

SYNOPSIS.

Howard Jeffries, banker's son, under e evil influence of Robert Underwood, fellow-student at Yale, leads a life of suparticular to the control of the contro

CHAPTER VI.-Continued.

He helped himself to another drink, his hand shaking so that he could hardly hold the decanter. He was fast approaching the state of complete intoxication. Underwood made no attempt to interfere. Why should he care if the young fool made a sot of himself? The sooner he drank himself insensible the quicker he would get rid of him.

"No, Howard," he said; "you'd never make a decent member of society."
"P'r'aps not," hiccoughed Howard.

"How does Annie take her social ostracism?" inquired Underwood.

"Like a brick. She's a thorough bred, all right. She's all to the good." "All the same, I'm sorry I ever introduced you to her," replied Underwood. "I never thought you'd make such a fool of yourself as to marry—"

Howard shook his head in a maudlin manner, as he replied:

don't know whether I made a fool of myself or not, but she's all right. She's got in her the makings of a great woman-very crude, but still the makings. The only thing I object to is, she insists on going back to work, just as if I'd permit such a thing. Do you know what I said on our wedding day? 'Mrs. Howard Jeffries, you are entering one of the oldest families in America. Nature has fitted you for social leadership. You'll be a petted, pampered member of that select few called the "400," ' and now, damn it all, how can I ask her to go back to work? But if you'll let me

By this time Howard was beginning to get drowsy. Lying back on the sofa, he proceeded to make himself

Two thousand dollars!" laughed Underwood. "Why, man, I'm in debt up to my eyes.

As far as his condition enabled him, Howard gave a start of surprise. "Hard up!" he exclaimed. Pointing around the room, he said: "What's all this-a bluff?"

Underwood nodded.

"A bluff, that's it. Not a picture,

said dole

Touching his brow, he said:

Once he gets an idea, he never lets it go, he holds on. Obstinate. One idea—stick to it. Gee, but I've made a mess of things, haven't I?"

Inght yet avert the shameful end of the suicide. Advancing toward her, he said in a hoarse whisper:

"Oh, this is good of you, you've come—this is the answer to my let-

Underwood looked at him with con-

You've made a mess of your life." "You've made a mess of your life," and took a seat. Then, turning on he said bitterly, "yet you've had some him, she exclaimed indignantly: measure of happiness. You, at least, else, damn her!'

Howard was so drowsy from the effects of the whisky that he was all this threat?" most asleep. As he lay back on the sofa, he gurgled:

"Oh, listen to my tale of woe," while ears Underwood sat glaring at him, wondering how he could put him out.

As he reached the last verse his head began to nod. The words came turned slightly paler and, folding his

Just at that moment the telephone bell rang. Underwood quickly picked thing's up the receiver.

"Who's that?" he asked. As he heard the answer his face lit up and change," replied Underwood earnest-he replied eagerly: "Mrs. Jeffries—ly. "I love you—I shall always love yes. I'll come down. No, tell her to you.'

went over to the divan and shook ence.

Sank Sleepily Back Among the Soft Divan Pillows.

"Howard, wake up! confound you! "You love no one but yourself." You've got to get out-there's somebody coming."

He shook him roughly, but his old as he said: classmate made no attempt to move. "Quick, do you hear!" exclaimed Underwood impatiently. "Wake up-ome one's coming." Howard sleepily half opened his eyes. He had forgotten entirely where he was and believed he was on the train, for he answered:

"Sure, I'm sleepy. Say-porter, make up my bed."

His patience exhausted. Underwood was about to pull him from the sofa by force, when there was a ring at the front door.

Bending quickly over his companhim and get him out of the way, so, quickly, he took a hig correspond to the way. uickly, he took a big screen and arhurried to the front door and Alicia entered.

CHAPTER VII.

For a few moments Underwood was too much overcome by emotion to never deceived you." "A bluff, that's it. Not a please, not a vase, not a stick belongs to me. You'll have to go to your fabre."

All he heard was the soft rustle of her clinging silk gown as it swept than the floor. She was incensed speak. Alicia brushed by in haughty her clinging silk gown as it swepter."

her clinging silk gown as it swepter."

her clinging silk gown as it swepter."

All with him, of course, but she had be asked. She came to ask you what this letter—this came to ask you what this letter—this came to ask you what do you expect much for him, because he stretched come. That was all he asked. She came to ask you what this letter—this out his hand for his whisky glass. "Fa- had come in time to save him. He threat—means. What do you expect them. You have borrowed their money, cheated them at cards, stolen from the content of them. You have borrowed their money. would talk to her and lly.
"He'll relent," suggested Underschaft thing and she would understand.
She would help him in this crisis as I be a friend to a man like you? You she had in the past. Their long know what your friendship for a wom-Howard shook his head drowsily. friendship, all these years of intimacy, ouching his brow, he said:

friendship, all these years of intimacy, an means. It means that you would could not end like this. There was drag her down to your own level and "Too much brains, too much up here." Placing his hand on his heart, he went on: "Too little down here. Once he gets an idea, he never lets it to the suicide. Advancing toward her, specting woman could afford to allow ter.

