Pottery and Secrecy. In the royal manufactory of pottery at Meissen, Saxony, the work was for many years carried on with the utmost secrecy to prevent the process from becoming known elsewhere.

Her Diamond Necklace. Brown is a very careful man. He is superlatively careful. So careful is he that he has insured his insurance money.

Now, Brown has a wife. Wives have to be given birthday presents, and on his wife's first birthday after their marriage he gave her a beautiful diamond necklace.

He has just missed giving his wife a birthday present for the ninth successive year. As to when greed will conquer pride and his wife will ask for another birthday present, we shall have to wait and see.—Pearson's.

The Salt Charm Failed. Some three years before the Franco-German war broke out Count Seckendorff accompanied King William I. on his visit to Napoleon III.

Why Not Pass the Plate? They ought to pass the plate at church weddings. It comes natural to do it in church, and to do so would add a pretty and useful employment to the duties of the ushers.

He Saved the Patent Office. When in the war of 1812 the British, who had taken Washington, trained their guns upon the patent office, Dr. Thornton, throwing himself directly before the guns, cried:

The Harm of Damp Houses. It is dangerous to health and even to life in a damp, moldy house or one built over a moldy cellar.

Why He Applauded. "Are you fond of music?" asked a stranger of the young man at the concert who was applauding vigorously after a pretty girl had sung a song in a very painful way.

Out of Her Reach. "Does your heart ever reach out for the unattainable?" "No, but my hands do when my husband is not at home.

More Appropriate. "I teach my parrot only short words." "Do you? Now, I should think that parrots were better adapted to learning polysyllables."

Clyde Fitch's Joke. "Clyde Fitch was an indefatigable worker," said an actor who has played in many of the Fitch comedies.

"What are you doing now?" asked Smith. "I am in my doctor's hands," replied Fitch. "He tells me I'm in a bad way and has absolutely forbidden me to do any brain work."

"That's tough," said Smith. "How do you manage to put in the time?" "Oh, I'm writing the libretto of a musical comedy," replied Fitch, with one of his cynical smiles.—New York Times

Hair Monstrosities. French theater managers in the eighteenth century had worse evils than picture hats to contend against. Marie Antoinette, who was short even according to French standards, set the fashion of high coiffures, and ultra-fashionable women prided themselves on measuring four feet from their chins to the tops of their heads.

Yet He Meant Well. Just as the train was leaving the Fifty-eighth street elevated station a man who had got off there hurried along the platform and spoke to a passenger sitting by an open window in the smoking car.

"Thanks!" "Hey, there! What are you doing that for?" demanded the wrathful, red faced man sitting next to him. "Why, he?" "You double dyed idiot, that package belonged to me! It was $15 worth of laces and ribbons I was taking home to my wife!"

"All Things Come." The magnate looked up impatiently from his work. "Well, my good man," he snapped at the diffident rural person who stood twirling his rusty hat, "what can I do for you?"

Perfumes in Ancient Days. Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts.

Making a Lawn. On his English tour an American was admiring the velvety smoothness of a certain sward, and, being possessed of land and an overpowering confidence that with money all things are possible, he asked the head gardener how to produce such a lawn.

Our Friends. If we choose our friends for what they are, not for what they have, and if we deserve so great a blessing, then they will be always with us, preserved in absence and even after death, in the amber of memory.—Cicero.

Couldn't Talk. Do Style—You say that loving pair of deaf mutes were sitting in the parlor and didn't carry on a conversation? Gumbusta—They couldn't, for they were holding hands.—New York Press.

I never knew an early rising, hard working, prudent man, careful of his earnings and strictly honest, who complained of bad luck.—Addison.

His Athletic Neighbor. A young man inmate of a boarding house had been disturbed night after night by the boarder in the next room doing things with a punching bag he'd rigged up in the room some way.

"I was so startled," replied he, "that I asked what afterward seemed to me the most natural request I could have made. I asked her if she'd lend me a couple of matches."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Persistency of Colds. Why is it that we are so heavily subject to colds? Other epidemic diseases—measles, typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria—may get hold on us once and there is an end; it is not usual to have any of them twice.

The Festive Codfish. A correspondent of the New York Post says that the codfish frequents "the tablelands of the sea." The codfish no doubt does this to secure as nearly as possible a dry, bracing atmosphere.

A High Priced Fricassee. Lord Alvanley, a noted wit and high liver in England a hundred years or so ago, insisted on having an apple tart on his dinner table every day throughout the year.

Our Eccentric Phrases. Why do we always talk of putting on a coat and vest? Who puts on a coat before a vest? We also say putting on shoes and stockings.

An Odd Epitaph. The following epitaph is to be found in a cemetery within seven miles of New York's city hall:

In the Game. "I am in the hands of my friends," said the political sidestepper. "Yes," replied the harsh critic, "and every time your friends look over their hands they seem impatient for a new deal."—Washington Star.

The Proper Tree. Curious Charley—Do nuts grow on trees, father? Father—They do, my son. Curious Charley—Then what tree does the doughnut grow on? Father—The "pan-tree," my son.—Purple Cow.

Never Good. Fogg—That's a bad cold you have, old man. Fenderson—Did you ever hear of a good cold, you idiot?—Boston Transcript.

A fool's heart is in his tongue, but a wise man's tongue is in his heart.—Quarles.

Latest Popular Music. Miss May Gould, teacher of piano fort has received a full line of the latest and most popular sheet music.
