AN INCIDENT OF CALIFORNIA LIFE.

In the summer of 1850, while on a prospecting tour in the mining regions of California, I met with the following little incident, which may be worth relating, and which, at least has the merit of being true in every particular. The country in those days were very thinly populated, and the miners principally lived in tents, lumber being exceedingly scarce and very high in price. While I was passing a lonely part of the country I saw a tent in the distance, and wishing to obtain some information in regard to the diggings in that locality, I approached it. The owner was engaged in sweeping out the interior with a rude broom, made of twigs, and did not notice me until I was within a few feet of him. Everything was scrupulously clean, and in marked contrast with the appearance of miners' habitations generally. I shall never forget the pitiful appearance the man presented. As near as I could judge he was about six feet four or five inches in height, but a perfect living skeleton. I remarked:

"My friend, you appear to be very sick : too sick to be engaged in such un important business as sweeping." He replied that he only had a few days more to live, and that he liked to see things look neat during that time.

I inquired his ailment, and he told me that he had the chronic diarrhoea, and as yet had found nothing to afford him any relief. I recommended a preparation that I had long known to be very efficacious in disorders of that nature; but he was out of money, and said that he was too weak to get the ingredients, even if he had the means, as the nearest camp of importance was six miles distant. I told him that he should not suffer as long as it was in my power to assist him; that I still had about two ounces of dust left, and that I would place it at his service if necessary. I easily procured all the ingredients but one, and that was the white of eggs, which for a long time I found impossible to obtain. Finally I learned that there was an old woman, a native of California, who lived five miles away in a contrary direction from where I obtained the other articles, and that she had but one hen. I called upon her, and having some little knowledge of Spanish, I prevailed upon her to sell me two eggs, which she did very reluctantly, charging me five dollars for them. It must be remembered that in those days flour, sugar, and many other articles, brought from seventy-five cents to one dollar per pound, while eggs, as an article of diet, were entirely out of the question.

I told him seventy-five cents per point, or a dollar and lifty cents for the two. Drawing forth a large buckskin purse, he handed me a number of coarse pieces of goldthirty in all-the smallest of which would amount to many times the price of the work. I asked him what he meant. He replied,-

"I want you to put it in your pocket " I was much surprised, and began to think my customer was insane. I told him I was only entitled to one dollar and

I was about to object again, when he said-

"Why, don't you remember me?" I told him no; that to my knowledge I never saw him before.

"Why," said he, "don't you remember curing a man of the diarrhoea, near Yorktown, about eighteen months ago?"

I said "that I could not say I had cured any one; but that I had prescribed for a man so afflicted; but you are not the individual ?"

"Yes, I am," he replied, "and had it not been for you, I would now be in my grave."

I was unable to recognize my former patient in the man before me-a perfect Hercules as it seemed-and told him if such was the case, that I could not think entire outlay at the time was only about eighteen dollars, and that my time I could not count; for that I was abundantly compensated in aiding his recovery, and that I would only accept an ounce in payment for actual expenses incurred. He replied-

"Look here, my friend, I don't want to be too severe with you, but if you don't pocket that dust, you and me will have a

Her frunt name was Maria-the rest of her appellation is unimportant. I loved to call her Maria and she loved to call me Geogie.

Take the three graces, nine muses, Vic. Woodhull and half a dozon Venuses de Medici, and sling 'em all into a conglomerate heap, and you have the perfect image of my charmer.

Beautiful! Oh, my! As I picture her in my mind's eye I am thrown into the most violent ecstatic jimjams, and I am compelled to take several refreshments to keep down my transports.

Her eyes, ears, nose, chin and watch chain were incomparable, and she tripped over the pavements, in her No. 2 gaiters, with the grace of an imported English I would have done anything for that damsel short of dying for her. I couldn't do that; my friends esteemed my life too the hair where the follicles are de-I lavished fractional currency upon her at all hours of the day and night. Ice constrictor of extraordinary dimensions, and stung me. Oh, how deeply! I feel it away down in my boots.

I called on ber one Sabbath morning as usual, to take her to church. She received me affectionately, I may say of a depressing headache.

Poor little thing! My heart must have bled about a copful at her anguish, and I couldn't refrain from giving her a cent's worth of peppermint drops on the spot, to comfort her in her affliction.

She fell upon my diamond cluster and wept, whilst my side whiskers quivered with agony. I imprinted a boiling kiss upon her plaster-paris brow, and then tore myself away from her entwining arms I proceeded to church alone, took a free seat, and was soon intensely wrapt in my

I hadn't been there long before I happened to turn my eyes around, when, O, shades of Susan B. Anthony ! what a heart-lacerating, boiler busting, choleramorbus sight burst upon me in all its hideousness. Maria, my Maria sitting along with another fellow, chewing cream drops and gazing admiringly upon his lacquered mustache. I knew him, Horatio, a destroyer of rank cigars and a notorious gormandizer of tree lunches.

I tried to become interested in the scrmon after that, but I couldn't do it, and in my rage I'm afraid I placed a ten cent stamp, of a dubious nature, on the collection plate. I staggered home and didn't do anything else all that afternoon but tie in bed, drinking bottled lager and fighting mosquitoes, my spirits were so much depressed. I determined to call upon the perfidious Maria that evening and renounce her in a No. 1 style.

The mantle of night was gradually being slipped over the terrestial sphere, when I might have been seen wending my way upon my stern mission of daty, my raven locks gently floating in the evening breeze and my tight boots occasionally extracting a sigh of distress, but on, on, I pursued my course until I arrived at the domicile of her who was once the idol of

I found her in the garden all alone, at least that was the flattering unction that I laid unto my unsuspecting soul.

"Maria," says I in a sort of a weeping willow voice, "Maria! has it come to this? After all the stamps I've lavished upon you, not to mention the squeezings and huggings which I have performed free of charge, to be thus given what is vulgarly termed 'the dirty shake!' O. ingratitude! Thou goggle eyed monster how sharper than a bed bug's toe nails it is to be treated in such a manner!"

"Georgie, Georgie!" she exclaimed, bursting into a handful of tears, "It's all a mistake, I assure you, it's all a mistake." "I should think it was a mistake," I replied, my necktie heaving with emotion, "a mighty big mistake to prefer that long legged snoozer to the first-class individual who now addresses you. Let me but ence get a crack at his lemon, and I'll-" I didn't have time to finish the threat on account of my coat collar being grasped from behind by some body's claws, and in a moment after, a most furious and uncomfortable bombardment was instituted against my coat tails by somebody's patent leathers, followed by an ungentlemanly blow upon my steak pulverizers and winding up by slinging me over the garden wall, with no more regard for my feelings than if I was a de-

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, cured by its use. Nothing can restore stroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formstion of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injugushingly, but excused herself on account rious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.
