Shippin High School, 1911.

There is a Hall of Noted Fame where education rules, Where teachers of a high degree conduct a splendid school; The scholars are the finest in all the Keystone State, Their minds have reached perfection in all that's good and great.

Professor Metz, he has no peers in his uplifting work, He gives the best that's in him, his duty he don't shrink; His pupils and the people all, his praises loud proclaim, There's nothing that's too good for him, long live his honored name.

The Senior Class I now will name, you know them every one, Miss Phoebe Hackett is the first, her eyes are like the sun; Rena Hoessler is the next, she is beautiful and sweet, Karl Zimmer is a hustler, you bet he's hard to beat.

Aleda Minard is a head in mathematics deep, She studies hard and faithfully while others are asleep; While gentle Dora Bonner to language takes a shine, And helps to make the Senior Class the fore most all the time.

The Juniors are a splendid class and they we'll not desert, There's a solid bunch of knowledge in the ample Miss Van Wert; Susan Nickler and Belle Wray look for domestic life, And after graduating each will be a happy wife.

Pearl Milton, Lena Kinsler and Lena Zwald, also, Are climbing honor's ladder as fast they can go, Freddie Minard is a King among the farmer lads, And everybody says he'll be as good a man as dad.

Last, but not least the Sophomors, a worthy class are they, With Herman Close, Carl Johnson too, the boys who make the hay; Roland Horning raises corn, he plows just like a man, While Joe Ruberto keeps a store and sells the ripe banan.

Josie Blumle comes in next, in manner he is kind, Florence Nelson is a girl with very able mind; Theresa Lawson is the girl who loves the Shamrock Green, Edna Zimmer beats them all in cooking Boston beans.

Lettie Craven, she can spin and knit the finest lace, Frances Kinsler's fortune is made, she wears it in her face; They are every one good lookers, though, they of the Sophomore Class, And when it comes to manners, they in the lead will pass.

So now my story's ended, my poor attempt is done, God bless the School and Scholars, long life to every one, And when their High School days are over, may they all live to see, Success and happiness in life, likewise prosperity.

The Advantages Now Derived by Mankind From the Art of Printing.

The advantages now derived from the art of printing are very numerous. Printing forms a very important factor in the social and business world, both at home and abroad and is invaluable to government affairs as the newspaper holds a most important part in political situations and is the only direct way of informing the people as to the doings of the government. It would be difficult for Democracy to exist without.

The issuing of books, magazines, newspapers and other printed matter is the only means of conveying the news and happening of the world in general.

It is much quicker and more practical than writing and its use is invaluable to large business corporations, in fact it is almost impossible for large institutions to do without the use of printing.

Thus the art and use of printing is an entire revolution of the system of writing, and has advanced the progress of the world to a great extent. L. B. B.
