A vier heavy fog once visited the State of Massachusetts, which probably somewhat surpassed the famous fogs of London. A young man was sent out into a field to nail on a few courses of shingles upon a barn, the roof of which was nearly completed. At dinner time, continues the farmer, who is responsible for the story, the fellow came up, and says he: "That's an alarming long barn of yours."

"Not very long," says I. "Well," says he, "I've been to work all this forenoon, and haven't got one course laid yet." "If that's the case," says I, "you're a very lazy fellow," So, after dinner, I went out to see what he had been about, and I'll be thundered if he had not shingled more than a hundred feet right out into the fog.

-Over 50 bodies of cholera victims, buried at Arsenal Island by the authorities of St. Louis last summer, were washed from their resting place by a rise of the Mississippi, on Saturday. Twenty-four of the corpses were recovered from the stream, and those on the Island are to be removed to a safe burial place.

-A fellow named Dr. Bloom residing in Scranton recently sold all the furniture in his house to different persons in the city, and then left the place, abandoning his wife to whom he had been married about a year and from whom he had borrowed what little money she possessed on her marriage.
