyes.

"Well, little one," he said, "would you like to own one of those carriages?"

The blue eyes turned up, and there were tears in their corners.

"I never rode in a kerriage," she said softly. "Me little brudder died afore I was born."

The Midnight Sun.

The midnight sun is not visible south of the polar circle. It is above the horizon throughout the twenty-four hours at Bodo from June 3 to July 7, at Tromso from the 19th of May to the 22d of July and at the North cape from the 12th of May to the 29th of July. There are corresponding periods during December, January and November when the sun is not seen, but the darkness of the winter is by no means so great as might be imagined. The whiteness of the snow and the glimmer of the northern lights make a sort of perpetual twilight.

The Makings in Church.

"I never knew," said the nervous man, "what an inveterate smoker I am until recently in church, my first visit for a long while, I found myself mechanically rolling a cigarette. In fact, I had it rolled and was reaching for a match when I suddenly came to. Suppose I hadn't waked up? Rather awful, what?"—New York Press.

One of Our Pet Phrases.

"Did any of the inhabitants escape with his life?" inquired the man who wants harrowing details.

"I didn't stop to ascertain," answered the man who is harrowingly exact. "It struck me that if anybody escaped without his life there wasn't much use in his escaping anyhow."—Washington Star.

A Frank Answer.

"John Jones," said the magistrate, with severity, "you are charged with habitual drunkenness. What have you to offer in excuse for your offense?"

"Habitual thirst, your honor."

Splendid Scheme.

Mother (of her son)—He has a beautiful voice, and we have had him taught the flute so that he can accompany himself.—Bon Vivant.

A Bill Nye Story.

According to the Bookman, Bill Nye once made a short speech at an authors' dinner in London that was much relished by the bookmen present, including the publishers, at whom it was indirectly aimed.

"Just a year ago," said Nye, "I was walking on the principal street of Indianapolis when I met a man whose appearance showed that he was reduced to the very depths of poverty. His clothes were ragged, his face unshaven, his hair long and matted and his feet unshod. As I passed him a look of recognition came into his eye.

"Nye, old fellow, don't you know me? Don't you know Abel P. Jones, who was your classmate at college?"

"What, Jones! Is it really you? Well, well! What can I do for you?"

"For heaven's sake, help me. I am starving. Lend me half a dollar."

"I felt in my pockets. They were empty. I had no money myself. But a bright thought flashed through my mind.

"Abel, I can't lend you the half dollar. I haven't got it. But, look here, I'll tell you what I will do—I'll let you publish my next book."

"Gentlemen, that was just a year ago, and this month Abel P. Jones sent me an invitation to go to Europe with him in his steam yacht."

Needed an Explanation.

A little boy was often whipped by his father for lying. He usually took it as a matter of course, but on one occasion it seemed to excite him to reflection. After it was all over he stood before his father in a thoughtful way, which attracted that worthy's attention.

"My son," said the father, "what are you thinking about?"

"Father," said the son, "when you was a little boy, did you use to tell lies?"

"No, my son. When I was a little boy I did not tell lies."

"Father," returned the son, "when mother was a little girl, did she use to tell lies?"

"No, my son," replied the father. "When your mother was a little girl she did not tell lies. But why do you ask me these questions?"

"Well," said the little fellow, drawing a long sigh, "it is the most mysterious thing in the world to me that a father who never told lies when he was a little boy and a mother who never told lies when she was a little girl could have a boy that tells as many as I do."

Plaid and Tartan.

Will the southron ever learn that "plaid" is not a synonym for "tartan"? Not long ago an Englishman came into a hosier's establishment in Glasgow and asked a man behind the counter to show him some "plaid ties." The attendant, perhaps wondering what this new and weird article of wearing apparel could be, was completely baffled until explanation elicited the fact that a necktie with a tartan design was required. Dickens, too, is a sinner in this respect, for he makes Bob Sawyer say with regard to whether his political proclivities are "buff" or "blue"—"I'm a kind of plaid at present, a compound of all sorts of colors." Moreover, an English dictionary gives an adjectival meaning of "plaid" as "colored in squares." I've never heard such use in Scotland. Has any one else?—Scottish Field.

Hall Caine's Moonshine.

Authors and artists who have become well known by means of making the moon dance in the wrong houses of heaven are numerous, but we never expected Hall Caine to join the group. Yet in "The Scapegoat," chapter 23, on Israel's return from prison after evenfall, we find that "with a wave of his hand he was gone into the darkness. It was a wonderful night. The moon, which was in its first quarter, was still low in the east."

It was indeed a wonderful night. On no other night since the creation has the moon in its first quarter ever been seen low in the east.—London Star.

Won't Stay Retained.

This notice appears on a Flushing steambath: "Passengers should obtain a receipt for all provisions taken on board this boat and are requested to retain the same."

Easier said than done. It reminds us of the old limerick:

There was a young man of Ostend
Who said he'd hold out till the end,
But when halfway over
From Ostend to Dover
He did what he didn't intend.
—London Globe.

His Definition.

At a London board school the teacher had explained to the children the meaning of the word "ability." "Now, children," she went on, "what word would express the opposite to ability?"

A sharp faced little boy at the end of the end form bobbed up his head and exclaimed, "Please, teacher, nobility!"—Work and Play.

Jack Knew.

On coming home from the office the father met Jack and Dick.

"What have you been doing today, boys?" he questioned.

"Fightin'," replied Dick.

"Fightin', eh? Who licked?"

"Mamma did," answered Jack.—Exchange.

In Keeping.

Medium—The spirits won't rap unless you write out your request on paper. Patron—Any special kind of paper? Medium—Certainly—wrapping paper.—St. Louis Star.

Difficulties are things that show what men are.—Epictetus.
