New Industry Possible for Emporium.

An eastern firm are desirous of locating a shirt factory in Emporium, provided they are convinced the necessary number of girls, ladies or boys can be secured to operate sewing machines, as well as other necessary machinery.

All persons who are willing to tender their services are requested to sign their names on a card. Ladies over 30 need not add their ages, but all girls and boys must do so. Send your names to the Press.

Miss MacDonald Married.

Miss Florence J. MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. MacDonald, of Driftwood, was united in marriage on Wednesday morning, to Mr. John V. Hackett, also of Driftwood, in St. James Catholic Church, the Rev. Father McAviney officiating. Miss MacDonald has many friends at this place who extend heartiest congratulations to the happy couple.

Well Received.

Chas. E. Patton, of Curwensville, Clearfield county, visited the Republican voters of this county during the past week, looking over his political fences, being a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress. He was well received by our citizens, being an honorable member of an old and honored Republican family. Clearfield is entitled to the nomination and we hope and expect the voters of the district will make no mistake but vote and work for the nomination of Mr. Patton. We sincerely hope every Republican will attend the Primaries next Saturday and mark an X after Mr. Patton's name.

Moved to Washington.

John Clare and family, formerly residents of Emporium, but for several years residing at Westboro, Wis., have moved to South Bend, Washington. Mr. Clare sends a post-card requesting his Press forwarded, which we will gladly do, and at the same time wishing himself and family prosperity in Washington.

Visits Emporium.

Mr. J. M. Cornwell, of Williamsport, representing the Cornwell Mfg. Co., shirt manufacturers, transacted business in Emporium on Monday and while in town called on the Press. Thirty years ago Mr. Cornwell was a resident of this county, being employed by Frances Deloy on Hunts, Run and this is his first visit here in twenty years. He is very favorably impressed with our town and met a number of our citizens.

The Hospital Question.

Emporium, Pa., May 27, 1910.

Editor Press:

MY DEAR SIR:

Appropos to the matter of a hospital in Emporium, which is being variously discussed through the town, I wish to present the following through the columns of your paper:—There is a difference between a "kicker" and a "knocker." The former is one who protests, and he serves by putting on the brakes, and helping to bring us to a more conservative mental attitude. A "kicker" is needed in every community, to either wake up people on certain things, or to off-set the influence of the over-zealous reformer or promoter. On the other hand there is no place for a "knocker." He is a public nuisance, and is as universally despised as are the dandelions on our lawns. This little write-up concerning a hospital in Emporium was suggested by the following "scrap" of a conversation accidentally over-heard on the street:

"Well if anything happens to any one, they send him away anyhow."

"Yes, I admit; but that is because the people have the hospital idea."

"Well, if we had a hospital here the doctors in this town couldn't take care of the cases sent there."

This brief dialogue demonstrates one of the parties to be a "knocker" and the other a conservator. The "knocker's" remarks I wish to resent. The conservator's remark is unfortunately too true. The doctors of this town are fully as competent as those of any town in the State. They have performed about all the surgical operations to be performed outside of those rare ones requiring the especial skill of the specialist. These various operations have been done in a quiet, dignified manner in the homes of the patients, and without ostentation, blare of trumpets, or prattle of tongues. What is more, they have been successful, not in the sense that the operation was completed, but in that the patient recovered, and was restored to normal health. There has been no greater death rate attending them any of than in any of the best hospitals. They have also cared for patients, after their return home, who had been operated on by specialists, and carried them safely through their dangers, back to health.

For general sickness, the doctors of this community can challenge the production of better results from anywhere, than have followed their efforts. In all cases the doctors' faith has been that their work would speak for itself. This is often a wise policy. Sometimes, however, a mistaken one. Silence is often misconstrued to the detriment of the one under discussion. There is a time to speak, and a time to refrain from speaking, "says Holy Writ." The two men conducting the conversation above referred to are influential men in the community, and it seemed to the writer to be "a time to speak." If the "knocker" in this conversation represented the thought of the community, it is a misrepresentation needing correction; and the argument for withholding support to a hospital for such reason is a fallacious one, and should be summarily dismissed. It is surprising that any one, who is supposed to think fairly, should offer such an argument, and more so that he should wittingly make such a statement.

There can be no doubt that the institution of a hospital in a well organized community of sufficient size would many times be a desirable convenience. There are often individuals in a place, away from their homes, who, when taken sick or being injured have no place to which they can be taken and cared for other than their boarding place and are not always able there to obtain proper nursing and care. To such, the hospital would not only be a convenience, but a blessing. Even to those who have homes in the community, it would sometimes be a case that care, attention and treatment could be better and more cheaply obtained in the hospital than in their own home.

That a hospital would be a convenience and benefit to the doctors of a place is not a fact. A short time ago a doctor from a neighboring town told the writer that, since the establishment of a hospital in their county, he did three times as much work as before but made less money.

It has become a notorious fact that many persons in the vicinity of every hospital, who are well able to pay for medical attendance, will, in spite of the most watchful care of its managers, seek, and obtain free treatment and free medicine. Persons, who, in everything else would disdain doing an unworthy or unmanly act, and scorn to be classed as a "beat," seem to think that such action towards a hospital is perfectly legitimate and unquestionable.

