Hon. Chas. F. Barclay of Pennsylvania.

"A Representative in Congress who demonstrates his value as a careful and consistent legislator in the interest of the country at large and his usefulness to the citizens of his district and state, is a man who should be continued as a representative by his constituents as long as his worth as such remains in evidence."

This was a saying of Hon. Tom Reed of Maine, while he was speaker of the House of Representatives. He contended that it was unsafe and a wrong proposition to keep at home a tried, true legislator and send in his stead an untried, inexperienced man.

The great State of Pennsylvania has no more able and efficient representative in the House than Hon. Charles Frederick Barclay of the twenty-first district. He has been through the legislative furnace and has come out pure gold. He is a ready and convincing speaker, a hustling committee worker and is known among his colleagues as a veritable encyclopedia of the great questions that have come before Congress and others that are in prospect.

Newspaper men at the Nation's Capital—those keen observers of men and events, who analyze the great questions of the hour and diagnose the motives of the men who make our laws, speak in high praise of Mr. Barclay and his work in Congress. One of them remarked recently,

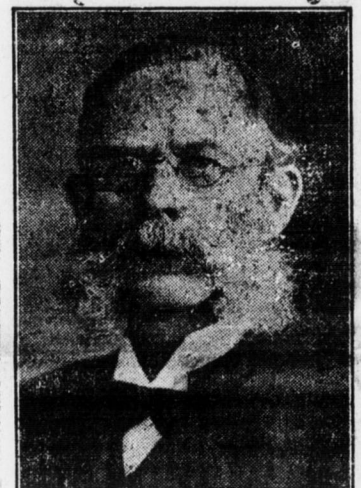

"A failure to elect Hon. Chas. F. Barclay would be in the nature of a disaster to his country and a catastrophe to his State and district. He is one of the men in the House who has 'made good.'"

The voters of the twenty-first district of Pennsylvania are indeed fortunate in having such a sterling man to represent them with dignity and ability in the galaxy of statesmen in the big white capital at Washington. He was elected to the sixtieth and sixty-first congresses, and we believe the good judgement of his constituents will impel them to return him to the sixty-second congress beyond the peradventure of a doubt. The public men who know Representative Barclay intimately and well will swear by him. He is their ideal of the real statesman.

In the Civil War Mr. Barclay served with that noted Pennsylvania command, the second "Bucktails," which won glory for itself and the Keystone State on many hard-fought and sanguinary battle-fields. He began his military service as a private but came out of the conflict wearing the bars of a captain, earned by brave and distinguished service in the face of the enemy. Fellow-veterans of the G. A. R. declare that there was no more brave and daring soldier in the Union army than Capt. Charley Barclay.

His regiment was the 149th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and he was a member of Company K. He was only mustered out of service when

General Lee surrendered at Appomattox, and the dove of peace again perched upon the banner of this glorious country, which he had so ably helped to save from dismemberment and perhaps final destruction.

As in war Capt. Barclay was a valiant soldier, so in peace he is a man of the hour and a legislator whose accomplishments in Congress are both numerous and valuable to his country and his State.

Captain Barclay is a Republican and his home is in Sinnamahoning, Pa. He was born May, 9, 1844, at Owego, N. Y., and taken to Pennsylvania by his parents when he was but a year of age. His early education was gained at the Painted Post High School and the Coudersport Academy. He became a school teacher but relinquished that calling for the more patriotic and sacrificing one of soldier, entering the Union Army to go to the front in the defense of his country and its flag.

At the close of the war he entered Belfast Seminary, New York, and subsequently took up the study of law at the University of Michigan. Later, with an elder brother, he formed the firm of Barclay Brothers, lumber dealers, at Sinnamahoning and carried on an extensive trade.

Hon. Charles Frederick Barclay was married to Miss Margaret A. L. Brooks, daughter of John Brooks of Sinnamahoning, Pa., August 22, 1872.

He was a Presidential elector in 1892, and an alternate delegate-at-large in 1900, and as such voted in the Republican National Convention that year.

His entire lifetime has been marked by consistent and worthy effort. He is made of the stuff from which great men are moulded and his host of friends in Washington predict that he will be awarded the well-earned honor of serving many years yet in Congress, where he has made his mark—and a big, broad mark of merit at that.—"Broadbats and Bouquets."

Sophomores Entertain.

The Parish House, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, at this place, was the scene of a happy assemblage last Friday evening, when the Sophomores of the High School entertained the Seniors and Juniors. The Parish House was tastefully and beautifully decorated for the happy occasion. The evening was pleasantly spent in contests and other amusements, after which refreshments were served. The members of the Sophomore Class are very popular with their fellow students and are right there in the line of entertaining. All present report a fine time.

Sunday Afternoon Accident.

Last Sunday afternoon, while a party was returning to Emporium from Moore Hill, an accident occurred which might have been most serious. The party was composed of the Rev. F. B. Schriener, pastor of the Free Methodist church of this place, his wife and son, Master Oliver, Rev. Roy L. Brown, of St. Marys, and another gentleman of Renovo. The party had driven to Moore Hill and as they were returning to town, and were passing the Card residence, the stay-bolt which hold the tongue to the axle of the carriage suddenly broke and dropped to the ground, striking the feet of the horse on the right hand side and a sudden swerving of the wheel caused the horse on the left hand side to jump. After going the length of about thirty paces the carriage was thrown on the bank, but owing to the curtains on the carriage being closed it saved the occupants from being thrown to the ground. The Rev. Mr. Brown was driving and it was through his careful handling of the team that a serious accident was averted. When the horses broke loose from the carriage Mr. Brown was dragged over the dash board, and received many bruises, which are very painful. The runaway horses were caught near the residence of Mr. Amos Horning, by Mr. Horning and Mr. Willingham, of Port Allegany, who was his guest at that time. After procuring a horse and buggy, Rev. Mr. Schriener and Rev. Brown brought the horses to town, arriving here at midnight. It certainly was a narrow escape, for if the accident had happened along the road a little further down hill, the entire party would have been thrown down over the embankment, and probably would have received serious injuries.

Busy at Work.

A. H. Panting was a PRESS business caller Monday evening. "Heck," as he is familiarly called, is hustling work all along the line and informs us that he is remodeling A. A. McDonald's Fifth street residence—putting on a new roof and about ready to add a large veranda 17x37, large enough to entertain a good size party. We are glad to note our sedate citizen, is making his residence as attractive as money will do.

Lost While Fishing.

A seven year old boy, named Earl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Adams, of Kane, has been lost in the woods near Kane, since last Saturday. The boy had been fishing in company with three other boys, and disappeared. We have not learned if the lad had been located, although blood hounds were put on his track. Parents should not allow children to go fishing unless accompanied by parents. It is feared the boy was kidnapped.
