The courageous old lady made one step forward, and dashed the keen blade across the man's throat, laying it open from ear to ear. She then calmly retired, closed the closet dooor, blew out the lamp, and taking up her candle returned to the parlor, first having satisfied herself that not a drop of blood had stained her dress or hands.

Half an hour after midnight her children returned home. They found their mother seated by the fire, screnely reading her Bible. They greated her affectionately, and prepared to retire for the night. Mrs. Mowbray

"Boys, remain behind a little. I wish to speak with you. You, my dear daughters, can retire." When she was alone with her children, she said, with dignity and calmness: "My children, I have killed a man. You will find his body fast in the small window of the closet on my bedroom."

Her sons stared at her in amazement .-They at first imagined that she must be laboring under some mental disorder. But when she related to them plainly and rationally and in her own straightforward, terse fashion the story as just told, they saw that she was telling them a simple fact.

"Go," said she, "and make what arrangecan tell me what course it is best to pursue in this matter. The sons took the lights and went to their mother's room. They opened the door, and there sure enough was the body of a man hanging half through the window. The floor out stepping into the gore, to raise the head, did so a cry of borror escaped from all. "Great God! it is our brother George!"

"What do you say?" asked Mrs. Mowbray, in a voice horribly calm, from the doorway whither she had followed unperceived. "George! what do you mean?" The eldest son dropped the head to prevent, if posssible, his mother recognizing it. and all of them endeavored to explain their exclamation, and to get their mother away from the spot, but it was in vain. "Boys," she said, in her old, well known tone of authority, "stand aside. Let me see the face of the murderer I have slain." With that she put her sons on one side as though they had been mere lads, and walked through the slippery gore that lay upon the floor up to the body. She took the candle from the unresisting grasp of her first-born and with a hand that trembled not, lifted the head of the dead man so that the light hone full upon it. She gazed at it steadily for half a minute, then she said, gently lowering it until it rested upon the breast again: "It is my boy George!" Mrs. Mowbray was the only one in that household who remained calm and emotionless. The family were in the wildest state of sorrow. The three brothers with difficulty extricated the body from the window .- | clerk The authorities were notified, and everything was kept as quiet as possible. The inquest was duly be'd, Mrs. Mowbray was fully exoperated, and the body was tenderly prepared for burial. The real story was known to few outside the family and the authorities. It was believed by them that George, instead of going to Devenshire, had remained turking in the neighborhood, and had planned the robbery, and if need be the murder of his mother. He knew that she would be alone on that night, and that she had a large sum of money and valuable jewels in her room. We never saw a man on enountering an acquaintance, take out his pocket book and say, "Ah, George! delight-ed to see you! Do take a few postage stamps! [3-16.] TH Sansom Street, Philadelphia. t's my treat!'

Do men have a mania for paying each other's board bills? And is drinking together more "social" than eating together or sleeping together?

A traveller may go all over the continents of Europe, Asia and Africa, without seeing any man except a Yankee offer to "treat." and Frenchmen are quite social enough, but when they go into a cafe to sip their wines, for his own. When two Germans, long sep arated, meet, they will be very apt to embrace, and turn into an adjoining beer salcon, sit down, drink lager, eat pretzels and talk; but when they part again each man settles his own score independently. So in Italy. The Italians are proverbially merry and gen erous, but each man pays for his own wine, maccaroni and cigars. They never go into each other's pocket book in the sacred name ments you please. I will wait here, and you of friendship. They would as soon think of transferring to each other their washercoman's bill

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For the relief and cure of all derange-ments in the stomach, liver, and bow-els. They are a mild aperient, and an excellent purgative. Being purely vegetable, they contain no mercury or mineral whatever. Much suffering is prevent ed by their timely use; and every family should have them on hand for their protection and relief, when required. Long experience has proved them to be the saf-est, surest, and best of all the Pills with which the market abounds. By their occasional use, the blood is purified, the corruptions of the system expelled, obstructions removed, and the whole machinery of life restored to its healthy activity. Internal organs which become clogged and sluggish are cleansed by Ayer's Pills, and stimulated into action. Thus incipient disease is changed into health, the value of which change, when reckoned on the vast multitudes who enjoy it, can hardly be computed. Their sugar coating makes them pleasant to take, and preserves their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are ever fresh, and perfectly reliable. Although searching, they are mild, and operate without disturbance to the constitution, or diet, or
