After the 'decorating services had been gone through with at the Catholic graveyard Rev. R. C. Christy, pastor of the church, delivered an able and impressive address, in which he paid a hasty bait comprehensive tribute to the memory of the thousands of brave spirits who had laid down their lives in the great and sanguinary struggle through which our country has so recently passed—many, very many of whose graves would not that day be strewn with flowers and other emblems of the deep affection and heartfelt gratitude of living friends. At the conclusion of Father Christy's remarks, the procession re-formed and proceeded to the Congregational cemetery, where the same sacred rites rational cemetery, where the same sacred rites were performed, and where Rev. G. W. Klendenan, pastor of the U. Brethren church, made a few eloquent remarks which did honor alike to his head and his heart, and were eminently befitting the occasion. efftting the occasion.

This over, the column took up its line of march for Lloyd's cemetery, a short distance from town, where no less than thirteen fallen heroes sleep the sleep of death. The graves of all were elaborately decorated and hallowed by the presence and offerings of admiring friends, after which Rev. T. R. Jones, pastor of the Congregational charch, paid a touching tribute to the memory of those whom it was sought to honor in this public and commendable manner, and hoped that their brave deeds and unsullied names would ever be held in grateful rememnames would ever be held in grateful remembrance by their countrymen, from whom a deep debt of gratitude was due to their memories. In the centre of the cemetery was then erected a large cross, to which was attached an imnease wreath bearing the following inscription:
To the memory of our dead who sleep on outhern battle fields." This duty attended to. Wm. H. Sechler, Esq., praceeded to address the assemblage, reminding them of the brave sol-diers whose bones are now perhaps bleaching upon gory fields far away, where they had met death in its most appalling form—whose shattered remains had not received the rites of Christian sepulchre-and in whose behalf the erection of this sacred memorial was but a meagre tribute. Mr. Sechler's remarks were full of pathos, and were well calculated to call forth a tear to the memories of those brave, dear ones who found their last resting place on some dreary Southern plain.

For the aid thus rendered we have been requested to return to one and all the sincere thanks of the returned soldiers, as well as of the friends and kindred of the departed ones, who desire especially to express their appreciation of the good work done by the floral committee on

Men Who Advertise. The object of making known the business of any man through the column of a newspaper is of course to attract the attention of those who read the paper, and if possible to induce them to deal with the merchant or other person who appeals to them for patronage in this way. When men therefore pay the printer for announcing that they have received a new stock of goods which they are selling at lowest cash prices, or that they are prepared to do a certain kind of work or to attend to a specified business, they do so in hopes of getting their money back by attracting the custom of their fellow men. And it is such as these that deserve to succeed, for they hide not their light under a bushel and fear not to make public announcement of what they are prepar-ed and pledged to do by the very terms of their cards. To such men as these can be traced the prosperity of the community in which they live, and among that class in our own town it is draw-ing no invidious distinction to name Messrs. R. R. Davis, A. G. Fry, H. A. Shoemaker & Co., and V. S. Barker, who deal extensively in all kinds of dry goods, clothing, notions, groceries, etc.—E. J. Mills, who represents the best mills in the country in the line of flour, feed and produce—and George Huntley, the man who keeps a more extensive, more varied and more select g for the celebration of the coming stock of hardware, queensware, farming utensils, and other goods in his line, than any other dealer in them far or near. These merchants all solicit patronage because they believe they deserve it, and feel they can make it to the interest of buyers to extend to them a leberal custom, and in this we feel sure that neither of them will fail to do all that can be done by any one who pretends to do business and make

