

THE FREEMAN.

EBENSBURG, PA., THURSDAY, : : : : Nov. 26, 1868.

THE ALLEGHIANIAN.

IT KISSES US--IT SOOPS AT OUR YEARS--IT PLAGIARISES UPON US--JUSTICE TO THE POINT.

Not in the character of a partisan, but under a determination to make the Freeman an impartial chronicler of passing events, we gave a full, fair and impartial history of the recent "Grand Radical Jubilee." Our reports upon that interesting and memorable occasion entered fully into its spirit, and in the whole report not an unkind word, or even insinuation, is to be found. It met the approbation of our readers, "without distinction of party," for "to the pure all things are pure." Even our generous rival of the Johnstown Tribune, ignoring the account of it given by the Alleghianian, refers to our report and says of it, "which the Freeman hints was one of the finest displays of the kind, if not the very finest, ever witnessed in the ancient village."

Not so the Alleghianian! It might have copied our article and thus given itself an ephemeral importance; but instead of this, it gave a slighting and incorrect notice of the Jubilee, stating, among other things, that every Republican house was illuminated--thus reading out of the party some dozen Republicans who declined to illuminate.

But, besides this, the said Alleghianian, "greatly envying the happy state and condition of the Freeman," and wickedly and maliciously intending to injure," the said Freeman, attacks not the Freeman, which would be fair, but its editor, which is not fair.

Now all this was nothing new to us. We are not conscious of ever having referred to the antecedents of the publishers of the Alleghianian; yet its readers have been duly informed of what we have been and are--how and where we worship--that we are a "good" lawyer, and an unscrupulous lawyer--both of which opinions were about equally damaging--with other personal matters concerning ourself which that detestable sheet seems to think its patrons ought to know.

In the article in question, however, the editors, more modest, charge us only with old age and bartering our "principle for the bread of place and power." Let us might do injustice, we give the Alleghianian article the benefit of our circulation:

This report of the "Grand Radical Jubilee" in last week's FREEMAN reads very much like the wall of one who, after having bartered away principle for the bread of place and power, had received in return the stone of disappointment.

Pity the sorrows of a poor old man, Burn, as was thought, some famous post to grace; Yet, though for office numerous times he ran, He never was known to win a single race.

As regards our being "poor," that is no disgrace, unhandy though it be. Being an "old man" is a little more serious, but to this we also plead "guilty," and find it even growing upon us, and must soon become chronic. We are "falling into the sere and yellow leaf," and so far from being spiteful about it, we congratulate our young friends that they have the advantage of us. Old age grows on space with some, while with others boyhood is perpetual.

As to our second offence--"bartering away principle for place and power"--that will never happen them. They have no principle to barter, and if they had, could not find a market. To quote from Carlyle, "Their heart is always in the right place--that is, in the Market place."

But then why, Oh! why did they steal poetry to eke out their abusive wit? When we were young and enthusiastic, like them, we were wont to write rhymes by the ream, albeit our muse was none of the daintiest. Even now we wouldn't steal rhymes.

When we were young and bog-ant we went to school a little--not very willingly, indeed. Then and there, in our log cabin school house, we were classed in the "English Reader"--a book, we much fear, now out of print--and we well remember, too, of reading "verse about" with our classmates, "The Beggar's Petition," made classic by its introduction into the "Reader," and supposed to be written by "Asos," an old English writer.

Upon this production the Alleghianian has pliated. That defect of memory, which ac companies old age fails us in rendering it literally, but we come near its substance, preserving its measure:

THE BEGGARS' PETITION. Pity the sorrows of two poor young men, Whose drivelling rage they send from door to door; Whose sheet is published only now and then; Oh! give relief and Heaven will bless your store.

This little sheet our poverty bespeaks, Its puny contents show our early years, While we are often forced to act like sneaks, As from each number of our sheet appears, Yon room, a portion of the second floor, Above where Tommy Williams sells his tin, Invited us to come and play the bore, And foolishly enough we both "went in;" Hard is the fate of the infirm and poor, Here as we crave a morsel of your bread, Our paper is refused at many a door, And where "tis taken it is never read.

Oh! take the Alleghianian with you home, (The cold is piercing and the wind blows keen.) Or short will be its passage to the tomb, For we are weak, and miserably mean. Should we reveal the sources of our grief, If soft humanity e'er touched your breast, Your hands would not withhold the kind relief, And tears of pity would not be repressed, Heaven sends misfortunes--why should we get mad? 'Tis Heaven has brought us to this state, you see, And your condition may be soon as bad, But surely worse than ours it cannot be.

