An Inceedingly Thritting Story.

"John," the irrepressible humorist of the New York Sun, has been out to Toledo, Ohio, and writes from that place this blood curding story of

THE TOLY DO ABILIARD AND HELOISE. Once, in fact twice, a man lived here.

He was of majestic mien, and besides that he was darned mean. He kept a store, and he sold ready made hens' eggs AT OAKDALE STATION. and got rich. He had a daughter, and she was a ready maid, too. She was like her father's cane. She had a golden head. Her eyes were so bright that when she preted through the mists of the future she atways started a rainbow some furlongs shead. She were long furs, too, for she was cradled in the lap of lax r . She was sweeter than ten custard pies, eight barrels of sugar, and eleven pounds of gum-drops mixed. She was so sweet that she ate ripe peaches for pickles, and so bright that she had had to carry a sunsuade in the house to keep from putting the rest of the family's eyes out and scorching the food. Ye gods, a female like that made out of cast-iron, scoured once a week, and put open an umbrella stand, would be exqueeze it. She had a lover. It was a man. He knew that her office had never been sweetened with the lessens of adversity, and he knew in his inmost soul that it was diluted with the mik of human kindness. Um ! um! how that man did love that female. But the path of true love never did run smooth, and he got stuck in a mud puddle before Le got half way over it, as follows :

We have just met with the followig paragraph in an exchange: An intelligent and reliable farmer, who s been for many years making experiments with corn, has discovered an importance and value in replanting corn which is quite novel and worthy of publication. We have always thought replanted corn was of littleco iscquence ; he replat ts whether it is needel er not-or rather he plants two or three weeks after crops are planted, about every lifteenth row each way. He says if the weather becomes dry during the filling time. he sik and tassel both become diy and dead. In this condition, if it should become seasonable, the silk revives and renews, but the tassel does not recover. Thus, for want of pollen, the new silk is unable to fill the office or which it was designated. The pollenfrom the replanted corn is then ready to apply the silk, and the filing is completed. He says nearly all the abortive ears, so common to the corn crop, are caused by the want f pollen, and that he has known cars to double their size in the second filling."

THE TERRIBLE DISCOVERY.

"Twas night. The golden stars winking at each other (above you see the stars). The moon was show her man to an admiring world. Gi hoppers had grass hopped for the time that day. The builtings were ing their evening hymns, and the cats DOLLYVARDENSTYLES were warbling their evening hims too,-Nothing was working, save the emptyings in the buckwheat cake jar.

A young female, dressed to kill, stord leaning against a door post. She wis wringing her hands, and yelling, "Crue, eruel work." Far better she had been at her crochet, crochet work. The grease on her golden locks would have brought ten cents for soap fat. Only have stuck a wick into it, and she'd been a candle -She was wicked enough without it. A snadow stole across her path. 'Twas a he shadow. It said, ahem. She ahemmed back for she owned a patent hemmer. It advanced stealthily, and exclatured, "Why, Fannie !" She advanced with a cat-like trend, and ejaculated, "Why Doc.," (it was a dry* Doc.) She spoke one minute-subject, the instability of man-then they both crooked elbows and glided into the thickening gloom. This makes three in the thickening gloom.

A torm-a male form-approaching, It slides, and slips, and shuffles along, tumbling over lamp-posts and mackerel barrels. Doc. says to Fannie, ' See there, look | look ! alas, how drunk." Sue shrunk back and clutched Doc.'s arms more closely, and then exclaimed, "'I're, 'tain't ! 'tain't, 'tis ! my long lost Alfred. "Yes, and drunk as thunder," cried Doc.

"Twas night again. Alfred was being kicked off the stoop by Doc, and Miss Fannie's father, assisted by Miss Fannie. A few months after Dec. lead his blushing bride, with a string of blushing bridesmaids, to the blushing altar. Then he took her to her new home, a bran new house with a tank of water on the top that held a thousand gallons.

A DEADLY REVENCE

Time rolled on without wheels. Months flow by without wings. Alf. thought his less had gin out. Three tumbies to a yard was his gait, the only gate to the yard he owned. One day he sat upon the grass plot bemoaning his sad tate, when a goat-they call 'em billy goats' because they eat handbills-sent by some fairy hand upproached and chewed all the bottoms of his boots off, and on atising he found himself restored to health. He swore to be avenged for these banana skins. He dressed himself in the di-guise of his lost love's uncle. He visited her one cold, blasty night. He was invited to make her house his home till morning. in the dead of night he arose. He drew forth a huge auger, and Le stood upon a table and bored through the wall overhead right into that awful tank of water. With one wild shrick, which was its last,

DICKERSELL, LYONS & CO.,

A WATELFORD c respind n of the Erie Observer, relates the following, as having occurred at that place: The other day when the buys were raising a little change for the purpose of investing i beer, and having a time over the nom-retain for us a liberal share of patronage. ination of Mr, Greeley, they passed the hat to an old gentleman whose sense of hearing is about equal to that of a stone giant, when he reached in and gathered up the change, declaring they were the cleverest set of boys he had seen in a long time. The more they tried to explain, the more he thanked them, and finally walked off and got as drunk as he could for one so deaf.

A CLEVER old lady, apparently just arrived on a train from the country, entered one of the refreshment rooms of the Springfield, Mass , R. R. station the other day, and said she had left her parasol on the settee. A general search commenced and lasted for some time. Finally one of the waiters asked the old dame when she left it to which she answered, after counting up on her fingers, "Well, it was just three years ago last 4th of July." There was a general roar, much to the astonishment of the old lady, who went away with a very puzzled look upon her countenance.