> The Very Best .- Munson's Copper Tubular Lightning Rod, with Spiral Finnges, has been erected on thousands of buildings in all parts of the United States; and in a test of thirteen years, no instance of their inefficiency has occurred. It has received the first premiums at many State Fairs and Institutes, and was never beaten in any scientific contest. It has been endorsed by over five hundred Professors of Colleges and scientific men, as the best rod ever invented, possessing all the elements re-quired to protect buildings from lightning. Its power surpasses twenty iron rods, or a solid copper rod an inch and a half thick. It does not ret out of order, but will endure as long as the building stands on which it is erected. No holes are made in slate or tin roofs, and in every respect the utmost satisfaction is guaranteed.— The attention of Architects and Builders is reectfully called to the merits of this rod. nufactured by LOGEBART & Co., 234 Penn street, Pittsburgh, and put up in Cambria county only by RICHARD JONES, Johnstown, Pa., who will prompely execute work entrusted to him in the most perfect and satisfactory manner. Slightly Mistaken. Many of our readers have no doubt heard of that sublimely verdant individual who concluded that "Mr. Co." must oe a wonderfully rich man, because his name opeared on so many sign-boards and he seemed appeared on so many sign-boards and he seemed to be mixed up in all kinds of money-making business. Our innocent friend did not exactly ecomprehend the situation, and gerhaps he will be still further surprised when we assure him that "Mr. Co." has gone into partnership with our next door neighbor, M. L. Oatman—he whose establishment has recently been transmogrified from a plain grocery store to the most extensive, full stocked and finest arranged dry goods, grocery, notion, clothing, queensware and glassware emporium in Northern Cambria. Yes, sir, the establishment is now presided over by M. L. Oatman & Co., and you bet that they have gone to work with their sleeves rolled up and fully determined to do the biggest kind of business on the most liberal kind of business on the most liberal kind of terms. So if you want to see a superb stock and get superb bargains you should by all means consult our and energetic neighbors, Oatman & Co., who are vell prepared to supply the wants of all classes

The Right Place .- People who visit Loretto at any time, as well as those who do their purchasing in that borough, should not fail to look in on the magnificent stock of goods, of every kind, which is now on exhibition at the first class mercantile establishment of A. J. Christy who is offering special inducements to the buyers of dry goods, groceries, drugs, and other articles, of which he has a splendid assortment. Low prices, superb goods and cam sales is the line Mr. C. proposes to fight it out on, if his friends only back him, as they should do.

Auction Sale .- An extensive auction sale will be held on Teursday, June 9th, at H a. M., at the saw mill of Long & Bracken, four miles from Gallitzin Station, Pa. R. R., comprising a superior limestone Farm of 240 acres, with good buildings and excellent springs of water; also, one extra good Portable Saw Mill, (built by Blandy, Zanesville, Ohio,) Horses, Oxen, Harness, Wagons, Ploughs, and many other mill and farming implements, etc., etc. Good barg can no doubt be obtained at this great sale.

Tempus Fugit.—That is Letin for "Time flies," and has no reference to "Shoo fly!" or those other kind of flies, but leads us to say that if you want to see it in all its glory you should visit the greatly enlarged clock, watch, jewelry and fancy goods emporium of C. T. Roberts, who plays boss over one of the finest and best stocked establishments of the kind in Western Pennsylvania. Go and see Cham's splendid display, and then buy what you need.

. Mr. T. R. Evans, the photograph artist, has recently completed a most superb iverytype likeness of a deceased lady, and which he proposes to take with him to photographer's convention to be held in Cleveland early this month. It is a work of art of which he may well be proud, and the process required in its production was in a great measure original with Mr. Evans. It should by all means secure a premium.

What Will He Do With It?-People wondered what Mr. Wanamaker wanted to enlarge his Oak Hail for. Let them look in there one of these fine mornings and the crowded sales room will answer their question,

JOHNSTOWN, May 30, 1870. Dear Proman-A visit to Sandy Vale Cemetery disclosed the fact that Mr. Jacob Horner, the proprietor, has put up an ingenious iron gate which lifts by a pulley and works admirably, and can be drawn down and fastened with the greatest ease. Mr. H. is going to have the fact patented.

Hen. D. J. Morrell is home on a visit, looking hearty and cheery. He is a hard-working man on committees and the like, but still he looks none the worse of the wear, and continues to his honors as meekly as ever. bear his honors as meekly as ever.

Conemaugh borough is looking up in the line of improvements. Several of the streets are to be graded and payed, new sewers made, and other improvements inaugurated. Go

Great preparations have been made for decorating to-day the graves of soldiers who fell in the late unnatural and fratricidal war. A number of committees have had the preliminaries in hand for several days, and the probabilities are that the sacred days will be attended to in an elaborate and becoming manner.

