a recalably in journalistic writing. la 1851 Cartain John Buckson, muster of a satting vessel, lived with his wife Denny in a beautiful little cottage in the !! william of Seekonk, near Providence R. I. The was a man of spotless character, regroups almost to Paritanism, but also very and that Nancy being a great dad younger than himself and very fair to lask open, should have grown fretful and enruly, did not add much quiciness to his temper. They quarrelled often, and late one evening a neighbor passing the cottage saw through the open window the busband standing over the wife in a he atening attitude, with a long whipcord bis clenched hand, and heard also an encontrollable burst of rage and many threats of violence.

The next morning the cottage was closed and deserted. This, however, exrited no attention, as John was supposed to have left on a sailing trip, and Naney was accostomed to depart frequently. Our Seed and Plant Catalogues for '72, alligut announcement, to visit relatives in a neighboring town, " But that afters more a little dog accompanying a pie nie party in the adjacent woods pawed and howled at a heap of sand, until the merry passy examined it and found there-the cornse of Nancy Buckson.

The people of the town flocked around the horror, recognizing the deceased, her stories and her jewelry. She had been strangled with a cord, and chloride of lime had been sprinkled over her body to hasten decomposition The cottage was searched, and a whipperd found upon the flaor which fitted exactly to the marks on the victim's need; and in the cellar was a box of coloride of lime like that scattered upon the body.

the day of the trial that would have sent him to the gallows, Nancy Buckson, alive and well, though cross as ever, walked nto the village, fresh from a visit to disnot relatives. . The mystery of the muror was never solved. The articles of ress and jewelry on the corpse were recunized by Nancy as taken from the bereau her cottage.

One morning in 1861 a New Jersey Day ariman complained to his "boss" that sarrel of pitch had been stolen from the er. The same morning the clerk of a w York hotel complained to the proafor that Mrs Ada Ricard, a woman mervellous beauty of form and no all charm of feature, sensuous as Lola ! ntrz, and as frail of character-had tenly and inexplicabably left without ing her bill. By their occasional use, the blood is purified, the corruptions of the sys-tem expelled, obstructions removed, and the whole machinery of life restored to its healthy activity. Internal organs which become clopsed and sluggish are cleansed by Ayer's Pills, and stimulated into action. Thus incipient disease is changed into health, the value of which change, when reckoned on the vast multimes who enjoy it, can hardly be computed. Their sugar coaling makes them pleasant to take, and preserves their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are ever fresh, and perfectly reliable. Although searching, they are mild, and operate without disturbance to the constitution, or diet, or Long expe without disturbance to the constitution, or dict, or RENEWER. Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring Gray or Faded HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, It removes all eruptions and dandruff and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor. and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical Hair Dressing ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. A Japanese Homance.

The following Japanese story is cauled by a Dutch author, Dekker, in his "May Havelaar':

THE STONE-CUTTER,

"Once upon a time there was in James a poor stone cotter, a simple working in the quarries. His life was rude, he worked much, gained little and was not at all contented with his fate.

"O, if I could only be rich enough to rest, to sleep on thick matting, wrapp ! in a kirimon of soft silk !" Such was it. sigh he breathed to heaven. An anna intercepted it.

" It shall be according to the design. said the angel to him. And he at became rich, and he rested, the number thick matting, and wrapped bland in a kirimon of soft silk. "It happened that the emperor pro-

by. He was preceeded by heralds on facand horseback, followed by a brilliant is cort of cavallers, and surrounded by you sens who held over his head an immensparasol resplendent with gold. "What good does it do me to be right behind him, and people who held above his head an immense parasol resplendant "However, the sun with his ardent beams dried up the country, and the dusty road, quivering with his brightness fatigued the eyes. "It is a great advantage to the emperor,' cried the man, 'when the heat of the day exhausts you, and the sun never ceases to make you feel his power! But if one could be the sun!'

"Behold! Are you satisfied?' the angel asked. For he had become the sun, and he darted his beams up and down, right FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE. and left, and all around him. And he scorched the herbage of the earth and the faces of the princes upon the earth.

"But now a cloud thrust itself between the earth and him; it held back the ray of the sun, and prevented them from falling upon the earth's surface. "There is strength,' cried the sun-in-cloud capable of resisting my power. It would be better if I were a cloud. "Very well,' said the angel." "And the transformation was at once accomplished. The new cloud placed itself haughtily between the sun and the earth, and so thoroughly intercepted the rays of the sun that it soon saw the earth covered with its shadow. Then it caused big drops of rain, and pouring showers and waterspouts to fall on the lands, so that the torrents burst their bounds and the rivers spread over and devastated fields.

"Nothing resisted the force of the inundation; only a rock defied it, perfectly motionless. In vain the bellowing waters heat it in their fury, the rock yielded not, but the foaming waves died at its foot "A rock, then, is my superior," said the cloud; "I would rather be in its place."

"You shall be." said the angel. And he was transferred into a steep, unshaken rock, insensible to the rays of the sun, indifferent to the torments of rain, and the shock of the tumultous waves.

Nevertheless he distinguished at his feet a man of poor appearance, hardly clothed, but armed with a chisel and a hammer and the man, with the help of these instruments, struck off pieces of the rock. which he dressed into stones proper for "What is that?' cried the rock; 'has a man the power of rending pieces of stone from my breast? Shall I be weaker than ho? Then it is absolutely necessary that I should be that man?"

"Have your will? said the angel. and he became again what he had been -a poor stone cutter, a simple workman in the quarries. His life was rude; be worked much and gained little, but he was contented with his lot!"
