INSPIRED POETRY.

A prominent star in the literary firmament lately asserted at a public dinner that he firmly believed the moderate use of wine was a source of real inspiration to the poetical mind.

AUTUMN.

FIRST DRINK. Slow and sad the forest leaves drop From off the forest trees;

SECOND DRINK. The song bird warbled in the shade, And the cattle show their tails were made To brush off the hungry flies.

THIRD DRINK. A milk-maid with sweet face and figure, Close tripping away o'er the green, Where an ancient white man with a trigger Are ranning a threshing machine.

FOURTH DRINK. The chickens, the turkeys, the ducks and the geese, Swim round on the pond by the mill, And I am run by a old buffer named Pease.

FIFTH DRINK. The incubate son of our Pease fell in To the pond and was never seen any more, But his ghost is often observed with a bottle of gin

SIXTH DRINK. Pease got mad and sent his hired man a sock-dog in the jaw, Then the hired man went for Pease with a stick of wood, But Pease laid him out with a brick, and so they went to law,

And it is not advised that's about how the matter stood.

At this juncture my room mate insisted upon my going to bed, which I only consented to do after being knocked down with a boot-jack.

GHEELEY'S PENMANSHIP.—The following is one of the best stories among the many told at the expense of Horace Greeley's shocking chirography: In May last, Mr. M. B. Castle, of Sandwich, Illinois, invited Mr. Greeley to lecture there.

Dear Sir:—I am over worked and growing old. I shall be 60 next Feb. 3. On the whole it seems to me desiring to lecture hereafter, except in this immediate vicinity, if I do at all.

Yours, HORACE GREELEY. M. B. Castle, Sandwich, Illinois.

The Illinois lecture committee found the document rather a tough one to decipher, but succeeded at last in extracting its purport to their satisfaction and delight.

PETER CAMPBELL'S IMPROVED BEE HIVE.

The undersigned has secured letters-patent of the United States, dated December 14, 1869, for an improvement in the construction of Bee Hives, and claims for his invention advantages possessed by no other heretofore patented.

The principal feature of this Bee Hive is the arrangement by means of which it is thoroughly ventilated, thus precluding the possibility of the bees smothering, the comb moulding or the honey souring. This desirable end is accomplished by a vertical perforated tube, running centrally through the hive and open at the top and bottom. All persons interested in apiculture will at once see the great advantages secured in this improvement. The ventilator is for the increase of bees.

The peculiar construction of the box, particularly in the arrangement of the inner compartments, whereby it can be cleaned at any time without disturbing the bees, is another valuable improvement which will be obvious to any person who examines this Hive. An exactation of the workings of the bees or the condition of the interior can be made at any time, as the sides are raised with glass. Bees can be transferred from a different hive to the improved one without any difficulty whatever. It would require too much space to enumerate here all the advantages claimed in this invention, but full information will be promptly furnished by applying in person or by letter to the patentee. I am now prepared to dispose of territory for the sale of the Improved Bee Hive in any portion of the United States.

PETER CAMPBELL, Carrolltown, Cambria Co., Pa.

A BRAVE ACT.—Chamberlain tells the following incident of a part of an English locomotive engine that stood at a station "thrown out of gear," as it is called, that is, its machinery was so deranged that it could not move in any direction, but from this position perfectly done, it at last got very slowly at first, but the rible speed, which was all alarming as it had started on a line, and was running towards the effect of this, of course, was that it must, sooner or later, seem no possibility of averting an awful accident than had ever place. A ballast-driver, however, who has charge of the train, making the lofty party far more also remove the soil from under the engine running without any with wonderful nerve left in it at full speed dashed after the motive. This was desperately for, had they encountered the would not only have been killed, the presence of the inevitable rendered the inevitable accident fearful—the reader of course will that he, too, was running "down" line. However, he ran away, and leaping from the engine on to the tender, he reared engines and ran back to the station six miles—as swiftly as he could there safely, just in advancing senger train.