Notwithstanding the fact that rain has fallen in abundance of late the streams because. in abundance of late, the streams hereabouts have very little water flowing in their channels. If the rain should cease to fall for a month or so, the rivers would go high and dry.
We have received the June number of the "Teachers' Advocate," which, in our opinion, is the bandsomest paper published in the county and it richly deserves to be supproted by all "law abiding" and pencefully disposed citizens. The market here is already supplied with cur-rents, strawbergies, rhubarb, and such like, and it makes one's feeth water to look at a box of the delicious berries which he is not able to purchase; for, be it remembered, the price is high-

Dry goods are coming down in price, but provisions keep up wonderfully. There is but little change or reduction in the price of groceries and provisions from the prices that ruled during the war. Butter and eggs are exceptions The Crawford County System does not appear to have many friends in this end of the county; and yet, if its friends turn out at the election, and its opponents remain at home, it will do ss carry. Eight or ten votes in each district would carry the county in its favor.

A man named Patick Harkins was killed in the coal mines at South Fork on the 25th day of May. He was brought to Johnstown for interment, but the funeral rites were delayed by the coroner, who claimed the right to hold an inquest. His death was caused by the fall of a large quantity of coal.

Carneross & Dixie's minstrels will open up here on the 2d inst., and continue from day to

The Kickenepawling B. B. Club had a spat with France & Lannier's theatrical troupe at the game of base ball, one day last week. The Kicks" outscored the troupe.

Vine street in Johnstown is to be pavel at ast. The threat to pave it was made years ago. So ended the second observance in our midst of Decoration Day; but before we conclude let us say that the ladies of Ebensburg descrive special commendation for the labor of love they performed in donating flowers, making wreaths performed in donating flowers, making wreaths. A pic-nic was held at East Conemaugh on last Braddocks Independent Cornet Band will discourse sweet music, June 6th, at Hansman's Hall in Hornerstowa, 4th ward, and all who wish can trip on the "light fantastic toe." The Tribune wonders why the butchers prefer red, white and blue, when they get a sign painted. We suppose it is because they are butchers. The red represents the blood, the white stands fornerst good meat and the blue for tainted meat. They light for their flag and are always at war to the knife.

There were three runaway teams apprehended in town last week. One was the team of Mr. Street Commissioners, and the other a team of the Cambria Iron Company. Not much damage done, though some damning. The German Theatrical Troupe of this place will give two entertainments at Union Hall on June 6th and 7th. They perform well. Johnstown Councils have passed an ordinance creating the office of Borough Solicitor, at a salary of $500 per year.

The Co-operative Library Association here have received some new books, and E.Y. Town-send, Esq., of the Cambria Iron Company, has purchased ten memberships, which are to be Almost every evening last week a man was seen on the public square, selling prize packages, which is only another name for a lottery.

We have been informed that a good many people fooled away their money, and didn't get a prize neither. One man got six half dollars in silver for twelve whole dollars in paper.

The little village and didn't get a prize in Gallitzin township.

John Flick to Frank A. Buck, April 9, The little village springing up two miles west of town is to be called Morrellville. We had christened it South Dale, because it was just opposite Coopersdale, southward. If it is not called South Dale, why not just called Morrelle? An examination of teachers for professional certificates is to be held, on the 18th day of June, by County Superintendent Chapman, at the Union School House, Johnstown: One question likely will be "is Jupiter fourteen times as large as the earth?" See "The Immensity of Creation." Only a mistake, Thomas!

CARROLLTOWN, May 30, 1870.

Dear Freeman-As predicted in my last letter, our jumbermen have been favored with a splen-did flood, and I understand that every one of the large number of rafts moored in the river have got off, though it, is to be regretted that the flood failed them after getting as far as Lock Haven; still, to quote a homely saying, "a half loaf is better than no bread," and as they have got out of the upper waters, the chances for rafting floods are greatly improved.

