Queer Freaks of Animals and Fowls.

The in which the state is a state of the sta

We find in our exchanges very often accounts of strange freaks of animals and fowls. Those given below, which comes to us well authenticated, will be read with interest. The first is told by the Dayton, Ohio, Journal:

An elderly hen, which had presided in solitary dignity for the past season in the yard of Dr. Geiger, on Jefferson street, determined to enter upon the condition of "hatching." She prepared a comfortable nest in an out-of the-way recess, although there were no eggs upon which to try her maternal patience. Finally a member of the family, taking pity on the old "clock," with this scant stock in trade she proceeded to "set." The old hen scorned the conventional rules in such cases, leaving the nest half a dozen times a day, and she was especially attentive to the least movement about the kitchen which promised food, and never failed to be around when the contents of the table-spread MEN'S COATS. were shaken out in her vicinity. Indeed, so frequently did the subject of our brief sketch leave her nest, and remain so long away that a canine matron, with a trie of kittens, concluded that she would occupy the cozy depository, and she accordingly toted her progeny to the nest. The next morning, bright and early, Mrs. Hen found that she was not alone in her glory. The kittens were well enough, but she her family ; and the kittens seemed pleased with the change. When her food was brought to her she took especial pains to call her foster children, and devoting to them all the little attentions which an old "cluck" devotes to her progeny, she tried to induce them to eat. Tabby watches her opportunity, and when "old Speckle" goes away in search of food, or to take a promenade through the yard, she acts the part of commissary to her kittens; and she quickly retires from the field the moment "old Speckle" makes her appearance. And this strange condition of affairs has been kept up for several days, the old hen remaining "cock of the walk," fighting tabby away from her nest, refusing to be interfered with, and taking good care of the kittens, and her pair of eggswhich are probably further from maturity than when put in the nest. The kittens seem to think it fine sport; how they will view it when they get their eyes open remains to be seen.

This is from the Bloomsburg, Pa , Republican : A cat belonging to Mr. Moore Creveling had a litter of kittens, one of out into a neighboring field where she found a young rabbit, and compelled it to accompany her home. She adopted the rabbit in lieu of her lost kitten, and is now rearing it with the rest of her family, being apparently much attached to it. The Lancaster, Pa., Leader is responof Kennett township, is the owner of a very officious and important young turkey, which was hatched during the past spring. During this month it has formed the acquaintance of a brood of young guineas, and by some art best known to his turkeyship, he has succeeded in winning them entirely from their mother, and now has entire control of them, by day and by night. The following is a vagabond item, for the truth of which we cannot vouch : Out west they tell a story of a dog that was greatly interested in music. He attended a singing school, and was subsequently found in the back yard with a music book in front of him, beating time with this tail on a tin pan, and howling "Old Hundred."

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it . soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DERSSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy apa mule. A few days ago he was driving the animal across the prairie, when he suddenly stopped. The man left the wagon and attempted to induce the male to move on, but without success. He beat cursed it, but it refused to budge. He tied fire-crackers to its tail and exploded them, but the mule merely turned his head in a languid sort of way, examined the fireworks, and calmly winked at the man. Then the man thought perhaps the mule had forgotten something and wanted to go back, so he tried to turn him around; but the mule expressed a firm determination not to go home. The man became desperate, and thought he would build a fire under the mule, but as fast as he would kindle it, the mule, standing firm on three legs, reached over his other leg and kicked out the flames. Then he tore his hair and swore-the man did-and he rushed to the wagon and got twelve pounds of gunpowder, and he dug a hole under the mule and built a mine. Then he covered up the charge and laid a slow match, and stood off a little piece while he lit it. There was a rumble, a roar, and then a terrific explosion ; and amid the cloud of dust and upheaved rocks, the mule was observed to fling its hind legs in the air and to support itself upon its fore feet in that position until the blast was over, when it quickly assumed its old attitude, and a gentle smile passed over its features as it perceived its master lying down, greaning and cursing the day on which he was born. It was of ho use. The man went home and brought two yoke of oxen. He hitched them to the mule and they pulled ; but the mule dug its hoofs into the prairie and there it stood as firm as Cassabianca on the burning deck. Then the man, in a furious rage, went and got three moveable steam engines and chained them to the mule .--Three half-inch cables were snapped asunder, and the mule still maintained his defiant attitude. It is there yet, and the