Alicia ignored his extended hand

"The answer should be a horsemarried the woman you love. Drunk- whip. How dare you send me such en beast as you are, I envy you. The a message?" Drawing from her bag woman I wanted married some one the letter received from him that evening, she demanded:

"What do you expect to gain by

"Don't be angry, Alicia." In maudlin fashion he began to sing, to-night it fell on cold, indifferent

"Don't call me by that name," she snapped.

At last she said:
"I hope you understand that everything's over between us. quaintance is at an end."

"My feelings toward you can never change," replied Underwood earnest. New York. Go where you are not "Do you mean to compare a mag ly. "I love you—I shall always love known. You are still young. Begin inficent mountain with the broad ex

Alicia gave a little shrug of her Hanging up the receiver, he hastily shoulders, expressive of utter indiffer-

Underwood advanced nearer to her and there was a tremor in his voice

"You have no right to say that. exclaimed remember what we once were. Whose fault is it that I am where I am to-When you broke our engage day? ment and married old Jeffries to gratify your social ambition, you ruined my life. You didn't destroy my love—you couldn't kill that. You may forbid me everything—to see you—to speak to you—even to think of you, but I can never forget that you are the only woman I ever cared for. If you had married me, I might have been a different man. And now, just when I want you most, you deny me even your ion, Underwook saw that he was fast friendship. What have I done to de-

Alicia had listened with growing imranged it around the divan so that Howard could not be seen. Then he that she contained herself. Now she that she contained herself. Now she interrupted him hotly:

"I broke my engagement with you because I found that you were deceiving me—just as you deceived others." "It's a lie!" broke in Underwood. " may have trifled with others, but I

Alicia rose and, crossing the room, carelessly inspected one of the pic-tures on the wall, a study of the nude n by taking your life unless ] her name to be associated with yours. You are as incapable of disinterested come—this is the answer to my let- friendship as you are of common hon-Coldly she added: "I hope you quite understand that henceforth my house is closed to you. If we happen to meet in public, it must be as stran-

Underwood did not speak. Words eemed to fail him. His face was set and white. A nervous twitching about the mouth showed the terrible mental strain which the man was under. the excitement he had forgotten about Howard's presence on the divan be-"Say, old man; I didn't come here to isten to hard-luck stories. I came to tell one."

"Say old man; I didn't come here to isten to hard-luck stories. I came to tell one."

"Say old man; I didn't come here to conciliate her. Well he knew the seductive power of his voice. Often he had used it and not in vain, but too preoccupied to notice it. Underwood extended his arms pleadingly "Alicia-for the sake of auld lang syne! "Auld lang syne," she retorted. want to forget the past. The old mem-ories are distasteful. My only object thickly from his lips and he sank arms, just looked at her, in silence. in coming here to-night was to make sleepily back among the soft divan. There was an awkward pause. you to promise me not to-carry out your threat to kill yourself. Why should you kill yourself? Only cowards do that. Because you are in trouble? That is the coward's way out. Leave life over again, somewhere else." Advancing toward him, she went on: "If you will do this I will help you houlders, expressive of utter indiffering. "If you will do this I will help you, nce.

I never want to see you again, but I'll to decorate it with sardine tins and try not to think of you unkindly. But bisedit boxes."—Washington State.

you must promise me solemnly not to make any attempt against your life." "I promise nothing," muttered Underwood doggedly.

"But you must," she insisted. "It would be a terrible crime, not only against yourself, but against others. You must give me your word."

Underwood shook his head. "I promise nothing."

"But you must," persisted Alicia. "I won't stir from here until I have your

He looked at her curiously. "If my life has no interest for you, why should you care?" he asked.

There was a note of scorn in his voice which aroused his visitor's wrath. Crumpling up his letter in her hand, she confronted him angrily.

"Shall I tell you why I care?" she cried. "Because you accuse me in this letter of being the cause of your death —I, who have been your friend in spite of your dishonesty. Oh! it's despicable, contemptible! Above all, it's

Underwood shrugged his shoulders Cynically he replied:

"So it wasn't so much concern for me as for yourself that brought you here.

Alicia's eyes flashed as she answered:

"Yes, I wished to spare myself this indignity, the shame of being associated in any way with a suicide. I was afraid you meant what you said."
"Afraid," interrupted Underwood bitterly, "that some of the scandal night reach as far as the aristocratic Mrs. Howard Jeffries. Sr.!"

Her face flushed with anger, Alicia paced up and down the room. The nan's taunts stung her to the quick. In a way, she felt that he was right. She ought to have guessed his character long ago and had nothing to do with him. He seemed desperate enough to do anything, yet she doubt-ed if he had the courage to kill himself. She thought she would try more conciliatory methods, so, stopping short, she said more gently:

"You know my husband has suffered through the wretched marriage of his You know how deeply we son. both feel this disgrace, and yet you would add-"

Underwood laughed mockingly.

