When Billy Stokes entered Mr. Dana's office in the afternoon, his first greeting

"So you've come, Master William, to hear how 'Old Ragbag' changed coaches, have you?"

"Well, I'd like to know," replied Billy with an embarrassed manner and awkward smile, "It must be a good story."

"That it is, my boy; but I can't tell you the whole of it this afternoon, for it is too long. I can tell you enough, however, to satisfy you that just as good a story may be told about you, some time door south of A. Haug's tin and hardware or other. Well, the first thing I want to tell you is, that I came to prosperity step by step. I didn't wake up, on a fine morning, and find myself grown up and riding round in a coach, but I worked my wayand that's another thing I want you to notice-up to prosperity and into my coach. It was a long time before I ceased to be 'Old Ragbag' and gave up my cart. And now do you want to know what was the first turn in my fortune? Well, it was this: I was riding along in my rag cart one day, when I saw an unruly cow chasing a young lady, and she was running as fast as she could run, while the boys in the street stood and laughed, for they thought it was great fun. As soon as I saw what was the trouble, I jumped out of the cart and pursued the cow, calling out to the young lady not to be afraid, for I was used to cows and could manage

"Look back at the cart and see the rags flying,' called out one of the boys. 'Lock! Old Ragbag.'

"Never mind about the rags flying,' I answered coolly, as I returned and took my seat in the cart. 'I've sent that cow flying, and that's enough.'

"Off I drove, with as independent and kingly an air as if I were in a triumphal car; and I think I held my head a little higher than usual because I had refused to take the young lady's money that she offered me. She was determined to pay me; but although I was 'Old Ragbag,' and drove a cart, I had quite an idea of gallantry, and a great aversion to being paid for it. Not a penny of her three dollars had I taken, and I drove off, much more satisfied with myself than I should have been if I had had the three dollars in a man directly in front of him leaning over my pocket. But the young lady was not so satisfied, and it wasn't long before she gave my mother a new spring calico dress and me a half dozen fine white pockethandkerchiefs. I went home one day to dinner, and my mother said to me, pointing to the open package on the table, "Why didn't you ever tell me that you drove off a cow that was running after Miss Fauny Barber ?'

"'Oh, it wasn't worth telling,' I said. "But this dress and those handkerchiefs are worth having,' she answered, and nothing has pleased me so much in a long time.' "Well, they pleased me too, Master William, and I had a chance that summer to be pleased over and over again, for there price for it.

CLIMATIC CURIOSITIES .- The changes in a country's climate by settlement and cultivation of the soil often seems strange and inconsistent. A letter from a late traveller in Nebraska notes some curious contrasts: "It is a frequent subject of remark in the Ohio Valley, that settling and breadth of the green earth there was the country, clearing, and ditching the found no sheltering nest where the lonely land, constantly makes it drier; that old dove-could fold its wings when the pa- wells and springs are drying up, and each succeeding summer branches run dry winds of neglect and unkindness. Love Agricultural report makes the some comwhich never did before. The French plaint, and calls upon the Government to stop the destruction of the forests, as the honest poverty with tear bedewed face, with settlement, exactly the reverse phemeans of preserving the rivers. But here, nomena are presented, and the quantity of stands afar off." The widow pleads in rain in western Nebraska and Kansas has vain to the determined judge for "justice," doubled within the memory of man.and unpunished of heaven, the human tiger | Perhaps this is due somewhat to the trees that the breaking up of the sod allows it to absorb more moisture than it could in the prairie state, and in many instances turning a hundred acres of sod will repery an old spring. Fresh branches are starting in gullies which have been dry for hundreds, perhaps thousands of years. these are the facts of heavy rains this summer in Colorado and California, States

> BRAVE ACT OF AN ARCHBISHOP .- The other day, says a European correspondent, there was a destructive conflagration at Auch. From one of the burning houses Heart rending were the screams of a mother: "Save my "child!" The archsoon after re-appeared, carrying the mother and her child. Upon reaching the ground