Last Thursday, being Ascension Day, was well observed here, the vast congregation of St. Renedict's having turned out in full force to participate in the devotional exercises at the church. On that day our village was honored with the presence of a number of gentlemen from your town, who spent the day with us in a pleasant manner, and betook themselves, I dare say un-willingly, toward home in the evening. I nowillingly, toward home in the evening. I noticed among others the picasant countenance of MacShane, of the Freeman. You were all welcome, gentlemen,—come soon and often. Here you could witness the dashing side of The good people of St. Boniface (Glosser's settlement) and all lovers of a day's recreation who desire to participate with them, are to have a pic-nic on Monday next, June 6th. It is gratifying, nevertheless, to notice an increasing disposition on part of the people to go to the polls on Saturday next and vote for to go to the poins on Saturday next and vote for one or other of the systems proposed. Again I would urge every Democratic voter to deposit his ballot on this occasion, and henceforth let there be peace and satisfaction regarding nominations made as they will be in accordance with the expressed wisher of the people. From all parts of Northern Cambria comes the most cheering reports as to the prospects for an abundant harvest and a more than usually prolific yield of fruits of all kinds. May these pleasing indications continue to the end. E.

Last Words .- One history says the last words of one of the greatest patriots that ever lived were; Go to Leopold & Bro.'s made-up Clothing Depot, 241 Main street, Johnstown, and get your measure taken for a superb suit for summer wear, and take a look at their nice clothing for men and boys. Don't get into the furniture store, or else you might buy a settee or some thing, but go in at No. 241 and call immediately for a hundred dollars' worth of ciothing, etc.

Do Good .- We live in this world to do all the good we can, and no man can do better act than to buy all his dry goods and groceries from that prince of good fellows, N. F. Carroll, No. 215 (opposite the theatre) Main street, Johnstown. The more you buy the greater good will be done, both to yourself and to our friend Carroll, from whom dry goods and groceries can be bought a spot lower than at any other store thereabouts

Ran Off.-A gentleman in Johnstown went to M. H. Mayer's last week and bought a suit of the splendid made-up clothing found at No. 214, Opera House, Johnstown—a full blown wedding suit—and then ran off to the Smoky City and got married! Lots more of the same kind of suits left. You can't miss the place if you go in at the right door—214 Main street. Go, we beseech you—go and do likewise, MacShane on the Rampage. Dear Freeman—Last week I got us safely out of the great Central Park. We left it on the north side and took the favorite drive known, I believe, as Harlam Avenue. This is a most delightful drive, and we had scarcely time to ad-mire the face of the country and its scenary, so much taken up were we with the various "turn outs" with which the Avenue was constantly abreast on the spacious boulevard.

Our open carriage, with its well trained pair of livery horses, though it would have been "just of livery horses, though it would have been "just the cheese" in Ebensburg, was a heavy looking, homely, lumbering concern alongside the aristocratic equipages that whizzed by and around as on every side like meteors.

We commend the pride and munificence of New York in this; While her drives are much liner, over a much more picturesque country, and the roads broader and better paved than in Philadelphia, no such thing as a tolk-sule, is to be Philadelphia, no such thing as a toll-gate is to be found on any of her drives; while in the latter city the prominent drives, such as the German-town Avenue and Wissehickon Road, have toll-gates every few miles. When I informed my comrade of this he would scarcely credit it, but was afterwards convinced of the fact when a Quaker City gate-keeper told him. The custom of charging toll for driving on a public thoroughfare is peculiar to Philadelphia, and should

But to return to New York. Our drive was extended to that well known object of attraction, the High Bridge. This magnificent structure conducts the Croton water over the Harlam river at an immense altitude. We clambered up the hill and op to the bridge, where we had a grand view up and down the river. The bridge liself, in its architectural design and structure, is a wonderful work. Its floor is well paved with pressed brick, and over it may be seen passing at all hours of the day an incessant stream of pedestrians. Although large enough and strong enough for the purpose, the bridge is not designed to be traversed by wagons. Indeed, vehicles, or even equestrians, could not ascend the high bluffs which lead to the bridge at either end. This bridge and its aqueduct conveys the Croton to New York Island and supplies the city with all the water it needs, besides furnishing a great deal that is made into milk.

Returning by the same route, we again passed through the Park and reached the celebrated Fifth Avenue before sundown. Here is an Avenue lined for miles with princely palaces. A residence on Fifth Avenue is the highest earthly ambition of a genuine New Yorker. That residence procures respectability, for in New residence procures respectability, for in New York wealth is respectability. The means by which wealth is secured is a minor consideration.
The axiom of the elder Weller, "Get money, Samivel—honestly, if you can; but—get money!" receives full application here. Thus it is that while there are many truly respectable families whose escutcheons know no stain, there are more whose "Ignoble blood Has crept through scoundrels ever since the flood."