"Why should I consider your hus-band's feelings?" he cried. "He didn't consider mine when he married you.' Suddenly bending forward, every nerve tense, he continued hoarsely: "Alicia, I tell you I'm desperate. I'm hemmed in on all sides by creditors. You know what your friendship-your patronage means? If you drop me now, your friends will follow—they're a lot of sheep led by you—and when my creditors hear of me they'll be down on me like a flock of I'm not able to make a settlement. Prison stares me in the face."

Glancing around at the handsome urnishings, Alicia replied carelessly: "I'm not responsible for your wrong-doing. I want to protect my friends. If they are a lot of sheep, as you say, that is precisely why I should warn that is precisely why I them. They have implicit confidence given them the opportunity. But now I've found you out. I refuse any long-er to sacrifice my friends, my self-respect, my sense of decency." Angrily she continued: "You thought you could bluff me. You've adopted this cow-ard's way of forcing me to receive you against my will. Well, you've failed. I will not sanction your robbing my friends. I will not allow you them any more of your highpriced rubbish, or permit you to cheat hem at cards. Underwood listened in silence. He ood motionless, watching her flushed ace as she heaped reproaches on him was practically pronouncing his leath sentence, yet he could not help thinking how pretty she looked. When she had finished he said nothing, but, going to his desk, he opened a small drawer and took out a revolver.

Alicia recoiled, frightened. 'What are you going to do?" she Underwood smiled bitterly.

"Oh, don't be afraid. I wouldn't do it while you are here. In spite of all you've said to me, I still think too much of you for that." Replacing the pistol in the drawer, he added: "Alicia if you desert me now, you'll be sorry to the day of your death."

His visitor looked at him in silence Then, contemptuously, she said: (TO BE CONTINUED.

Sameness.

"There is a certain sameness about natural scenery," said the man who looks bored.

"Do you mean to compare a mag

"Yes. Wherever you find a spot of Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its ex-

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.— plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

For sale by all leading druggists. Price 50 cents per bottle.

It is more disgraceful to distrust than to be deceived.—Rochefoucauld.

A cup of Garfield Tea before retiring will insure that all-important measure, the daily cleaning of the system.

What sculpture is to a block of marble, education is to a human soul.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets.
Druggists refund money if it falls to cure. E. W.
GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

Civic Rivalry. Squire Durnitt-We're goin' to have newspaper in Lonelyville.

Uncle Welby Gosh (of Drearyhurst) -Where are ye goin' to git it printed?

Resinol Ointment Is Used in Every Country of the World as the Best Remedy for Itching Piles.

I was terribly annoyed with Itching Piles for twenty-five years. I found such great relief with the first appli-cation of Resinol Ointment that in future I would not think of being without it. An occasional application is all that is necessary. Christopher Holmes, Brookline, Mass.

Reason Enough.

A negro near Xenia, O., had been arrested for chicken stealing. He had stolen so many that his crime had beome grand larceny. He was tried and convicted, and brought in for sentence.

"Have you any reason to offer why the judgment of the court should not be passed upon you?" he was asked. "Well, jedge," he replied, "I cain't go to jall now, hohow. I'm buildin' a shack out yonder, an' I jus' cain't go till I git it done. You kin sholy see dat."—Philadelphia Sunday Evening

Give a Woman a Chance. Compulsory military service for men, urges a German female advocate of women's right, should be offset by compulsory domestic service for wom en. On the theory that life in barrack and drill in the manual of arms have benefitted German manhood, she asks, why will not life in the kitchen and exercise in the use of pots and pans similarly raise German womanhood?

If Germany ever organizes a standing army of cooks it may force all Europe to follow its lead. Culinary conscription is a severe measure, but when enforced in Germany other na tions might be expected to adopt it. There would be more reason in doing so than in following Germany's lead in militarism. There is more real need of cooks the world over than of soldiers. It is possible to get along without fighting, but not without eat

HONEST CONFESSION

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly admission of the fact.

case in point is that of a practicone of the good old school, who in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up: "I had always had an intense preja dice, which I can now see was unwar rantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons.

"I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every ek since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leav-ing no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was fornerly much troubled), no sense of ullness, nausea, nor distress of stom ich in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly pleasantly upon my stomach as this

"I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nats than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in pkgs, for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

"There's a Reason." Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest. The Place to Buy Cheap J. F. PARSONS'

Low's Business

HIS ad. is directed at the man who has all the business in his line in this community.

¶ Mr. Merchant-You say you've got it all. You're selling them all they'll buy, anyhow. But at the same time you would like more business. Make this community buy Advertise strongly, consistently, judiciously.

¶ Suppose you can buy a lot of washtubs cheap; advertise a big washtub sale in this paper. Put in an inviting picture of a washtub where people can see it the minute they look at your ad. Talk strong on washtubs. And you'll find every woman in this vicinity who has been getting along with a rickety washtub for years and years will buy a new one from you. That's creative business power.

OUR, AD. RATES ARE RIGHT -CALL ON US

(Copyright, 1909, by W. N. U.

Word-of-Mouth Advertising

Passing encomiums, only over your store counter, about the quality of what you've got to sell, results in about as much satisfaction as your wife would get if you gave her a box of cigars for Christmas.

Advertising in This Paper talks to everybody at once and makes them talk back with money.

(Copyright, 1909, by W. N.

