Contesting the Election.

We observe that a large portion of the Democratic press of the State has expressed a decided wish that the election of John W. before the election, changed front, and from being John W. Geary will be put on the witness stand .--Let there be a thorough investigation of Kemble's administration of the affirs of the treasury department. It is due to the people of the State as well as to himself, especially so if Geary's suspicions about his being a defaulter were unfounded.

OWNING UP AT LAST .- Never did the Post print a truer paragraph than the fol We admit that in the country districts an lowing, which we find in its columns this

> "Thus it is plain that as the questions of the war drift into the past, the magic of the Republican name looses its power. Voters do not see what Sheridan's ride in the Shenandoah, or the surrender of Lee at Appomattox, has to do with the duties of a Philadelphia Sheriff, or the business which comes before Councils. They want honest business men in office to rightly anninistor public affairs. This is the first want, and they will have it in some way."

They have discovered that an epaulette or a star does not always rest upon the shoulders or breast of either an honest or a competent man. We always supposed it would be so, only that the good time is coming a little sooner than we had anticipated. The position of the Democratic party, in regard to this matter, although bitterly assailed for a season, has proven impregnable to ample and would have a beneficial effect in all assaults. When, therefore, we find such sentiments as those from our Radical cotemporary, we are led to believe that hereafter shoulder straps and military titles will carry no weight with them, politically, unless the wearer of them has something above and bethat Furman Sheppard, the late able and wond them to recommend him to public favor -honesty and ability .- Philadelphia Even ing Herald. ### Death of George Peabody.

It is with unaffected sorrow that we record to-day the death of the distinguished merchant and philanthropist, George Peabody, which occurred in Lon ion on Thursday night last. The deceased was a native of Massawanted Brewster, the man whom Geary had chusetts. Danvers claiming the honor of his instructed to prosecute Kemble, " as soon as birth-place-for an honor it certainly is. yon (Geary) were re-elected," removed from | He was born in 1795, February 18; conseoffice. According to the Philadelphia Post, quently, he was nearly seventy-five years of Mann, McClure and Kemble suddenly, just age. At a very early age he was apprenticed to the mercantile business, commencing his career as a grocer's errand boy. He subsequently abandoned the idea of becoming foes, became his warm and active friends. Is grocer and entered the store of his brother, and did all they could to carry Philadelphia a dry goods merchant, with whom he remained for a number of years. He commenced business with his uncle in Washington, D. C., and a few years after entered into a partnership with an established house in Baltimore, Brauch dry goods houses were also established in Philadelphia and New York-all of which proved eminent successes. Having accumulated a handsome least, is saved. All this has an exceedingly fortupe by his industry and ability, and having in his several visits to England on business been impressed with its advantages for his purposes, he took up his residence permanently in England in 1837, establishing himself in London as a merchaut and broker. It is scarcely necessary to say that in his adopted home Mr. Peabody was more successful even than in his native one. Wealth flowed in upon him in almost unmeasured abundance, and as it accumulated he began to devise measures for the judicious disbursement of a large portion of it. Keeping a teady eye to his regular business, Mr. Peabody at the same time looked around him carefully for objects upon which to exercise his philanthropic disposition. The poor of Lonn, his native town, the city of Baltimore, the Southern States, and in fact almost every leserving object, were the subjects of his benevolence. In the meantime he was not forgetful of his own immediate family and friends, for all of whom who required it he provided liberally. His douations of money, ublic and private, are larger in the aggregate than perhaps those of any man who ever lived. He acted upon the idea that they would be better applied if made while he was living than as bequests to be carried into effect after his death. This is only in keeping with the wisdom which characterized his whole life. It would be well than his example in this particular were followed by other wealthy men who purpose d mating portions of their wealth to philanthropic purposes. Had Dr. Rash, of our city, acted in this spirit his bequest to the Philadelphia Library instead of being hampered by foolish provisions would, in all probability, have seen made to conform much more fully to the general public good as well as public convenience. Mr. Peabody has gone to his last rest universally respected and beloved. He had probably not an enemy in the world, and his death will be mourned as a national loss.

Foster and Covode.

The following Washington dispatch was sent to a Philadelphia Radical paper last week :

The testimony in the case of the Twentyfirst Pennsylvania District has been sent to the printers by the committee. It shows that over 200 fraudulent votes were cast for the office, and appointed in his stead Charles Foster by colonizers and minors, upon forged Gibbons, the author of the Registry law of naturalization papers. Foster in Westmoreland and Fayette counties. Does any sane man believe that this was so ? It is useless, he werer, to discuss the question now, as the whole matter will be disposed of by Congress at its next session.

Plainly Spoken.

The fraudulent alteration of the election returns in the first Philadelphia Senatorial district was so glaring, that the honest portion of the Radical press have denourced it : as an instance of which we publish the following manly and outspoken article from the Norristown Independent. Even Judge Allison, who was applied to to interfere and arrest the outrage, while he indirectly admitted the fraud, said he was powerless to preof the press of both parties to denounce it.

Although his title is rather imposing, it does not in the Count's own home imply either an impressive weight of dignior a purse noticeably heavy. The Duke of Baden has small cash to spare and none to bestow on Grand Chamberlains, who have little to do about his Court, and who "come cheap" in a land where every fourth Dutchman is a Count or a Baron. Indeed a moderate belly-full of kraut and pumpernickel every Sunday is the only kind of "government pap" that ever distends the shrivelled skin of Schneidenbutzen, who is an uncommon'y sorry specimen of the Teutonic nobility. The poor fellow is said to be in ocstacies over his good fortune in securing an heiress for a wife, and to be especially joyous in the prospect of falling into the vacant shirts, bocks, breeches and shees of the "late lamented." a large number of which have not yet followed his coats and hats to the junk-shop.

A pair of the "martyr's" trousers is being cut down for Schneidenbutzen by Count Kortzenbratzen, the Grand Duke's tailor, S. being a short-legged little fellow, while the late A. L., as everybody knows, strode the land on a pair of natural stilts.

It will be a funny sight, not however without some melancholy suggestiveness, to behold poor Scineidenbutzen leading" Mary, relict of Abraham Lincoln, deceased," to the altar, clad in the veritable habiliments of his illustrious predecessor, his breeches shingovernment of this country and its public ing with autographic grease spots left by White House dinners of the past-his little feet shaking about loose in a pair of Illinois boots, a mile too big for them-and his tiny hands encased in a pair of those enormous doubt that legislation conceived in the same yellow kids in which the fist of the Martyr was said to bear a striking resemblance to a canvased Cincunatti ham.