Here, in one of the very finest mansions, lives Madame-Restell, the famous or infamous abortionist, in a style of queenly splendor. Here Sarsaparilla Tewnsend projected an immense brown-stone edifice, to be created and paid for entirely from the proceeds of quackery. But though his pills continue to go down, his palace failed to go up—for when he got it to the square he found he was not quite square with the world. In other words, he went up himself financially. In other words, he went up himself financially.

Stewart, the merchant prince, bought the property, and, determined that no traces of quackery should stand as a reproof to his cloth, razed the building to its foundation, and in its stead has now a palatial pile of purest marble. On this Avenue stands for will stand) the new Catholic cathedral, the walls of which are only yet partially erected. It was commenced under the suspices of Archbishop Hughes some twelve or fifteen years ago, and when finished will be the largest and most costly church edifice on this continent. It is now progressing rapidly. After a brief rest, on our return, we were again in motion for the theatre; but my sheet is at an end, and as I cannot get from New York for another week at any rate. I will close for the Fenians.—There was a tremendous Fenian raid, or some kind of a raid at the popular store of John J. Murphy, in Johnstown, on Saturday last. I tell you the goods went like hot cakes at a festival. Couldn't count all the customers don't know numeration well enough. I can enumerate the national debt, but these customers-well, their name was legion. And dry goods fell, and fell, and fell, from shelf to counter, from counter to customer, and all were happy

Mr. Murphy has a large mirror, before which his customers can stand and decorate themselves to their entire satisfaction with his cheap and serviceable made-up clothing-his hats, his caps, his summer clothing, his gent's furnishing goods and his et ceteras. Hundreds decorate themselves with his nice clothing every week,

The Serenade, She sang so nice at the serenade, and these were the sweetest words she said; "Go to Mayer's Dry Goods Store, No. 212, Opern House, Main street, Johnstown, and buy all your dress goods and fancy goods, hats and bonnets, shawls and lace, ribbons and flowers, and all that!" Her voice was like that of the siren, and she sang "Go to Mayer's! Go to May-er's:" and people went to Mayer's and bought such nice, cheap and durable goods.

Scripture.-The apostle says: "When I was child I thought as a child—I spoke as a child—understood as a child." So did we, but when we became men we put away childish things— and we now go to Cohen & Bro.'s Hat Parlor and put on man-like adornments. GILLEN.—At her residence in Gallitzin town-ship, on May 27th, ANNIE, wife of Neil Gillen, in the 24th year of her age.

In the noonday of life's sunlight, Ere gathered the shades of even, Death came with unpitying blight, And left our hearts with anguish riven. He has called from the busy scenes of life,

That earthly friend, truer than whom we have none other—
A beloved, faithful and devoted wife—
A pious, fond and gentle mother. The tone that taught us to rejoice, Or soothed us when by passion stirred, The music of her familiar voice

No more on earth is heard. And folded on its mother's breast, Her angel babe—on pinions bright, One scraph more, now with the blest, Sings in the realins of light.

Then may that angel clothed in spotless white, Who with its mother sank to rest, Herald her soul, made pure and bright, To the Exernal Port of Rest.

Farewell! wife and mother dear-Pray that our lives be pure like thine, Vhile we fondly cherish thy memory here Our prayers shall be mingled with Unite.

WHARTON,—At St. Augustin, Cambria county, Pa., on May 10th, 1870, MARY, wife of Stanislaus Wharton, in the 77th year of her age. The deceased was a native of Emmitsburg. Md., and came to the Allegheay Mountains in 1807. For several years she was an inmate of the household of the venerable Prince Gallitzin, by whom she was nurtured in those sentiments by whom she was nurtured in those sentiments of Christian piery which marked the course of her useful life. She and her husband were among the early settlers at the Loop, now St. Augustine. Their union was blessed by a numerous offspring, and her mortal remains were followed to the grave by ner children's children to the fourth generation. The funeral took place on May 12th, from St. Augustine's church, During her brief mortal illness her patience and During her brief mortal illness her patience and resignation were a striking proof that a blame-less, pious life is the best preparation for a happy death. May she rest in peace. B. S. A.
