Jasper Harris leaves for New York and Philadelphia next Sunday to purchase a very large line of spring goods. His wife will accompany him and spend some time visiting relatives in New York City, also her parents at Syracuse, N. Y. She expects to be absent a few weeks.

The Home Paper.

We do not know what motives prompted an exchange to write the following, but it is true nevertheless: A town is judged by its newspaper as much as a salesman is sized up by his clothes. The whole community is thus a partner to its journalistic enterprises. If you want your town to put its best foot forward, give the home paper the support it needs to keep on expanding and growing more attractive. Are our merchants ready for the competition of those alluring spring catalogues from the metropolitan department stores? Of course the bargains at home are better, when you consider that the home merchant gives you his personal attention and the chance to return goods that are not what was represented. But the public forgets this, trade has to be drummed and the only efficient salesman is the home newspaper.

THE SICK.

M. C. TULLIS.
We regret to announce that the condition of Mr. M. C. Tullis has become very alarming and little hopes are entertained for his recovery.

JOHN GLENN.

The condition of Mr. John Glenn remains in a very precarious state. Mr. Glenn is suffering with stomach trouble. He has been confined to his home for several weeks. Dr. Bush is the attending physician.

DANIEL DOWNEY.

A report from the Downey home is that Mr. Downey is resting a little easier, but is still in a very alarming condition.

MRS. W. G. BAIR.

We are pleased to announce this morning that this excellent lady is improving, after several relapses.

Queer Church Ornamentation.

The chancellor of the diocese, who refused to sanction the design for a memorial window in a Carlisle church on the ground that an angel is depicted wearing the coat of arms of the dean and chapter of Carlisle would assuredly make short work of the Lincoln cathedral "Imp," which finds a place among the angels forming the angel choir in that building. Up and down England are to be found hundreds of examples of the humor of ecclesiastical architects of a past age, from the snarling griffins worked into the stonework of Henry VII's chapel, Westminster abbey, to the dun cow and milkmaids in Durham cathedral. A cat playing a violin can be seen in Wells cathedral, and in Hereford cathedral two cats, apparently performing a violin duet. Boston "Stump" is crowded with fantastic carvings, among which may be mentioned a wife chastising her husband, a teacher caning a pupil and an orchestra composed of bears playing an organ, a bagpipe and a drum.—Westminster Gazette.

Bread and Dyspepsia.

The conclusion that wheat bread is unfit for dyspeptics, sometimes jumped at because ill effects are noticed to follow its use, is erroneous. On the contrary, it has been pointed out by Bouchard and others that farinaceous food is peculiarly adapted to some dyspeptic patients. It is the microbes in the starch which are capable of producing irritating acids that cause the trouble. To avoid this Bouchard recommends that only the crust or toasted crumbs of the bread be used by dyspeptics, particularly those whose stomachs are dilated. The reason of this is explained by the fact that baking temporarily, though not permanently, arrests the fermentation of dough. When it is again heated by the warmth of the stomach the fermentation is renewed. In cases where the bread is toasted brown through the fermentation is stopped permanently.—Family Doctor.

She Wanted Both.

The matinee performance was about half over when a distracted looking woman with a curly haired youngster of six sought out the man in the box office.

"There are boxes on your chairs in there," she began, "and they say drop a nickel in and get a box of candy."

"Yes, I see," asserted the man in the box office.

"Well," she continued indignantly, "I dropped a nickel in for my little girl." "And couldn't you get the candy?" queried the box office man. "Wait; I'll see if we can get it out."

"Oh, yes," answered the woman; "I got the candy all right, but I couldn't get the nickel out."

And to the ticket man at least this remark furnished a more dramatic moment than any in the play.—Louisville Times.

Dean Swift and the Cook.

"Moderation in all things" is the best precept for everyday life. There is a good story about Dean Swift apropos of the value of never overdoing anything.

The dean's cook one day overroasted the leg of mutton for dinner, and in consequence she was summoned to the dining room. "Cook," said the dean in a pleasant voice, "this leg of mutton is overdone; take it back and do it less."

"Impossible, your reverence!" exclaimed the cook.

"Well," replied her master, "supposing it had been underdone, you could easily have done it more."

"Certainly, your reverence."

"Then," said the dean, "let this be a lesson to you. If you commit a fault always take care that it is a fault which will admit of a remedy."

A Proof.

"That girl is trying to make a fool of me."

"Oh, no! She never tries anything ready made."—Baltimore American.

A Woman's Mind.

Silliness—A woman never seems able to make up her mind. Cynicus—Why should she? She would only change it again.—Philadelphia Record.

The Hindoo's Great Illusion.

Brush, the great has been a student under the best Hindoo Fakirs and Mahatmas of India and is moreover a great lover of all oriental magic. He has performed this trick for a number of seasons at Chautauqua and on lecture courses and it has easily been the sensation of 45 states. Mr. Brush has not spared expense; all the robes and paraphernalia used in this were made and designed especially for him and is presented in its most elaborate form. The illusion is mysterious, exciting and pleasing. It offers the principal conversational topic wherever two or more meet; the question is at once raised, "How did Brush get out of the Hindoo Basket? Mr. Brush has improved on the original method of performing this illusion until that Hindoo wizard himself is baffled. Come and see this wonderful man to-night, Feb. 2nd, at the opera house. Adults 30c; children 15c.
