The Tariff as a factor in the higher prices was always a negligible quantity-we shall have just as low prices under this Tariff as we ever had, and the only fear we need to have is that price, in many lines, may fall too low, especially on the products of the farms. -Cedar Rapids "Republican."

Clearfield County.

For Representative in General Assembly,
JOSIAH HOWARD,

A low Tariff by taking wages and salaries and business prosperity out of this country and placing them in other countries does make low prices for the farmer's products, and a genuine Protective Tariff, by keeping wages and salaries and business in this country does give the buyers of the farmer's products the wherewithal to buy .-Kansas City "Journal."

The Delineator for September. "Seven Times a Servant," will arouse the curiosity and interest of all who read The Delinator for September. The first article in a series of social of and sociological studies by Anne Forsyth, a college girl who tried the experiment of earning a living in the 'protected environment" of American nomes, will be found as facinating as a piece of dramatic fiction.

In "Conversazione," the editorial de-partment of The Delineator Erman J. Ridway gives advice to the women who think they can not afford time or money for play. For all the weary work-worn Jills who have been helping carry numberless pails of water up countless hills he sounds a note of good cheer. Incidentally, he has something to say about our man-made, every-day maxims and calls attention to curious facts concerning them. As usual, "Conversazione" is a page of brilliant philosophy in which sparkle many witty sayings.

"To The Witness Stand-The Workingman's Wife," by Mary G. Field is a masterly presentation of testimony offered by women who have had actual knowledge of what the high cost of living means to the average family. 'The Danger-Line in Patent Medicines," by Woods Hutchinson, M. D., is one of the important articles of the month. John Warren tells of "Women Who Are Making Musical America," and Harrison Rhodes has many amusing things to say about "Americans Abroad."

Getting Desperate.

Some of the office buildings in the large cities are constructed apparently with the idea that every possible square foot of space must be utilized for renting purposes. The corridors are narrow, the passageways to the elevator shafts hard to find and the stairways located in obscure corners. There may be fire escapes, but they are equally obscure, and a stranger would not know where to look for them.

The occupants of a room on the sev enth floor of a building of this kind, devoted to the uses of a fire and life insurance companies' agent, were surprised one day by the sudden entrance of a wild eyed man who seemed to be laboring under strong excitement.
"Say," gasped the intruder, "will some of you fellows please throw me out of this building!"

"What for?" asked one of the clerks. "I've been trying for fifteen minutes to find a way out of it, and I can't." They did not throw him out, but piloted him to the elevators, and he succeeded at last in making his es cape.-Exchange.

Nearly a School Scandal.

What might have been a terrible sensation, calling for public investigation and much newspaperiety, was averted by the visit of a shocked mamma to one of our public primary schools. A friend of the mother was calling at the house and asked the little daughter. "How do you like your teacher?"

"Oh, my teacher is nice," answered Tot, "but she is always asking us for a cigarette." "What?" cried the lady and the mamma in horrified tones, seeing con-tamination of the morals of Tot under the teachings of a modern bachelor of the feminine gender.

"Yes, mamma. She says, 'Cigarette,

The next day mamma visited the school. As she entered the class room the teacher was calling first to one child and then to another, "Sit erect, sit erect," while Tot flashed a glance of intelligence and "Didn't I tell you so?" at her mother.—Wasp.

"Look here, Wilkins," said a doctor to his boy in buttons, whom he had occasion to reprimand, "I can't stand any more of this nonsense. You'll have to turn over a fresh leaf."
"All right, sir," was the witty response; "you shan't complain of me again, sir. I'll be an entirely new page."-London Opinion.

were pleased to call it a 'wedding of beauty and brains."

"Well, well! She must be a remarkable woman! That's an unusual combination in one person."

In the Stilly Night.
"What is it?" the druggist sleepily
inquired from his bedroom window. "This ish drug store, ain't it?" asked the man who had rung the night bell.

"Yes. What do you want?"
"Want to look in your city directory minute an' shee where I live."-Phila delphia Ledger.
