

MATTERS MATRIMONIAL.

It would be difficult, says the Metropolitan Record, to hit upon a subject more interesting to the majority of mankind (and womankind, of course) than matrimony.

When Socrates was asked whether it were better for a man to get married or live single, he replied: "Let him do either and he will repent it."

With due respect to Socrates, we must object to the above. We once knew a fortune-hunting young man who married a maiden lady on the wily side of fifty.

Among the ancient Germans it was death for any woman to marry before she was twenty years old. By the laws of Lycurgus the most special attention was paid to the physical education, and no delicate or sickly women were, on any account, allowed to marry.

In the royal library of Paris is a written contract, drawn up in 1297, between two persons of noble birth in Armagosa. The document bound the husband and wife to faithful wedlock for seven years.

The following romantic story is told of Lord March (grandson of Charles II.), who afterward became the second Duke of Richmond, and who, while yet young, was engaged, without being consulted as to choice, to a lady still younger.

An English marriage party lately had a time of it in London. They went to the church, found it closed, and after getting the keys, had to force the vestry door, when they had neither spurs, books nor register.

The ceremony of marriage among the Calmuck Tartars is performed on horseback. A girl is first mounted, who rides off at full speed. Her lover pursues, and if he overtakes her, she becomes his wife, returning with him to his tent.

THE KIDNEYS!

The Kidneys are two in number, situated at the upper part of the loins, surrounded by fat, and consisting of three parts, viz: the Anterior, the Interior, and the Exterior.

The interior absorbs, Interior consists of tissues, or veins, which serve as a deposit for the urine and convey it to the exterior. The exterior is a conductor also, terminating in a single tube, and called a Ureter. The ureters are connected with the bladder.

The bladder is composed of various coverings or tissues, divided into parts, viz: the Upper, the Lower, the Nervous, and the Muscular. The upper exerts, the lower retains. Many have a desire to urinate without the ability; others urinate, and are unable to retain. This frequently occurs in children.

To cure these affections, we must bring into action the muscles, which are engaged in their various functions. If they are neglected, Gravel and Dropsy may ensue.

The rectum must also be made aware, that however slight may be the attack, it is sure to affect the bodily health and mental powers, as both blood and humor are supported from these sources.

GOUT, OR RHEUMATISM.—Pain occurring in the loins is indicative of the above diseases. They occur in persons disposed to acid stomach and chalybeate secretions.

THE GRAVEL.—The gravel consists from neglect or improper treatment of the kidneys.—These organs being weak, the water is not expelled from the bladder, but allowed to remain. It becomes feverish, and sediment forms. It is from this deposit that the stone is formed, and gravel ensues.

DRUGS is a collection of water in some parts of the body, and bears different names, according to the parts affected, viz: when generally dissolved over the body, it is called Anasarca; when of the abdomen, Ascites; when of the chest, Hydrothorax.

TREATMENT.—Helmbold's highly concentrated compound Extract Buchu is decidedly one of the best remedies for diseases of the bladder, kidneys, gravel, dropsical swellings, rheumatism, and gouty affections. Under this head we have arranged Dysuria, or difficulty and pain in passing water; Scanty Secretion, or small and frequent discharges of water; Strangury, or stopping of water; Hematuria, or bloody urine; Gout and Rheumatism of the kidneys, without any change in quantity, but increase in color, or dark water. It was always highly recommended by the late Dr. Physick, in these affections.

This medicine increases the power of digestion and excites the absorbents into healthy action. It softens the watery or catarrhal secretions, and all unnatural enlargements, as well as pain and inflammation are reduced, and it is taken by men, women, and children. Directions for use and diet accompany.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Reviewing the history of its State, a newspaper of Virginia recalls a case in which that malicious kind of evidence, which is styled "circumstantial," failed to bring a man of his life to a prey to something more cruel than death.

In the summer of 1867, about four years after her marriage, the wife of John Sigans, a young man residing in Taylor county, was missing from her home one morning; nor could any trace of her be found, or any reasonable explanation of her absence devised. She had retired to slumber, as usual, with her husband and infant, on the preceding night; and her husband, awake to his own steadfast assertion, according to the morning to find himself and the babe sole occupants of the couch.

The unhappy man, despite his protests of innocence, was shunned from that day forth by all his former friends and neighbors; and even his relatives, taking his child to their own care, trained the little one to judge and to hate the father of his mother's murderer.

The Recent Great Flood.—A Harper's Ferry correspondent writes: "The loss of life has been enormous. Families named Bateson, and numbering in all over a hundred, have fled from their own humble abodes to a large brick building at Sharpsburg, about a mile above Harper's Ferry, where they were crowded in a large hall, and the tide of the house left, and all the furniture, which was the property of Mrs. Margaret Carroll, who was formerly proprietor of the 'Hotel' at this place, was lost with her life."

The loss of property is enormous. Some fifty families are left without any clothing, or the shelter of a roof, and the property of many completely destroyed. The loss of property is enormous. Some fifty families are left without any clothing, or the shelter of a roof, and the property of many completely destroyed.

GRAND AGAINST VULGAR LANGUAGE.—The thoughtful study of the language is so disgusting and so full of feelings of the noble and good, or vulgar language. The young are particularly guilty of profanity, and it is to be regretted that a "man" unless he can control his sin.

Use no profane expressions. The sentence that will put to blush the most profane man is: "I have used vulgar language." When you grow up you will find the improved one without any difficulty whatever. It would require too much space to enumerate here the advantages of this invention, but full information will be promptly furnished by applying in person or by letter to the patentee. I am now prepared to dispose of territory in the State of Pennsylvania.

Mechanics' Wives.—It is the rank of life where we behold our glory—not a day to be spent in a moment of idleness. I returned to-day, sorrowful, admitted, but not overcome by passion, not affected by weakness, not her constant, but would exalt; the source and cause of our sorrow is, we see her as a wife, her dividing his toil by her domestic spreading cheerfulness, and her world without being proud of all the joys and happiness of the globe. As a mother, we find her to be the most precious of all; by training them up to the path of piety and benevolence; and as rational beings, and preparing to become men and women in the world; their children should be trained to piety and benevolence.
