HENRY H. MULLIN,

Editor and Proprietor PRVILLE PROUDPOOT, Assistant and Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

Volume Forty-Five.

With this issue THE CAMERON COUN-PRESS enters upon the 45th volume. It has been the aim of the present editor to increase the usefulness of this Journal, along the consistent lines laid down by our predecessor, late C. B. We have not catered to that class of sensational mongers, a curse to journalism and a disgrace to mankind. While the PRESS has always been a reliable stand-pat Republican paper, we believe in those principles, yet we respect those of our readers who monestly differ with us as to the policies of this government.

The PRESS during these long years endeavored to serve its patrons with the best that money can procure, never reducing expenditures that would in the least deteriorate the value of this journal as a welcome visitor to the homes of our patrons. Covering, as we do, every section of this county, and almost every section of the coun try, weekly letters, with interesting items, of news, at no small expense, we are pleased to know are appreciated by our people. We are here to please our patrous and we are fully re paid with the many flattering endorsements from our citizens, as well as the Press generally.

It is our aim to keep fully abreast with the times and shall be honored to have our readers tell us how best to improve our paper.

The steady growth of our business is very flattering, as well as gratifying. When the present editor looks back over the 43 years he has been associated with the old PRESS, from apprentice to editor, we often wonder about many matters. The life of an editor is full of sunshine, sorrow, ingratitude. The latter predominates, especially when applied to the ones the polical editor may hustle to advance only to be "knifed" when he expects consideration. The greatest ingrate is 'the one who urges the political editor of a country journal to push his interests only to receive a gold brick, or the cold shoulder. We are only speaking generally, not personaly.

Our patrons we thank for their continued confidence and patronage. We hope Providence will give us health and strength to continue our efforts for the upbuilding of Emporium and Cameron county and that the PRESS may ever be found in the ranks of progress and always right upon every public

Finally, friends; drop in and see us often; look over our complete plant and see what we are doing, or should like

Among humorous stories of the Paris law courts it is told how a well known lawyer, M. Alem Rousseau was once pleading a rather tiresome case and, noticing that the judges were paying no attention to him, said, "As the president is falling asleep I suspend my speech." But the judge had just woke up and cried, "And I suspend you from practicing for six months." Nothing daunted, the lawyer retorted, "Well, I suspend myself forever and ever," and, gathering up his brief and cap, he left the court and never appeared again.

A Paris barrister, M. Clery, however, was more vigorous. Seeing that the president and the assessors were all asleep, he stopped, and, dealing a tre-mendous blow on the desk in front of him that woke everybody up with a start, he cried, "Yesterday at this same hour I was saying"— And the whole bench rubbed their eyes and asked each other if they had really slept through twenty-four hours.

The same counsel was pleading at Versailles on a cold day and remarked that the judges were all turning more and more around toward a stove that gave out a welcome heat. "The tribanal behind which I have the honor of speaking" brought them all right about face at once.

He Had a Claim

In a certain town was a young law-yer whose father was very rich and who had been sent to an eastern law school. Since his graduation he had done nothing except open an office because he had plenty of money. This young lawyer was proposed for membership in the local fire company.

"We carnot elect him," one of the members protested. "The constitution of our company says that the members of it must sleep and live here in the city, and he lives out of town on a farm and not in the city at all. would be of no value at all in case of a fire at night. He doesn't sleep here

'No," replied his proposer; "it is true he doesn't sleep here at night, but he sleeps here in his office all day."

And they elected him on that ground. -Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post

The Simple Maid.

'Twas in a simple country town, and the maid of all work was simple and innocent in sympathy. When she reinnocent in sympathy. When she returned from shopping half a sovereign short in her change Mrs. Mango-Chutney was naturally incensed.

"Go back to each shop, you careless irl," she told the weeping maid, "and tell them you are half a sovereign short in your money and they must give it you."

Susan went and was back again in half an hour. Entering her mistress' sanctum, she laid five half sovereigns on the table before her. Faithful as always, she had carried out Mrs. Mango-Chutney's instructions to the letter, and each shopkeeper, fearful of doing wrong and hurting a fellow creature, had thrust the missing coin upon the bewildered girl.-London Answers

The Change That Was Wrought The little man was explaining to his audience the benefits of physical culture. "Three years ago," he said, "I was a miserable wreck. Now, what do you suppose brought about this great change in me?" "What change?" said "What change?" said a voice from the audience. There was a succession of loud smiles, and some persons thought to see him collapse. But the little man was not to be put out. "Will the gentleman who asked 'What change?' kindly step up here?" he asked suavely. "I shall then be better able to explain. "That's right!" Then, grabbing the witty gentleman by the neck: "When I first took up physical culture I could not even lift a little man. Now (suiting action to word) I can throw one about like a bundle of rags." And finally he flung the interrupter half a dozen yards

Two Collars on a Dog. Having bought a dog that he admired, a man undertook to buy a dog col-lar. The dog had a neck nearly as big as his head, and the dealer advised the man to buy two collars.
"What for?" said the man. "He's only got one neck, so I guess he can get along with only one collar, can't

"Maybe so," said the man, so the man went away leading the dog by his new collar and chain. In less than a week he brought the dog back.

"I'm afraid I can't keep him," he said. "He is too obstreperous. I can't keep him tied up. His neck is the biggest part of him, and he is as strong as an ox, therefore it is a cinch for him to slip his collar off."

"That was why I wanted you to take two collars," said the dealer. "Put both on and fasten the chain to the back collar, and he can tug away all night without getting loose. He may commit suicide, but he won't get loose."-New York Sun.

Disappointed In Her.

"And so your father refuses to consent to our union." "He does, Rodolphus,"

The sad youth swallowed a sob.
"Is there nothing left for us, then, but an elopement?" said he.
"Nothing."

The girl was fond, but firm.

"Do you think, Clementine, that you could abandon this luxurious home forget all the enjoyments of great wealth, banish yourself forever from your devoted parents' hearts and go west with a poor young man to enter a home of lifelong poverty and self "I could, Rodolphus."

The sad youth rose wearily and reached for his hat.

"Then," said he, "you are far from being the practical girl I have all along taken you to be."

Had to Take His Own Medicine. George Barr McCutcheon was waiting for a train in Chicago, and as he passed through the station he saw one of his latest best sellers displayed on the newsstand counter. "Hey, mister, come back here. You've got to buy this book 'cause you've spoiled it by writing your name in it." "Yes, but did you see the name?" the
