Mourning Apparel

THE death of England's king throws nearly all the courts of Europe into mourning and in consequence the subjects of mourning apparel and mourning etiquette are up for consideration more generally than for many years. Customs change slowly, especially those which rule in matters of greatest moment. Rules of etiquette governing in the events of death, marriage, births and social functions of high importance have all been carefully thought out and are the crystallized expressions of consideration for others. They are formulated from the conduct of those whose good taste and keen intuitions put them in position to set examples. Much latitude is allowed individual taste in the matter of mourning apparel. Some people deary any special dress for those in mourning, on the ground that we should not divide our sorrows with others. But the great majority feel that the assumption of mourning attire is imperative as a sign of respect to the dead or to his family as well as an outward token of a sense of loss. To ignore a death seems to cast a slight upon the worth of the departed soul; therefore, an increasing number of persons in the best social circles assume what is called "complimentary mourning."

This is either a badge of mourning of some sort, or the wearing of black for a short term. This is a different matter from the mourning apparel assumed by members of a family. Complimentary mourning does not involve the restrictions which that of relatives assumes. Certain fabrics are chosen for those in mourning. These are crape, silk genadine, nuns-veiling, bombazine, net, uncut velvet, crepe-de-chine, mourning silks, felt, voile and other fabrics of a jet black hue and soft luster or dull finish. Crape is recognized as the correct fabric for first mourning everywhere, and is in fact the insignia of mourning. Crape is used as a finish, or decoration, on other fabrics, and sometimes entire garments are made of it. It is a beautiful fabric made of silk and having diagonal rib or crinkle across the surface. It is made in both dull and silky luster; the dull finish is considered the more elegant. Recently it is much used in dress accessories, such as collars, cuffs and bands, and in stoles and muffs, for those in deep mourning. Silk grenadine is very generally worn in this country for veils, as shown in Fig. 1. It is light in weight, supple and durable. It is used in the open weaves for face veils and is often bordered. For summer, large mesh silk veils, bordered with a fold of crape, are worn, with millinery made of or trimmed with these materials, the crape nearly always appearing in a flat border or fold. English manufacturers have succeeded in waterproofing these fabrics so that rain or moisture does them no harm.

The transition from deep mourning to colors is accomplished gradually. After a certain period of time, more or less long at the discretion of the wearer, the mourning veil is discarded; next crape is eliminated. The attire is next all black, but not necessarily of recognized mourning fabrics. After black, gray, the cold lavenders and white are worn. White may be worn with black accessories for mourning, and is correct, but is more often assumed for what is called "second mourning," that is, in the period of transition from mourning to colors.

There is nothing so dignified and nothing more elegant than a well-chosen mourning costume. In choosing models or patterns for making mourning gowns or hats (or any garment) plain, neat and elegant designs are correct. Nothing "fussy" is admissible. No extremes of the mode are to be considered. For millinery neither very large or very small hats, but those in shapes which are always worn should be selected. Exquisite workmanship must characterize the work of both milliner and dressmaker. Fortunately the regular mourning fabrics, crape, bombazine and nuns veiling, all are adapted to the sort of work required.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

FOR YOUNG LADY.

This is a very smart frock suitable to be made in cashmere, silk and wool crepon, or any fine woolen. The corselet bodice and side of skirt are cut in one to below hips; the front is a panel to foot; the lower part of side and back of skirt is plaited; braiding forms the trimming on skirt and front of bodice, a simple border being worked at edge of the shoulder straps. The underslip is of piece lace.

Materials required: 6 yards 48 inches wide, 2 yards 18 inches wide for underslip.

Like a Rose.

The rosette on a plain sailor hat gives all the richness necessary. Folded like a rose into a round shape, a bias piece of Persian silk has been so manipulated that its final effect would suggest both expense and art.

USEFUL FOR THE TRAVELER

Pin Case An Almost Indispensable Requisite When One Is on a Journey.

A new form of the well-known pin case for traveling is being shown just now that makes acceptable prizes or a present for European travelers.

The case is formed like a wallet with a flap at the side that buttons over with a patent clasp. This is made of cardboard covered first with cotton batting, then with cretonne, fancy brocades, ribbons or with an embroidered linen case.

Inside there is a single leaf adjusted to back of case like the page of a book. This is covered on both sides with white elderdown or flannel, which is carried over to line the sides of case as well.

In this lining is stuck on the outer cast safety pins in all sizes and colors. On both sides of the inner page are arranged big headed pins in various sizes and color. These can form fancy borders or a star figure below and a border or other artistic grouping.

These cases may be made in any convenient size; one four by five inches gives plenty of space.

Silk Seams.

The making of a silk blouse is rendered all the more difficult, where the home dressmaker is concerned, by the fact that the seam to be flat must be ironed, while a hot iron is only too apt to mark the silk indelibly. By far the best course to pursue is that of passing each seam, open or closed, over the upturned edge of a warm iron. With both hands the seam should be pulled taut and slowly passed over the iron, care being taken to avoid touching more than the seam with the point or side and thereby marking the material underneath.

