Ready For the Next One. A generous and brave but very eccentric Virginia planter named H. B. Carter, who had once been an officer in the United States navy, had a hand to hand battle at fifteen o'clock one day with his plantation overseer and came off second best. He therefore challenged the overseer to a formal duel, but the latter declined on the ground that, being a husband and father, he was under obligation not to risk leaving his family destitute. Carter at once removed that objection by settling upon the family a comfortable annuity. Then everything was got ready for the fight, but just as the two men faced each other the sheriff arrived on the scene, took them into custody and had them bound over to keep the peace. Mr. Carter did not, however, change the deed of gift with which he had provided for the overseer's family, remarking that he might wish some time to resume the interrupted fight and hence would rather keep everything in readiness for prompt action.—New York Post.

Consul King David. This amusing anecdote of Lamartine is related by the Baroness Boudie in her volume of letters. Shortly after the revolution of February he wrote on the blank leaves of his pocketbook the names of his proteges and sent the list to be provided with places immediately. Previously, however, it seems, he had scribbled "David" on the page, and the head of the cabinet appointed the said David consul at Bremen. The postulant, however, never came forward, and though the post did not like being disturbed, M. Hetzel was obliged to ask who was the David on his list.

"He who danced before the ark," was the answer. "Oh, dear! I have gazetted him to Bremen!" "How very singular! I meant him for a subject for meditation, not for nomination. But you can cancel it." The minister registered the change, but few knew that the last consul appointed to Bremen was King David!

Language of Switzerland. It is a curious fact that the people most celebrated for love of country should in a manner be without a language—that is, a mother tongue. The Swiss have three official languages—German, French and Italian. About three-fourths of the population of the mountain confederation speak German, while the remainder divide four other languages among them, chiefly French and Italian, these languages being found, as a rule, in districts in close proximity to the countries where in those languages are the principal tongue. In Switzerland documents and notices are printed in both the French and German languages. In the national assembly members deliver their speeches in either French or German, for nearly all members understand both tongues. The decrees and proclamations of the president are translated by an official interpreter and furnished to the press in both languages.—New York Press.

Her Fault. The teacher in charge of the primary department at a school in West Philadelphia was talking the other day about her work and her pupils. "They are dear youngsters," she said, "but they sometimes make curious remarks. Several times I have had occasion to reprove a little boy who isn't bad, but who is very mischievous and annoying. He is always getting into trouble and making a disturbance. "One day he had been more than usually uproarious, and I was very tired. Instead of scolding or punishing him I began in rather an exasperated tone to talk to him. "Tom, I said, 'I'm afraid I'm never going to meet you in heaven.' "He looked up with the most shocked face. 'Why, teacher,' he said, 'isn't that just too bad? What have you done?'—Philadelphia Times.

A Modest Request. An impeccably dressed gentleman the other day when walking along P'ceddilly felt a movement in his pocket and, clapping his hand thereto, seized the wrist of the thief. He drew forth the erring member, and looking at it with supreme disgust, he released it, saying, with a grimace of disgust, "For heaven's sake, my good man, go and wash your hands before you put them in a gentleman's pocket again!"—London Tatler.

Made Him Feel Old. "What's the matter?" "Oh, nothing much." "But you look as if you had something serious on your mind." "Well, if you insist on knowing, a boy who was named after me has just become engaged to be married. How time flies!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Dollar Mark. "Have you seen the Washington monument?" "Yes," replied the New Yorker. "It's a pretty tall building, but what's the good of it without any offices for rent?"—Washington Star.

Economy. Husband—Excuse me, dear, but don't you cook much more for dinner than we can use?—Wife—Of course! If I didn't how could I economize by utilizing leftover dishes?—Cleveland Leader.

Not New. "Electricity isn't a modern discovery. It is as old as the flood." "How do you make that out?" "Why, didn't Noah have to have ark lights?"

Better a blush in the face than a blot in the heart.—Cervantes.

Why the Wind Waits. In his book on "The Picturesque St. Lawrence" Clifton Johnson tells of the curious superstition of Montreal which explains why the wind is at ways blowing at the point where St. Sulpice and Notre Dame streets meet close by the towering spire. It seems that one day, while the church was in process of building, the Wind and the Devil were talking down Notre Dame street, and the Devil after regarding with a look of disapproval the ground on which the new edifice rising before him, claimed: "What is this? I never saw it before." "Very likely not," rejoined the Wind, "and I dare you to go and see it." "You dare me to do that, do you?" cried the Devil, with a look of scorn. "I will go in if you will promise to wait here until I come out." "Agreed," said the Wind. So his satanic majesty went in. But he has not come out yet, and the Wind is still waiting for him at the corner.

The Spirit of Liberty. It was in the town that modern democracy had its rise. Despite all the efforts of the kings and barons to prevent it, the spirit of liberty began to assert itself in the larger towns in the shape of the charters which guaranteed to the people certain commercial and political rights—rights which, once obtained, were never to be surrendered. Before the middle of the eleventh century there were many of these "chartered" towns which possessed the right of electing their own magistrates, sheriffs and judges and regulating their own taxes. The wretched serfs from the country were welcomed by the townspeople and aided to larger freedom. These free towns were first known in Spain, from which country they slowly spread over Europe. The burghers naturally offered protection and freedom to all who would flee to them from the feudal estates, and thus, slowly, but surely, the good work went on until the ancient despotisms were destroyed.—Arena.

Reptiles That Walk Erect. Lizards of several sorts can walk and run easily on their hind legs. The Australian water lizard, which is three or four feet in length, keeps quite erect when traversing long distances on land. It is found in the neighborhood of river banks and passes much of its time in shallow water. The frilled lizard of Queensland also travels on its hind legs on level ground, keeping the frill folded when running. When attacked it expands this fold of skin, which stands out like a ruff at right angles round the neck, giving it a most formidable aspect, so that dogs that attack and kill larger lizards will often retreat before a frilled lizard at bay.

There is also a tree lizard in Australia that moves in a similar way. All these species walk on all fours when merely moving about or going short distances.

The Bride's Troubles. It was the servant's day out, and the young bride was doing her best to hurry along the dinner she was trying to cook. The husband, tired of waiting, bustled into the kitchen and said impatiently: "You know, we'll be late for the theater if you don't hurry dinner." "Well," sighed the bride, "I can't tell what's the matter, but these coffee grains simply won't boil soft, and as for the eggs, they've been boiling at least two hours, and they're still as hard as ever." But the dinner was concluded at last, and then the young husband declared he couldn't find his silk hat. "Oh," exclaimed his wife, "you said it needed ironing, you know, so I sent it this morning to the laundry with the wash."

Settling the Barber. "Hair's a bit thin on the top, sir," remarked the barber. "Won't you try a bottle of our hair restorer?" The victim squirmed. "You made the same observation last week," he said, "and I expressed my desire to see you try the stuff on the doorman." "Sorry; I didn't know you had been here before, sir," replied the barber as he went on shaving. "I didn't recognize your face." "No," was the growling reply; "my face has healed since then."—London News.

The Maid's Reply. As William bent over her fair face he whispered: "Darling, if I should ask you in French if I might kiss you what would you answer?" She, calling up her scanty knowledge of the French language, exclaimed, "Billet doux!"—Exchange.

Suspense. "There isn't any suspense about your play," said the technical critic. "That shows how you jump at conclusions," replied the author. "You just ought to see me waiting for royalties."—Exchange.

A Tart Retort. Mrs. Hoyle—Don't you think my boy is growing? Mrs. Doyle—Yes; he is pretty large for his mother's age.—Judge.
