To the Democratic Voters of Cambria

County. In pursuance of a resolution of the County Committee, adopted Dec. 6th, 1869, I request the Democratic voters of the county to meet at their respective places of holding elections on SATURDAY, JUNE 4TH, 1870, at 2 o'clock, P. M.,—

A PROMINENT Radical paper in the west ern portion of this State contains the announcement that there are fourteen prospec, tive candidates anxious for the next Republican nomination for Governor. The names of these self-sacrificing patriots, as published by the editor, include such renowned heroes and statesmen as WHITE and TODD and Covods and CESSNA. Cambria county is doubly honored, as two of her citizens are embraced in the formidable list, viz: DAN-121. J. MORRELL and JACOB M. CAMPBELL, both of whom are residents of Johnstown, a theiring village that seems at the present writing to be prolific in great men.

IT will be seen from the following card from Hon. C. L. PERSHING that he declines to have his named used as a candidate for the Legislature. We can truthfully say of Mr. PERSHING these two things: That he is a gentleman of well known and widely re cognized ability, and that he is pure and beyond reproach. Mouring owls in and about Johnstown may and have attempted to hawk at and tear him, but Mr. PERSHING's pure and unsulfied reputation will remain as a full and complete vindication against all the assaults of his enemies, here or elsewhere.

It is the second and most emphatic rebuke of that embodiment of all Congressional villainies, the fifteenth amendment, by the electors of the unterrified Democracy of the entire State, and from its crushing result the insolent and usurping spirit of Radicalism may learn a lesson that has not hitherto been dreamed of in its political phylosophy. The Radical Legislature of that State, although elected without any regard to the Majority Four Hundred. Amnesty.

A few days ago the Senate had under consideration a bill, most infamous in itsp rovisions, to enforce the fifteenth amendment. The question of a general amnesty became prominent in the discussion and was bitterly opposed by Moston, Drake, and others of their stamp, whose ideas of statesmanship seem to be embodied in one word-rengeance. Gen. FERRY, one of the Radical Senstors from Connecticut, and who fought the rebels in the field while such sucshine patriots as Monron and DRAKE were in the pursuit of office, made a vigorous speech in favor of the removal of all political disabilities from the Southern people, in which he the following broad and statesmanlike senti-

Has it created or raised up there a loyal generation loving the crown and ready to rally around the Union Jack? No, sir. Ireland tells the story today of disabilities and test oaths, What have they done for England herself ?

They were tried after the revolution of 1688. Go look at the statute book of the reign of William III. THE NEW YORK ELECTION .- In the New York World we find the following items in regard to the recent elections : The returns all come in better for the Democratic ticket, and the majority for Church is steadily rising. There is hardly a doubt that the Democracy have carried the State outside of the cities of New York and Brooklyn. Jefferson county is Democratic for the first time in seventeen years.

The World publishes a tabular statement of the vote by counties, which show the Democratic majority to be 64,850. Comparing the majorities in the counties given in the World with those of the election for President in 1868, the Democratic gain in Allegheny county is about 1,700; in Broome, 1,000; Columbia, 900; Cortland, 1,100; Delaware, 700; Dutchess, 800; Erie, 3 100; Essex, 800; Green, 400; Kings, 1.000; 2,000; and nearly every county in the State show proportional gains.

President Grant Insults General Hancock.

In the comments which a sense of duty constrains us to make on a recent insult offered by the President of the United States te one of the most distinguished and patriotic officers of the army, we hope we may be able to speak in measured language, and to keep within the limits of that decorum which a public journal would wish to observe towards the chief magistrate of the

Ha presented one of the rarest combinations of modest reserve and brilliant services in the whole army. None of our distinguished officers, not even General Meade, would have seemed so secure against any kind of insult. And yet General Hancock has been insulted; insulted by a person from whom insult was least to have been expected, the commander-in-chief of all our armies.

Some time since, General Hancock wrote to Lieutenant-General Sherman, inquiring why he was not premoted to the position made vacant by the death of General Thom-What did Austria make by her pains and as, which belonged to him in the order of precedence. His letter was shown to President Grant, who dictated the substance of the reply. Shortly afterwards, General Hancock received from the Lieutenant-General a curt answer couched in the following insulting terms !

. I am requested by the President to inform " you that there is nothing in your personal "relations to General Grant, or in your " official relations to his administration, that "could justify your promotion now, or lead " you to expect it hereafter."

Even if the President had determined to ignore the just claims of this distinguished fficer, why should he descend to this exhibition of insulting insolence? He might have closed the door against General Hancock without slamming it so rudely in his face. A cold, stiff civility would have been irritating enough, without a display of spiteful personal feeling, or a gratuitous to equal that of previous sessions-say threat to obstruct General Hancock's rise in the army so long as President Grant rethat the frauds and corruptions of legislation mains in power. No other President than Grant would have thus gratified his personal malignity at the expense of official decorum. Any other President, even if he could have acted on so ignoble a motive, would have had the decency to veil it under the specious forms of official etiquette. An answer might easily have been made to General Hancock, which, while extinguishing his hopes, would not have stung his pride or wounded his censibilities. But the Presi dent could not restrain himself from offering an affront; and the sharp pen of General Sherman gave terseness and point to the

So far as we can recollect, this is the first time that General Grant has authorized an expression in writing of the principles on which he makes his appointments, and of the extension of those principles to promotions in the army. He does not regard his power as a public trust to be administered for the public advantage, but as a species of private property, which he uses to reward personal services, discharge obligations of personal gratitude, and wreak personal vengeance on those whom he hates or dislikes. He is told that General Grant's personal dislike is a fatal bar, now and for all future time, to a recognition of his claims! The grounds of General Grant's malignant hostility to this brilliant and esteemed officer, are best understood by himself. All that the public know is that Hancock was stationed at St. Louis at a time when he and his family were for years witnesses of Grant's daily degradation in the streets of that city; that he wrote a noble letter in delence of civil rights when he was one of the commanders in the South under the Reconstruction acts; and that he was one of the candidates for President voted for by the Democratic National Convention. If the President had any magnanimity, or even a reasonable self-respect, he would not have let such facts incite him to injustice and insult.