A little type was our infernal lot, And many a lark we took from night to morn, But soon our calculations were upset-- Our paper died "acknowledging the corn." Our Congressman, for whom we labored He seems to love the Tribune much too well; Unless the Postoffice through him shall come, We'll bet no longer on our man Morrell. Our tender wife--(we've only one between us, Altho' we honestly deserve a pair;) Yet Juno's grace and all the love of Venus Could not relieve us from our deep despair. Pity the sorrows of two poor young men, Whose wretched case your dearest pity claims; Who can't live by--but may live in--a pen, Oh! give relief to Hutchinson & James.

OWNING UP.

The Alleghianian most ungraciously backs down from the charge made in last week's number against the inmates of St. Xavier's, by admitting that it don't know anything about it, and only copied the article. It is a little too late to endorse a slander by giving it a prominent place in its columns, and then shrink out of it by pleading ignorance. This is Know-Nothingism for you, with a vengeance.

But the funniest thing about it is, that while the Alleghianian dares not re-assert the slander, it declares it "a very low trick" for us to nail the base coin to the counter. If that paper has any desire for the truth, it ought to thank us for exposing error, when "copied" into its columns.

And our young friends can enjoy their sneers at what they call our "new found faith," to their heart's content. We shall not be guilty of the "very low trick" of retorting epithets of that kind, for two reasons--which the Alleghianian understands as well as we do.

A fortnight since the Alleghianian thought it manly and decent to tilt at our business vocation. It now sneers at our religious faith. What next?

We can assure the editors of the Alleghianian that in this field of warfare they are perfectly safe. They can abuse our person as much as they please--it shall not prevent us from exposing their falsehoods.

JOHN SCOTT, ESQ.

The Radical papers in this Congressional District recommend the election of John Scott, Esq., to the United States Senate. Since they have the power, we sincerely hope that a man of acknowledged ability and purity like Mr. Scott may fill the place of Mr. Buckalew in the National Senate.

We should then have at least one man in the councils at Washington of whom the Keystone might feel proud.

An earnest and honest (for they have honest ones among them) Radical, in speaking upon the subject, the other day, conceded that the Democrats were more careful in the selection of their candidates than the Radicals, "so far as the question of talent and integrity were concerned."

It would be well for our opponents to emulate us, at least, in this particular; but we fear they will not. For the credit of our State we hope otherwise, but we fear that Mr. Scott will be sacrificed to Kimble--or probably Morehead--or some other of the less talented and less reputable members of the party. Kimble boasts that he is already as good as elected--and such appears to be the impression among "trading politicians."

It is true, Kimble could not, like Scott, make a speech, but he could make a contract. He could not draw a bill, but he can draw the Legislature. He could not fittingly represent the great Keystone State, but he can represent the money changers.

WE ARE NO BETTER.

Our highly moral young friends of the Alleghianian chide us for offering to bet. We beg leave to assure them, as well as our readers, that betting is not our vice.

On the occasion in question it was only a banter. We knew that the bet would not be taken. Our offer was that a falsehood published in the Alleghianian was a falsehood. We knew it would not be taken for two reasons--the Alleghianian neither had the truth nor the money.

Besides, we don't encourage betting with Radicals, as sometimes they don't pay. We only made two bets during the whole canvass and those were--the cigars that Foster would get more votes than Covode. One of the bets was as good as the bank, and we smoked the cigars, the other "didn't pay," and so both ended in smoke!

But when we say that we are "no better" we don't wish it to be understood that we are "no better" than the editors of the Alleghianian. We think we are, in this, at least, that we would not willfully publish a falsehood; and if we did, we would retract it instead of administering low abuse to the party pointing it out.

"ONWARD" is the title of a new monthly magazine to be conducted by Capt. Mayne Reid. The first number will appear in time for the Christmas holidays, and besides the lore suitable to that mystic season, it will contain the opening chapter of a story of South American Life, entitled the Lost Sister, A Tale of the Pampas; also, the commencement of the Yellow Chief, A Tale of the Prairies. The magazine will be illustrated by the best artists. The mere mention that the favorite writer, Capt. Mayne Reid, is about to publish a magazine, will fill our young folks with delight. Since the story of Robinson Crusoe and the Swiss Family Robinson, no tales of that class have had the popularity of those of Capt. Mayne Reid. Capt. Reid's own life has been filled with romantic adventure in Mexico and in the distant West, and he well understands how to transfer his own strange experience to the page of his charming fictions. No more acceptable Christmas present for youth could be made, than a year's subscription to Capt. Reid's New Magazine.

News of the Week.

