THE LATS CONCERTS.—The unsteal entertainments given at the Court House, on Monday and Tuerday evenings of the present week, on behalf of the new Catholic church in this place, were the most complete successes, it is universally admitted, that ever had there occurrence in this community. We do not doubt that our citizens had reason to anticipate a rich and rare musical treat, but that any one conceived the idea that each and all the performers would acquit berself and himself with such admirable skill and perfect grace as they did on these occasions, we are hardly prepared to believe. The ladies of the choir surprised and charmed even those who weekly listen to their rendering of sacred music in the church, and it is now plainly evident, if the fact has not heretofore been recognized, that Ebensburg can lay claim to some of the most talented lady vocalists in the State. Mr. A. J. Maguire not only rendered entire satisfaction as a performer on the violin, but sang several comic songs in a manner that "brought down the house" and made the building echo with the boisterous mirth and gladsome greetings of all who had the pleasure of listening to his efforts. The Crystal Band also acquitted of the large audiences. Mr. Fieldhouse, of Johnstown, was particularly commended for his performance on the cornet, and all susmed to render him a full measure of praise for the unsurpassable style in which he rendered his part. He is certainly a most skillful player on that instrument. So And while we say this of them what shall the say of Mr. P. H. Cronin, the charming orlists pleased and gratified the audience, Mr. Cronin electrified and took them by does. We need not particularize many of eche, while "La Marseillaise," the "Star Spangled Banner," "Wearing of the Green," and other songs most admirably selected, brought into play the full powers of his rich and well cultivated voice. Johnstown, March 2, 1868. Dear Freeman-A man named Jas, Taylor, who resided in Prospect borough, met with an accident on Priday last which resulted in his death the following day. It appears that Taylor, who is a miner, started for his work on that day, and whilst pass ing along a dangerous path on the bluff above the railroad, and back of the Mechanical Works, he slipped over, and fell an almost perpendicular distance of about one hundred feet, landing on the railroad. It is supposed that he lay there several hours, and when found was entirely insensi-He was removed to his residence and medical aid summoned, but the nature of his injuries precluded any hope of relief, as on his temple was found a terrible gash and on the back of his neck a very severe cut. After lingering in an insensible condition until Saturday evening, death put an end to his sufferings. Taylor leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss.
