TERRIBLE RAIL ROAD COLLISION -LOSS $100 000 - The Monday evening's Pittsburgh Chronicle gives the following particulars of a collision between the Pacific Express east, Mr. P. Doran, of Summerbill township, engineer, and a freight train, at Houston station, on Sunday night last :

"A very serious collision occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday morning, near Houston station, some sixty five miles east of one of the axriver races. This is the test this city. The Pacific express east, which left the Union depot at one o'clock yesterday morning, was proceeding at the usual rate of speed, and at the point named ran into the rear part of an eastward bound freight train, which was running in on the siding so as to give the ex press a clear track The shock was so violent commarter at Hemlock, this county, in place that the engine was completely wrecked, as were also some passenger coaches. Several of the freight cars, which contained liquors, were set on fire, and were burnt. One of the passenger coaches was also burned. Mr. M' Cielian, a resident of this city, and who was fireman on the Pacific express engine, was se riously injured, having been hurled from the engine on his head. The passengers on the train escaped without serious injury. The cause of the collision has not been defi nitely ascertained, but it is said that two of the torpedo signals, placed on the track by the attaches of the freight train, failed to explode. There are also extensive fires in the mountains, and the smoke and tog rogether, it is said, pre 40,00 ave been contributed by the Odd Follows of vented the engineer of the express train from the place in aid of their suffering brethren in seeing the signal to stop, given by the brake man of the freight. ZANESVILLE, O. Oct. 18, 1871. DEAR FREEMAN-Now that the excitement of the election is over perhaps you may find space for a few rambling jottings. Last week I was in West Elizabeth, Pa., where I was glad to see Casper Felding, formerly of Carrolltown.

Casper complained of not getting the Freeman regularly—sometimes gets two of them together. I told him the fault was not yours. He says he looks for the Freeman is a messenger from home, so he does not like to be disap-

WERE it not for the confounded quinsy We would give each one a seperate puff; But as it is, we trust for the present This rigmarole will be considered enough. And now let us say what we wish to say About C. T. Robert's Jewelry mart. And about Huntley's big store, over the way, Both of which in trade take an active part;

Likewise about V. S. Barker's new stock Of fine goods, the very latest received. And about Oatman, of grocers the chief, Whose "Eastern Star" flour has never deceived: Not forgetting of course that E. J. Mills Is likewise on the flour and produce lay, And that A. J. Christy, in Loretto, Is cheap as any in the mercantile way. I whom to our renders' attention We present in this nonsensical style, And hope when the best goods they are seeking, They'll not forget these are the men for their