Over one hundred thousand applicants for office under Grant have already appeared, and "We are coming. Father Abraham, three hundred thousand more." It is said that President Johnson is bestowing more than usual care on his forthcoming message; and that it will be one of the ablest papers ever issued from the Presidential Chair.

A poor man, with a wife and four children starving, recently stole a bucket of coal in London. He was seized, tried and sentenced to two months' imprisonment. His wife fainted in court.

A little boy of 13, having placed a penny on the railway track at Brunswick Me., to see the locomotive crush it, one of the train hands threw a stick of wood at him and he was instantly killed.

A Washington couple, having the misfortune to lose a child, and wishing to convey the body to Baltimore, evaded the express charges by dressing the child in its usual clothing and took it in between them on the cars.

Levis Brush, sixteen years old, and son of a prominent citizen of Fremont, Ohio, slipped under a freight train, on Sunday evening, while trying to catch a ride, and was so badly crushed that he died in a few hours.

Governor Geary declines to accredit to Congress any representative from the Twenty-first district, in which it will be recalled the candidates were Messrs. Covode and Foster. He leaves the whole question to Congress.

A South Carolina negro has obtained "forty acres of land and a mule." But it was not through politics, but by letting them alone and attending to his business, when he was remembered in the will of his former owner.

The reason why Grant received more votes in Allegheny county than Hartranft, it is now ascertained, was because Grant received less votes in Westmoreland and Indiana than Hartranft. Covode didn't need them in November.

The New York Gazette thinks Gen. Grant "will be likely to attract more weight to special fitness and competency, and less to party service, as qualifications and claims for office, than has been done for a good many years past."

A little daughter of Mr. Miles Rice, of Ravenswood, Jackson county, W. Va., was burned to death in his dwelling, which was consumed by fire on the night of the 6th. The child was locked up in a room when the house took fire.

Governor Hoffman, of New York, received the largest vote ever cast for any candidate in that State, viz: 438,459, and the largest vote ever cast for any candidate in any State in the Union since the foundation of the government.

Men like office as naturally as pigs and ducks like mud, or negroes sunshine and sleep. Throw an American up into the air five miles, wheel him around five thousand times, and when he comes down his arm will be stretched to the utmost for an office.

General Grant is impartial in his distribution of favors in New York. He dines with Pierpont, War Democrat; breakfasts with Greeley, Republican; and dines again with Hoffman, Democrat, at a dinner given in honor of Evans, Johnson Republican.

It is a singular fact that no President of the United States up to the present time has had a child born in the White House. It is understood that the fact will not exist long after the 4th of March next. Appomattox's wife is said to be in an interesting condition.

W. W. Richardson, of Coosa county, Ala., a Radical Justice of the Peace, hung himself on the 11th inst. He left a letter stating that one of the causes which led him to commit the act was remorse for the manner in which he had treated the white people of his neighborhood.

Two large bears were killed last week, in Clarion county. One was shot not far from Strattanville, by a Mr. Hanbold, and weighed nearly four hundred pounds. The other was killed near Jones & Johnson's mill in the upper part of Clarion county, and weighed over four hundred pounds.

Culfax's latest denial is that he didn't during the Scott campaign, write bogus letters from the South to the Louisville Courier. As the editor of that paper publishes a letter, dated New Orleans, which Culfax sent him from South Bend, Ind., the denial must be put along with that of know-nothingism.

A careful estimate of the number of white men disfranchised in the State of Missouri fixes the figure at ninety thousand. That is a specimen of the way the recent Presidential election was carried in the States of the South. Is it strange that the Radicals are able to figure up by majorities for their candidate.

The Leavenworth (Kansas) Commercial tells this story: Yesterday a child was born on Cheyenne street which was half black, the right side of the face and body being as black as a coal. Nature plays strange freaks sometimes, but this is the strangest which has yet come under our notice. The child is a bouncing, healthy boy, and will undoubtedly be a great curiosity in the scientific world.

Mrs. Mary E. Hall, a widow woman aged 61 years, was brutally murdered in Philadelphia, on Sunday night last, by being beaten by a poker and then thrown out of a second story window. Her son-in-law, Geo. B. Twitchell, jr., and his wife have been arrested on suspicion. The old lady was in comfortable circumstances, and it is supposed she was murdered in order that the accused might obtain her property.

A second Hospital for the Insane, is about to be built by the State of Pennsylvania, near Danville, Montour county. The building will be of stone, four stories high. The exterior walls will be laid in rubble-work painted with colored mortar. The building will have a centre and four transverse wings, and will be 1,143 feet in length. All the stairs in the building will be of iron. The edifice is calculated to hold five hundred patients, and is arranged so as to accommodate two hundred and fifty males and two hundred and fifty females.

