LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

No oNE ever regretted having obtained good education. Every young person can get an education by attending the State Normal School at Edinboro.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS .--- If there is one thing more than another upon which the Freeman can pride itself, it is the interesting array of original contributions which appear in its columns each week. No country paper on our exchange list is so fortunate in this respect, and these contributions from our correspondents are always of the micst readable, instructive, and often amusing character. The series of letters written by Petroleum V. Nasby, Jr., and which have been published by us, have been a great source of gratification and enjoyment to our readers, and we are sure that all will regret if the close of the political campaign should leave no further work for his sarcastic pen. Nasvotin' t'other way : by, Jr., has shown himself a humorous writer of rare merit, and he has our sincere thanks, and the thanks of our readers, for side, nav. the pleasure he has afforded to all who have perused his witty epistles. Long may he wave. Our regular (and sometimes irregu-lar) Altocna and Johnstown letters are always trump cards, and we only regret that others of the same sort do not reach us from some localities as well represented on our subscription books as they are. The Loretto letter which we publish to-day is one of the best of its kind that has ever appeared in our columns, and we think that "Tweesers" owes it to himself and all the other readers of the Freeman to let us hear from him frequently, So come again, and come often, side, aye. all of ye!

exceedingly sad and distressing occurrence transpired on the Branch Railroad between this city and Hollidaysburg. The circumstances, as they have been related to me by a friend, are about as follows : In the vicinity of Canan's station a number of boys have been in the habit of jumping on and off the passenger cars while in motion, in direct opposition to the express command of Mr. Dent, the conductor. On this occasion the boys got on the platform of the rear car as usual, and while Mr. Dent was coming through the car to collect their fare they all jumped off except one young man named Thos. Camp- retto had passed an ordinance that no radibell, who endeavored to avoid detection by holding to the railing of the car and leaning tion the train passed over a bridge near the station, and Campbell's head no doubt came in contact with the frame work of the bridge, which knocked him from the car and killed him almost instantly. A portion of his skull and blood and hair was found upon one of the iron bolts of the bridge, which would seem to establish the fact that he came to his death as indicated above, although several other versions of the affair are in circulation. By some Mr. Dent has been severely censured and accused of pushing Campbell off the train while it was under full headway, but as Mr. Dent is one of the oldest, and has always been esteemed one of the most faithful, safe and efficient conductors in the employ of the Pa. R. R. Co., it can scarcely be credited that he would be guilty of so tash and inhuman an act.
