

THE FREEMAN.

EBENSBURG, PA., THURSDAY, : : : Dec. 10, 1868

Our President.

We find an article under this head in the last Alleghanian; and, though headed as editorial, it is signed "A. A. Barker."

But, besides this, we deem it worthy of a reply, as Mr. Barker, through an extreme Radical, is a worthy gentleman—and one without whom there would be no Radical party in Northern Cambria.

From the tenor of Mr. Barker's article in the Alleghanian it is plain that he does not like the fact that Democrats acquiesce cheerfully in the election of General Grant.

General Grant is to-day, or will be on the Fourth of March, just as much "our" (or, if we may drop the editorial plural,) just as much my President as he is Mr. Barker's.

Mr. Barker seems to us to labor under the strange delusion that Ulysses S. Grant is not the President elect of the United States, including all the Democrats, Radicals, men, women, children, and negroes in the said United States.

But Mr. Barker thinks that the fact of the Democratic party showing favor to Grant would be in "consideration" of "good, generous share of public patronage?"

Oh! no, Mr. Barker; take, or let your friends take, what they have fought for.—Give them their "seven leaves and two fishes"—those beloved principles for which they fought with so much ardor and so much success, but give us a good administration!

Some Democrats, it is true, imprudently, as we thought, copied the charges of Horace Greeley, and Henry Ward Beecher, and Wendell Phillips, against him on the subject of intoxication—some of them reiterated Ben. Butler's abuse of him—but as a general thing they treated him fairly.

The Democratic party in opposing Grant did so doubting whether his capacity and experience fitted him for the trust—and they still have misgivings on that subject.

No, no, Mr. Barker, you must dismiss the idea that the President of the United States belongs to a party. He is the property of the nation.

But, even if one of them could have been nominated, and could have been elected, his Radicalism would have vanished before his aid to support the Constitution, and to see that the LAWS are faithfully executed.

From and after the fourth day of March, then, General Grant is "our" President as much as yours—our interest in the country is exactly equal to yours—and no other theory can be sustained for a moment.

It Won't Do.—The Alleghanian charges us with "a desire to array a certain religious class against" it. Not at all.

As to arraying "certain religious class against" you, there is no danger of that. The Catholic Radicals of Cambria county, who stood Know-Nothingism with you, which disfranchised themselves, will not likely stumble at a false charge made against a few priests and monks.

When? Where?—The Alleghanian says the FREEMAN "commits an unwarranted assault on us." We should like to know when and where.

A CURIOSITY.

We commend the seeker after the "Curiosities of Literature" to the fourth column of the second page of this week's Alleghanian. He will there find a production which is neither "fish, flesh nor fowl"—neither prose nor poetry—neither English nor any other language—neither "rhyme nor reason"—sense nor—no, it does not rise to the dignity of respectable nonsense.

We cheerfully acquit the real editors of this abortion—this wanton homicide on the Queen's English—this outrage done upon the manes of the departed poets. We say the real editors, for neither Mr. BARKER nor Mr. SINGLETON could best such a production; and though the names of "J. Todd Hutchinson, Ed. James, Editors," appear under the head of the paper, they do not pretend to edit it—nor does either of them.

Mr. BARKER, the proprietor of the Alleghanian, did not write it; for he has taken the wise precaution of appending his name to what he does write.

Neither did the nominal junior editor write it; for he is a young man of decent habits.

Then who did write it? It is highly important we should know, for the writer should get it patented at once as a new feature in composition.

Take this production, then, oh! reader, and examine it, provided, always, that your wife, or sister, or daughter, be not present, as the thing is not very chaste, as we understand it, and then guess at the name of the inventor, and if you can solve this conundrum, you may perchance drag him into the light.

Of course it is not for us to point out the author of this unique performance. We have been speaking of it merely on its merits as a performance. It is intended as a low and vindictive attack on the editor of this paper.

Hence, every winding of the scaly serpent in his abortive production shows that while he, or it, can do what a man could not do, make a jest of the physical infirmities of another—infirmitie inflicted by the same hand that made us a cripple and him a snake—he still feels his inferior condition.

Who the author of this famous thing is we know not; and we are glad we do not know. It would not pay us to find out.

EDITORIALITIES.

No worse.—Alleghanian. Worse you cannot be.

CONSUMED.—What post was the long nominal born to grace? Give it up! Answer.—The whipping post.

CONSUEVED.—What is the best office for a long, lean, lank, leathersided, hungry Ebenburg Radical? Answer.—The Purgatory Office.

STILL AT IT.—One of the nominal of the Alleghanian informs us of a fact in our history with which we were not acquainted, though present at the time.

Not Yet!—The Blairsville Press copies an item taken from the Harrisburg Patriot and transferred to our columns, and undertakes to show us its falsity, and then asks, "Will there be any honorable enough to publish a retraction after seeing this mistake?"

But, even if one of them could have been nominated, and could have been elected, his Radicalism would have vanished before his aid to support the Constitution, and to see that the LAWS are faithfully executed.

From and after the fourth day of March, then, General Grant is "our" President as much as yours—our interest in the country is exactly equal to yours—and no other theory can be sustained for a moment.