Jonathan Draper, the oldest citizen of Shaftsbury, Vermont, died recently. In less than a week after his death, his aged wife, undoubtedly overcome by a sense of grief and loneliness, and unable to endure the separation from the stay and staff of her years, put an end to her own existence by hanging herself to the post of her bed.

Schenectady has a genius in the shape of a saloon keeper, who has trained a number of rats to run across his floor and waken up his customers who sleep about on chairs. The startled drinkers see the rats; the barkeeper declares there are no rats there; and the former, thinking delirium tremens to be approaching, quickly go home.

The Fairfield (Iowa) Ledger says that a young man in Jefferson county, recently from the east, fell in love with, courted, and was engaged to be married to a young lady near Fairfield, when, just before the day set for the wedding, the expectant bride found in her husband a brother, adopted when a child by a friend of her family, and for many years numbered with the lost.

A floating paragraph informs us that the State of Illinois has adopted a new seal. The design is an eagle on a boulder in a prairie, the rising sun in the distant horizon. In the beak of the eagle is a scroll bearing the words "State Sovereignty--National Union." The idea of "State Sovereignty" in Illinois, which gave us Lincoln and Grant for Presidents, is curious.

The Bangor Whig tells a remarkable story of a man who at Tennant's Harbor, who, being out on his dry, fell overboard and not being able to swim, conceived the idea of striking the bottom and "floating" it ashore. Accordingly shutting his eyes and teeth firmly together, he struck out for the shore, until, believing he must be near land, he opened his eyes and found himself in the middle of a corn-field.

The oldest house in the United States is believed by some to be a stone edifice in Guilford, Conn. It was built in 1640, the stone being brought in handbarrows from a ledge some distance from the site of the building. The cement with which the walls were laid up is said to be harder than the stone itself. The first wedding in Guilford took place in this edifice, the supper provided being pork and peas.

The New York Democrat says: "A note from Dr. Helmbold's most intimate friend assures us that the unkind rumors circulated by an unscrupulous press concerning the insanity of the Doctor, are entirely unfounded. Dr. Helmbold has for some time past overworked and taxed his brain, and, like many others, feels the effect of the sudden relaxation. Our word for it, the lively laddie is worth a hundred crazyfolks yet."

THE DEAD ALIVE.--Saturday before last, at 11 o'clock A. M., in the city of Meadville, Erie county, Pa., George Warren, to all appearance, breathed his last. He was prepared for burial, and the remains were to be sent to Erie for interment. His sister, who was present at the time of his supposed demise, arrived there on Saturday night, and made preparations for receiving the melancholy cortege. On Monday, a hearse and carriages went to the depot, but the object of their search was not there, and they received word that the funeral party had missed the train. The hearse went to the depot again on Tuesday, but instead of the corpse, there came a dispatch stating that Mr. Warren showed signs of life.

Another dispatch stated that he had been removed from his coffin and was sitting up in bed. What must be the feelings of his friends at this having restored to them one who was mourned as dead beyond the probability of a doubt? He lay in the death-like trance state for about forty-eight hours before exhibiting signs of animation, and it was almost a providential circumstance that the interment was set for a place some distance from where the supposed death occurred. The disease that prostrated him was typhoid fever, and the contemplated interment at Erie was probably the means of averting that horror of horrors--unconsciously burying a living human being.

THE SENATORIAL QUESTION.--The Radical newspapers of this State seem to be much exercised over the question as to who shall be elected to represent the Radical party in the United States Senate instead of Mr. Buckalew. Some of them demand that the new incumbent shall be chosen with reference to his ability and fitness for the office. What folly it is for them to indulge in such silly talk? Do they not all know that there is only one question which will be considered? Before the Legislative caucus meets the whole thing will have been settled just as it was two years ago. Somebody will have bought up a majority of the Radical members, for so much a head, and they will vote for the man who pays best. The caucus nomination will be equivalent to an election, and the whole thing is only a question of dollars and cents. Everybody knows that.--Lancaster Intelligencer.

His wife bore him seventeen children, fourteen of whom are now living, the youngest of them having turned fifty. In July last, at the age of ninety-nine years, he walked from Garrettsville to Milton, a distance of thirty-one miles, in less than six consecutive hours, with only one rest, the mercury being 96 degrees. He has not tasted intoxicating liquors for over sixty years; never paid a dollar for doctor or lawyer's fees; has voted at every Presidential election since the adoption of our Constitution, and has served his country in two wars.