About Veils.

When money is scarce there seems nothing that runs away with one's money so fast as veils. Their life is a very short-lived one and often a misadventure ruins them as soon as bought. Yet we must wear them if we want to look smart, and to buy cheap ones is more than useless, as they never look well from the day they are bought. The truest economy is to buy fine net by the yard, says the Woman's Life. It cuts to better advantage, you get four veils for the price of one, and it is of a far better quality and lasts longer than if you buy veiling pure and simple.

The KITCHEN CABINET

LET us be content to work. To do the thing we can, and not presume to fret because it's little."

—E. B. Browning.

The Woman With a Grievance.

We all know her and have had her griefs and worries loaded on to an already burdened back. It certainly is a comfort to some people to divide their discomforts by sharing them and a normal person never will refuse to take the recital of trials and give in return a full measure of sympathy; but there are people who should not be sympathized with, it is the worst possible thing for them. What they need is a good dose of cold facts and be made to realize that they are not of all women the most miserable. Let them "count their mercies, name them one by one," and they will find many silver sides to their clouds.

She who comes with tales of her husband, his faults, failings and shortcomings, is the one who raises the ire of the high-minded woman. Would she enjoy the idea of knowing that her husband canvassed their private affairs with his friends as they met? She would be deeply hurt and indignant, and yet she does the same thing herself. The golden rule must be worked both ways or it is of little value in the home. One person cannot do all the thoughtful, kind things without making others selfish. Selfishness is a many-sided evil. Some of the most self-denying people are the most selfish, for they enjoy doing the things for others that they should be taught to do for themselves.

How often a mother teaches the child the very evil she would shield it from, because of her deep love, which is not quite deep enough to wound the child sometimes for his own good.

She cannot bear to see it suffer, yet she builds for a future suffering immeasurably greater.

Unpopular Portions of Meat.

The livers of calves, cooked with bacon, are liked by many; but there seems to be a prejudice against the brains and kidneys as food. The French cook prepares many nice dishes from these portions.

In these days of high prices, every edible part of the meat should be used.

Thomas Hood's Oversight.

Thomas Hood gave to literature the unending "Song of the Shirt," but he might have written an even sadder song, that of the washtub. Easy Task laundry soap was unknown in his day. It is only for the last quarter century that it has been relieving women of backaches and bruised hands. It takes the dirt out of or off of anything—actually does most of the work itself. Your grocer has it.

According to Her Count.

"Yes," said the young wife; "Philip and I have lived together a whole year, and we've never had the slightest quarrel."

"What are you talking about! You and Philip were married seven years ago!"

"To be sure we were, but you forget that he's a traveling salesman."

A Bride's Salad.

Peel an average sized apple, cut in dice and mix with one-half the quantity of pineapple and about a tablespoonful of pecan or hickory nuts. Arrange lettuce on plates and heap the salad mixture on the lettuce. Lay on a few strips of fresh cocoanut cut thin. Cover with whipped cream and add a strawberry or two, or a cherry.

For a pot roast, one may buy a small piece of meat, although it is never quite as nice as a larger one. A delicious flavor will be added to the roast if a half pound of prunes are cooked with the meat. They may then be pickled and served with the meat.

For an emergency dessert when mother drops in to dinner, take stale cake, cut in squares and toast, spread each square with preserves, put two together and cover with sweetened whipped cream.

Some Dishes a Little Unusual.

A nice dinner dish, or one suitable for luncheon, is candelon of veal. To prepare it, chop together one-half pound of cold, cooked veal, and the same amount of boiled ham. Add one tablespoonful of grated lemon peel, one-half teaspoonful of mace, salt and pepper to taste, and two well beaten eggs. Add cream enough to mold it into a loaf; dust with flour; brush with egg and serve.

Stuffed Potato Croquettes.

Prepare a potato mixture of one and one-half cups, one tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper; form into croquettes, make an opening in the end and fill with chopped green pepper that has been sauted in a little butter. Add a yolk of egg and just sufficient milk to the croquette to make it easy to mold.

Parsons Sponge.

Line a glass dish with stale cake cut in slices, or with lady fingers. Sprinkle thickly with finely chopped nuts, add a few dates and raisins, cut fine, and over this pour a boiled custard, garnishing with the beaten whites of egg poached by spoonfuls in hot milk. Cubes of jelly add to the beauty of the dish.

Wrong Diagnosis.

A drummer was taken ill suddenly. He went to see a physician of considerable standing, and the following conversation ensued: "I feel very sick," declared the drummer. "What's the trouble?" asked the physician. "Severe pain in my side," "Humph," said the doctor slowly, "I think you have appendicitis." "You have made a mistake, doctor," replied the salesman. "I'm not a millionaire, just a plain drummer." "Well, I guess you just have the cramps, then," replied the indignant personage. "Five dollars, please."