No person in our community would be more pleased to have a hospital here for the accommodation of those who really need one than the writer, nor would any one take more pride in a well equipped institution of this character, and, if the circumstances and conditions are ripe for its establishment, no one would be more willing, according to ability, to lend a helping hand than he. It is, however, well to "look before we leap." The struggles and trials incident to the establishment of the Williamsport hospital, some years ago, a city of then 12,000 inhabitants, are still fresh in the memories of those familiar with its history. There was a constant and never ceasing call for help, and there were frequent times when the nurses and patients did not have sufficient food of proper quality to support them in their work, or to renew their bodily vigor during convalescence. Those unfamiliar with the details of the maintenance of an institution of this kind can hardly form an adequate estimate of the amount of expense connected therewith. There is a call for money at every turn.

Since it was difficult to secure proper support in a city of 12,000 inhabitants what ought we to expect in a town the size of ours? This should be well considered.

There is a disposition on the part of those in authority at Harrisburg to reduce the State appropriations to small institutions of this kind, and in some instances it has been withheld entirely. The support from this source is always uncertain, and should not be too much relied upon. It is rare for municipal hospitals to be self-supporting even in the most favorable localities.

Four people are able, ready and willing to respond liberally to the frequent calls for money and supplies that will be made upon them, and if there should be a sufficient amount of money pledged conditionally by reliable parties to supply all deficiencies in its adequate support, after it has been built and equipped, before finally determining to proceed with the project, then we want a hospital. Otherwise we would be compelled to suffer the ignominy of defeated purpose, and the opprobrium of obtaining an institution of a magnitude beyond our ability to maintain.

So far as the doctors of the town are concerned, I warrant they will here, as they always have done, do their duty faithfully and well.

Respectfully,
R. P. HEILMAN, M. D.

Primary Election Officers.

The attention of the Uniform Primaries election officers is called to the fact that they cannot give, to any voter, a ballot of the opposite party unless he swears "that at the last preceding election he voted for a majority of the candidates of the party he calls for a ballot of." Thus it will be seen that the weak candidate cannot be voted for by the voter who does not intend to support that person at the general election. Both political parties should see to it that this law is enforced and stop the abuse of the law. The attention of every Republican committeeman is called to this notice.

Farewell Reception.

The Vestry of Emmanuel Episcopal Church tendered a farewell reception to the Rector, the Rev. J. M. Robertson, on Wednesday evening. The ladies of the church served refreshments. About seventy-five were present. Rev. Robertson will leave for his home at Monticello, N. Y., possibly on Saturday.

Visited Olean.

The following Emporiumites visited Olean Monday and witnessed the conferring of the Fourth Degree of the Knights of Columbus. Messrs. James Haley, P. J. Burke, James Kearney, Robert Green and W. A. Flynn. Mrs. James Kearney also visited at Olean the same day.

Any person, either of layman order or of scientific training, that intimates that the very best in drugs and chemicals cannot be had at Taggart's, is but making a statement that contains only falsehood.

Bars Must be Closed.

On Saturday next, Primary Election, the sale of liquor is prohibited between the hours of one and nine, p. m.

Our old friend Douglas McCool, of Sinnamahoning was in Emporium on Saturday evening and called at the Press for a social chat with ye editor. Mr. McCool is foreman of the mixing room of the Sinnamahoning Powder Co., a careful man, as well as good citizen. Grove township does not contain a better citizen than Douglas McCool.

Joseph Farrell returned to his home at this place, this morning, from Williamsport, having completed a full business course in the Williamsport Commercial College.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

All Announcements under this head must be signed by the candidate and paid in advance to insure publication.

FOR CONGRESS.

Editor Press:—
You are authorized to announce my name as a candidate for Congress, for the 21st Congressional District, composed of the counties of Clearfield, McKean, Centre and Cameron, subject to the Rules of the Republican Party.—Primary Election, June 4th, 1910.
Yours truly,
CHAS. E. PATTON.
Curwensville, Clearfield Co., Pa.,
November 30th, 1909.—t. p.

To The Editor:—I hereby announce myself a candidate for Congress in the 21st Pennsylvania district, subject to the decision of the Republican voters at the primaries to be held June 10, 1910. I make this announcement and enter the contest in compliance with the earnest requests of many prominent members of the party in the district and also because I believe that in Congress, if elected, I would be in a position to effectively advocate those principles and measures of good government, which now more than ever, should be embodied in Federal legislation. I believe in clean politics and progressive Roosevelt policies. And to the end that I may serve their best interests, I ask the support of the Republicans of this district.
LEWIS EMERY, JR.
Bradford, Pa., March 15, 1910.

Secured Position.

Miss Rachael, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Day, of this place, who has been taking a course in chiropody and the electric needle, has completed her studies and left New York City last Saturday for Schneckstadt, N. Y., where she has accepted a position in the parlors of her aunt, Mrs. Frank Turner, nee Miss Fannie Day. The Press wishes Miss Day success in her chosen profession.

"St. Elmo" Saturday Night.

The stirring melo-drama "St. Elmo" will be produced by Hoyt's Comedy Co., at their tent Saturday night. Miss Isabella Gould who recently joined the company will be seen as "Edna." This play has caused more comment that anyone recently produced on the American stage. It is a beautiful production. Be sure and see it Saturday night.

Sale Continued.

The wonderful bargain sale that is being conducted by Mrs. E. S. Copper-smith will be continued until further notice. You should call and be convinced that the goods are high-class and the prices low.
