

Cambria Freeman.

EBENSBURG, PA. Saturday Morning, : April 27, 1872.

From all parts of the State comes cheering news of the popularity of our whole ticket. Never, we suppose, in the history of our party...

In the face of the fact, that there are now lying before us extracts from fifteen republican papers published in different parts of the State...

It will be remembered that the late mode of House of Representatives adjourned from Friday, January 26th, until Wednesday, the 31st...

All that we know and all that we have heard of Gen. W. Cass is to his credit. He is regarded as a high-minded gentleman and a man of undoubted integrity...

The article from the Courier reveals a condition of public sentiment throughout the oil region which cannot at this particular time be treated with indifference...

On all the insults offered to the decent Republicans of Pennsylvania by the Harrisburg Convention, that of placing Harry White in nomination for two important offices...

We are not now and never have been hostile to the nomination of General Cass, nor would we intentionally place a single straw across his path to the Executive chair of the Commonwealth...

General Cass is simply asked to place himself right on a question which with the people of a particular section of the State sheds all considerations of a purely political character...

The Johnstown Tribune says that there are doubts as to White's acceptance of the nomination for Congressman and adds: "In fact, he has had more honors thrust upon him than he can carry."

Gen. Cass and the Oil Region.

It may now be assumed as reasonably certain as any future political event can be, that the Democratic State Convention which will meet on the 30th of May proximo will nominate Gen. W. Cass for Governor.

It is always the part of political wisdom to refrain from claiming, much less from demanding, that, as a matter of right, a particular person, either from locality or any other consideration, is entitled to receive the nomination for the highest office in the Commonwealth.

All that we know and all that we have heard of Gen. W. Cass is to his credit. He is regarded as a high-minded gentleman and a man of undoubted integrity...

The Johnstown Tribune says that there are doubts as to White's acceptance of the nomination for Congressman and adds: "In fact, he has had more honors thrust upon him than he can carry."

This is a Democratic estimate of the intellectual capacity and political virtues of Harry White. Now, here is what Hon. Moslow B. Lavery, a radical Republican, has to say on the subject:

What is said of General Cass in the Oil Regions.

From the Clarion Democrat. We occupy a large space in the Democrat this week with articles concerning corporations that have been chartered by the Pennsylvania Legislature...

Many of these companies are small concerns with limited capital, located, and confined to a particular branch of business. But a large number of them are similar to the Southern Improvement Company...

The people of the State are becoming aroused against these corporations and monopolies. They see that legislation is reprehensible, which enables a few men, incorporated as a company, with the investment of a little capital, to become millionaires in a year.

It is well known that our personal preference has been, and is, to the expressed will of the Pennsylvania Convention, that Gen. Cass should be our next Governor.

Believing that these views are shared by a large majority of the republicans of the country, we will cordially unite with all advisory movements within the organization, looking to the adoption of a platform of policy...

MEMBER BY WHOLESALE.—Elsewhere we publish the telegraphic account of a terrible tragedy which occurred at the town or station of Talquah, Indian Territory, on Monday, 15th inst.

A CHILD BURIED.—The Hanover Spectator of last week states that on the Friday afternoon previous, a little child, five months old, of Mr. Emanuel Mizell, residing at the Junction of the Hanover Branch and Bachman Valley Railroad, came to its death in the following singular and distressing manner.

HOSE-MEN? and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders: Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 6 nights; the same for a mitch cow, and twice as much for an ox.

—Jim Pick's widow, after the estate has been settled, will have a comfortable bank account of about two millions.