Nine Hundred Miles of the Pacific Railroad.

How long is it since we chronicled, with some pardonable American boasting, the fact that eight hundred miles of the Union Pacific Railroad were in operation? Indeed, we may go a little further back and ask how long since our columns told of the finishing of seven hundred, of six hundred, and of five hundred and forty miles? Wonderful as it may seem, all this has been within one short year.

The base of the Rocky Mountains and the five hundred and fortieth mile post were achieved last year, when the severity of winter compelled extra track-layers to lay down the sledges with which they had spiked down over two hundred miles of track in 1867.

It was the addition of five hundred miles of civilization to our nation's domain. But since, in less than two months thereafter, we record the building of three hundred and sixty more miles, and the completion of nine hundred west from the Missouri river, at Omaha, and yet the work of 1868 is not done, for we read that on the 27th of October more than seven and one-third miles of track were laid, and the distance completed by saying, "A large force is at work day and night." We should think it was. Seven miles of railroad a day is not particularly suggestive of holidays, or eight hour movements, or long "nooning."

The way business of the road has been immense. For the year ending June 30, 1868, the earnings were over six million dollars, while for the month of September alone were $54,000. One hundred and eleven locomotives and 1298 cars are constantly employed in transportation.

For further information would refer our readers to De Haven & Bro., No. 40 South Third street, Philadelphia, who have the Bonds for sale at $1.02 and interest.

Insidious Efforts.—Cast Iron Stoves.—The public mind has been somewhat agitated by the recent action of that repository of useful knowledge, the French Academy of Sciences, which, at its late sitting in Paris, deliberated upon the extremely interesting question of the health of cast iron stoves, arriving at the conclusion that the heated surface generates hydrogen from organic matter raised to a high temperature.

It is a remarkable result of the late election that in Juniata county Seymour received exactly the same number of votes that McClellan received four years ago, and 1753. At the recent election Grant received 1473 votes—which by reversing the two last figures making 73 to read 37 (will denote the exact number of votes received by Lincoln four years ago—1437.

A mother (?) in Philadelphia who whipped her child (a bright little fellow of twelve) frequently and severely, rendered his life so unhappy that he appropriated a bottle of poison from a shelf in the drug store where he was employed, went home, ate his frugal supper, got up in the morning, swallowed a portion of the poison, and in half an hour was a corpse.

One of the Radical Presidential electors of South Carolina having resigned, on account of disqualification, under the fourteenth amendment, Wilson Cook, a negro, was elected to fill the vacancy.

South Carolina only casts six electoral votes. What must be the condition of the Republican party of that State when six white men cannot be found in its ranks qualified to act as Presidential electors?

New York City elects the democratic candidates for mayor and corporation counsel, Hall and O'Go man, by upwards of 54,000 majority, in a vote of 96,000. The radical candidate received but about 20,000 votes, less than one-half the number given to Grant a month ago.

Does it not seem as though frauds had been committed by the Grant men, rather than by the friends of Seymour?

A resolution passed from Washington to the Revoluter says Senator Pomeroy has a bill ready to present immediately on the opening of Congress, proposing an amendment to the Constitution giving suffrage to all citizens of both sexes, leaving the States to fix the age when the exercise of the right may begin.

Mrs. Leslie and her two children were burned to death at Stog King, N. Y., on Saturday evening, in consequence of the upsetting of a kerosene lamp. The mother was holding her infant in her arms, and her little boy, aged three years, was playing under the table on which a kerosene lamp was burning.

News of the Week.

At Lewistown, Maine, the other day, a little girl of ten years was fined ten dollars for stealing, and was committed for want of the money.

The fellow that made a matrimonial bet on the election now says it was all a joke, but the young woman intends to give it point by holding him to his wager.

In the piously loyal city of Allegheny, a man by the name of James Rumble, the other day, committed a rape on the person of a little orphan girl, twelve years of age.

Mr. Corcoran, the wealthy Washington banker, has determined to erect an asylum suitable for the accommodation of "sixty aged, indigent females of respectable," with a permanent endowment sufficient for their comfortable support.

The Courts of Charleston have decided the recent election of a radical mayor in that city illegal, and a new election is to take place. The radicals do, once in a while, carry elections in a way that their own courts cannot approve.

A special despatch from New Orleans says negroes in Jefferson Parish, Louisiana, "refuse to be tried by colored jurors." Same thing happened the other day in an Alabama county. You see the Man and Brother rather likes "rebel barbarity." Agrees with him.

On Friday week a man named Eggleman, living in Carlinville, Illinois, cut the throat of his divorced wife, nearly severing her head from her body. Eggleman was arrested and lodged in jail, but on Monday a mob of country people took him from the jail and hung him.

In Dardanelle, Arkansas, a few days ago, the wife of a citizen of that place shot and killed Jennie Gross, a dissolute woman, of whom her husband had become desperately enamored, inflicting a mortal wound. The fire was returned without effect when the husband shot the wife, killing her instantly.

the greatest known remedies for

Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA,

Nervous Debility,

JAUNDICE,

Diseases of the Kidneys,

ERUPTIONS OF THE SKIN,

and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or
