A THRILLING SCENE.

The Friborg (Swizerland) correspondent of the London Standard, after describing the recent conflagration in that city, relates the following act of bravery and self-devotion on part of a woman :

"Hitherto I had looked upon the scene, anful as it was, as being simply a case of destruction of property, as I had been told that the people who lived in the houses had succeeded in escaping. Suddenly, however, from one of the front windows, on the third story, I heard a crash of glass, and, looking up, I aw a woman's face-such a face as 1 never care to see again. It was dreadful in she seemed to feel that she was too high for them to hear, and the flames, as she stood at the window, came licking up the wall, as though they felt she was already given up to some encouragement. Wildly waving her arms, she disappeared for a moment, and then reappeared at the window with a little very great danger, provided he could have kept out of the way of the flames, which were darting out of the windows of the lower stories; but in Switzerland no such things as fire-escapes exist. There are willing hands then, can be done? Are the people to see the woman and child roasted to death under their very eyes? But they are far below, and the fiery flames are creeping up the wa'ls and windows, and already the weman has to between his legs. draw back her burden as the fire comes nearer | The whining bizness man is just so. The staircases are simply masses of red hot in him. stone, where no one could live for a moment. What can be done? Just then a tremendous cheer burst from the crowd below, the reason for which I could not understand, and or think mebbe he's already busted. I could only continue to look with horrible help came within a few minutes it would come too late.

"But help did come at last-though, to me, from a somewhat unexpected quarter. The house in which were the woman and child was the last of those which had taken fire, and an adjoining one had an iron balcony, from which a fireman, seeing the dreadful danger, and cheered up by the crowd, attempted to throw a rope to the woman .-But it was very difficult for her to catch it. Four times he threw it, and each time he saw it fall past the window, though it was pitiful to see how eagerly she tried to get hold of it. But the fifth time she was successful, and tying the rope tightly round the child's body, she sweng it out of the window. and it was slowly but safely drawn into the adjoining house. Directly she had done this, the woman disappeared from the window but almost immediately returned with another child, and by the same means she suc ceeded in saving her second charge. But in saving the lives of these two children the brave woman had got terribly burned. The flames had been creeping up nearer and nearer to her, and as she stood at the window tying the children a tongue of fire would often leap up and encircle her, but she never flinched. Wrapping the child she held in her arms tightly in a woolen cloak, so as to prevent the flames touching it, she quietly hore the fire until it had once more gone down, and then she quickly proceeded with her work. But now it seemed too late to save the woman herself, for fire had reached the store of wood at the top of the house and the roof was in flames. Her hands and arms too were terribly scorched, and we feared she would never be able to hold the rope. -But as the cord was thrown her the people raised a tremendous cheer, as though to encourage her, and catching it at the first attempt, she managed to fasten it round her body, and throwing herself out of the windew, she was gradually lowered into the street, and carefully taken to the hospital. where she at present lies in a dangerous condition.

"There have been a great many cases of devoted herois n in times past, but I know of none more noble than this of a simple serwant girl, who not only risked her own life, but stood such dreadful torture in order to save the lives of children under her charge. and I gladly give her name. It is Arna Albaz, of Birkendorf. The Swiss people are a warm hearted race, and the devoted conduct of the gir seems to be fully appreciated by them. The whole press has spoken londly in praise of the heroism she has shown, and already a subscription has been opened for her benefit, as it is feared her injuries are so severe that she will never again be able, even if she recovers from them, to gain her own Mying."

CURIOSITIES OF ANIMAL LIFE -"There ean be no doubt," writes Mr. Darwin, "that dogs feel shame as distinct from fear, and something very like modesty when begging too ofte; for food. A great deg scorns the scarling of a little dog, and this may be called magnanimity. Several observers have stared that monkeys certainly dislike being laughed at, and they sometimes invent imaginary eff nees. In the Z ological gardens I saw a baboon that a'ways got into a furious rage when its keeper got out a letter or book and read it aloud to him, and his rage | general Banking business transacted. was so vinlent that, as I witnessed on one occasion, he bit his own leg until the blood Mowed." All animals feel wonder, and many exhibit curiosity, the latter quality affording opportunity for hunters, in many parts of the world, to decoy the game into their power. The ficulty of imitation so strongly dew loved in man, especially in a barbaric state, a present in nonkeys. A certain bull to rier of our acquaintance, when he wishes 1 - go cut of the room, jumps at the handle of the door and grasps it in his paws, althou he cannot himself turn the handle. Parrets blso reproduce with wonderful fidelity the LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE tones of different speakers, and puppies reared by cats have been known to lick their feet and wash their faces, after the manner of their foster mothers. Attention and memory are also present in the lowest animals, and it is impossible to deny that the dreams of dogs and horses show the presence of imagiration or that a certain sort of reason is also present. Animals also profit by experience, as any man realizes who sets traps. The young are much more easily caught than the old, and the adults gain cantion by seeing the fate of those that are caught. Tools also are used by some of the higher apes. The Exchange building, (up-stairs,) corner of Clin-ton and Locust streets. The dog communicates his feelings by barks of different tones, which undoubtedly raise is his fellow dogs ideas similar to those passing in his own mind .- Edinburg Review.

A WOMAN'S TONGUE. - It is so easy to overdo a good thing and the "slip" tetween the "cup and the lip" is so readily Dr. found. A mechanic rejoicing in the name of Dubois, and a resident of the city of To balance in hands of Treasurer at Detroit, took to drinking, and was speedily transformed from a hard-working man into a drunken sot. His good wife scolded, entreated, diminished the thickness of his beard without the use of a razer, but could make no change. One night Dubois arrived home and found that his wife and To amount received from Miscellanehis coat had changed places-the latter To amount received on Redemption lay on the floor and the former was suspended from the hook. The attempt at suicide completely sobered him, and like Obadiah Oldbuck, he turned over a new leaf. He "What she said, or attempted to say, no promised never to drink again, and probone ever knew, but the crowd gazing up from ably would have kept his word if his wife below saw her, and a hoarse roar came from had been able to keep her own counsel them, which seemed to reach her and give her | But she was just smart enough to inform several of her neighors that the apparent hanging was a put up job, the rope being child in her arms. For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroved, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

shown that it surely and effectual control them. The testimony of our best co gens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PECTONAL will and does relieve a cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are pu ly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full pretection. By curing Coughs, nonumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and co vinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which be ineurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise t be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, Cheery Pectoral. is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multi-tudes are rescued from premuture graves, and gaved to the love and affection centred on them.
