WHY A NAME WAS CHANGED. Startling Story of Deceit and Hypocri-sy.-A komance from the Law books.

A few days ago, says the San Francisco Chronicle, a young man named Lucius Bulkley, sixteen years of age, appeared before Judge Stanley, of the county court, on application to have his name changed to Francis Ward Redfield. The application and its success were duly noticed in consist, in part, of Cooking, Parlor and Heat- the Chronicle the next morning. The young man, as stated, gave is his reason ware of every description, of my own man-ufacture; Hardware of all kind, such as father had not contributed to his support for many years, and that, therefore, he desired to assume the family name of his mother. But why the applicant had so Apple Parers, Pen and Pocket Knives in bitter an antipathy towards his father's great variety, Scissors, Shears, Razors and name did not appear, and it seemed some-Strops, Axes, Hatchets, Hammers, Boring what singular that he should make application for so (seemingly) trivial a cause. But "thereon hangs a tale."

That which we are about to relate is and Snaths, Rakes, Forks, Sleigh Bells, an "o'er true tale," as the doubting Shoe Lasts, Pegs, Wax Bristles, Clothes reader can satisfy himself by referring Wringers, Grind Stones, Patent Molasses to the sixth volume of "Abbott's New Gates and Measures, Lumber Sticks, Horse | York Practice Reports," from which we condense our narrative.

May 17, 1852, witnessed the marriage der. Caps. Lead, &c., Odd Stove Plates, of L. E. Bulkley with Miss Frances W. Grates and Fire Bricks, Well and Cistern Redfield, a beautiful and accomplished Pumps and Tubing ; Harness and Saddlery Ware of all kind ; Wooden and Willow Ware young lady. Bulkley was a young lawin great variety ; Carbon Oil and Oil Lamps, yer, of fine personal appearance, who Fish Oil, Lard Oil, Linseed Oil, Lubricating prided himself, as he has ever since done, on the irresistable powers of fascination which he possessed over the fair sex. He opened an office for the practice of the law in the city of New York, and lived happily with his wife for over four years : Fish, Hominy, Crackers, Rice and Pearl during which time a son was born, whom Barley: Soaps, Candles; TOBACCO and they named after his father. The unfeeling wretch was unmoved by her importunities, but he must quiet them, for they were likely to lead to unpleasant disclosures. So, quite in keeping with his true character, he made to her two infamous propositions, one of which was that if she would keep secret his rascality, and would raise him $5,000, he would give her the custody of the child. This she indignantly refused. He then said that if she would raise him $1,500 he would get from the Clerk of the Court the original record of the divorce, and thus obliterate all record of its existence. This likewise met with an indignant rejection. She then returned to California for aid, and again returning to New York, moved the Court to set aside the decree on the ground of fraudulent service of summons In his defense he made no denial of the facts here set forth, except in two unimportant points, one of which was that he kissed her on parting, and the other was died when they were boys. The lawyer often told his cousin that if the grandfather had been alive the desired information could have been readily obtained, and that he had a dim rocollection of baying seen a record kept by the old gentleman, and of there having been some peculiarity about it which he could not recall. Some months after the search had been given up as hopeless he dreamed that their grandfather came to him and said : "You have been trying to find out when Jwas born. Don't you recollect that one afternoon, when we were fishing, I read you some lines from an Elzevir Horace, and showed you how I had made a family record out of the book by inserting a number of blank leaves at the end ? Now, as you know, I devised my library to the Rev. Mr. ----. I was a great fool for giving him books which he never will read. Get the Horace and you will discover the exact hour at which J---- was born." The lawyer, deeply impressed by the dream, started by the first morning train to visit the clergyman, who lived in a neighboring city, found the Horace, and at the end were the pages constituting the family record, exactly as had been described in the dream. By no effort of Bulkley, finding the locality of his resi- his memory could he recall to his recol-

Our readers may recollect that in the year just recorded there was a terrible case of murder .---Dr. Webster, Professor of Chemistry in Harvard College, being convicted of the murder of his acquaintance-we can hardly say his friend-Dr. Parkman. A lady -we will call her X. Y .- well known in the literary world, and then residing paid a long visit to the United States,

"O. Mr. Perkins," said I. "I'm tarnation glad to see you. I feared you would not be at home-I'm almost out of breath. I'm come to tell you I can save you a thousand dollars."

"A thousand dollars ?" roured the old man; and I defy a weasel to go "pop" quicker than his face burst into smiles. "A thousand dollars! Yeou don't say so ! Du tell !"

"Oh !" said I, "I see you are just havin' dinner neow, so I'll go and dine mys self, and then Filt come back and tell you all about it."

"Nonsense," said he, "don't go away come in and sit down, and enjoy yourself. like a good fellow, and have a snack with me. I am anxious to hear what you have to say."

I pretended to decline, savin' "I'd come back ;" but I'd thoroughly stirred up the old chap's curiosity, and it ended by his fairly pullin' me into the house, and I made a rattlin' dinner of pork and beans. I managed for some time to dodge the main point of his inquiry. At last I finished eating, and there was no further excuse for delay; besides old Ben was getting fidgety.

"Come, neow," said he, "no more preface. About that thousand dollars ; come, let it out."

"Well, I'll tell you what," said I, "you have a darter, Misery Ann, to dispose of in marriage, have you not !"

"What's that to do with it ?" interupted he.

"Hold your proud steeds-don't run off the track-a great deal to do with it," said I. "Neow answer my question." "Well," said he, "I have.

"And you intend, when she marries, o give her $10,000 for her portion ?"

"I do," he said. "Well, neow, there's the pint I'm ming tow. Let me have her, and I'll take her with $9,000 and $9,000 from $10,000, accordin' to simple substraction, jist leaves $1,000, and that will be clean profit-saved as slick as a whistle I"

The next thing I knew there was a rapid interview going on between old Ben's foot and the vicinity of my coat tailsand I am inclined to think the latter got the worst of it.
