A Strange Story of Confidence and Treachery.

We came accidentally in the possession of a romance in real life that is so unparalleled that if the facts were not well authenticated they would scarcely be believed. The story was told us during a little supper at the Washington Chib by a gentleman in possession of all the documents necessary to sustain every allegation of fact.

Some six years since a young law student of this city fell in love with and courted a lovely glrl, who soon returned his love, and the two became engaged to be married. The young gentleman was poor, however, and not yet admitted to his profession, so that marrying for the time seemed out of ever, and fearing that before he could secure a sufficient competence to justify marrying, he would lose the object of his affections, he plead with her to have a secret marriage, and promised that immediately after the ceremony she should return to her home, and he would, as usual, go to his bachelor quarters. After much persuasion, she consented, and the two were united in wedlock at the church of St. John, in Georgetown, by the Rev. Mr. Tillinghast, upon the - of June, 1886.

The young man for a while was true to his promise, but he soon became as impor- FEED AND PROVISIONS. tunate for the possession of her person as he had been for the secret marriage. Of course she yielded; but they kept their secrets, and as his progress in the law was very slow, she, at his suggestion, brought an influence to bear upon the administration that resulted in an appointment to a Western Territory. Her social position and connections were sufficient to control the appointment, and she had money enough to provide him with an outfit.

The young man departed, and made quite a successful career for himself in his new and returning at intervals, he assured her of his heartfelt affection and earnest endeavors to procure a home snited to her. This sort of thing continued for four years, when she was telegraphed to meet him at Cincinnati. She hastened to obey, and arriving at the last named place, found her husband in a great state of excitement. He told her that he had got involved in moneyed transactions, and the choice was presented to him of either marrying a rich woman, who loved him to distraction, or being sentenced to the penitentiary, and that he had married, and was now in her power. She could punish him for his dastardly conduct, and if she did that he could not complain; he added, however, that he had parted from the woman at the HARDWARE, door of the church, that he did not love her, and could not love her, and could not love any one but his lawful wife.

only ask him what could be done, that she was ready and willing to shield him to the last. He then suggested a divorce and said that he could go to New York and procure PROVISIONS and FEED, ALL KINDS, consented, and the two wended their way to the great commercial center, where he found a divorce lawyer, and in three days and a divorce was procured upon testimony most reasonable terms manufactured between the husband and a shyster, of the most extraordinary character. One man, for example, by the name of ----, swore that he had known the plaintiff and her husband for years in Downingsville, Pa., a place the poor woman had never seen. Another witness, calling himself -----, swore that the parties were bona fide residents of New York, and that he had frequently accompanied the defendant in nightly visits to houses of ill-fame; that on one occasion he had waited at such a place for defendant until tired, and then went to the room, knocked at the door, and being told to come in, found the defendant putting on his clothes with a prostitute un-

Upon this showing the divorce was granted, and the decree winds up as foldressed in the room.

"That the marriage between the said plaintiff, ----, and the said defendant, be disselved, and their said marriage is hereby dissolved accordingly. And the said parties are and each of them is free from the obligations thereof. And further that it shall be lawful for the said plaintiff to marry again in the same manner as though the defendant was actually dead. But it shall not be lawful for the said defendant to marry again until the said plaintiff be actually

S. Jones, Judge." . The poor wife returned to her home, feeling that she had done a heroic act in shielding the man she loved, and sustaining herself with this thought time rolled on, until one morning she awakened to the startling fact that she had been cruelly sacrificed. She learned that the man to whom she had clung was about to marry a fashionable lady of the first connection in the land. She made inquiry, and found, to her sickening disgust, that the day was actually set upon which this infamous outrage was to be perpetrated. She hastened to New York and procured a certified copy of the decree, intending to appear at the church on the day of the mock marriage, and forbid the banns by presenting a copy of of Dental Surthe legal document that showed that, although separated from her, he was not authorized to marry another. Unfortunately, through circumstances over which she had no control, she arrived too late. The cruel act had been accomplished. A grand wedding, graced by the presence of members of the Cabinet and our most aristocratic people, had occurred, and the papers were full of glowing accounts of the magnificent ceremony. Our readers will recollect the event, and they will have will recollect the event, and they will have occasion to recur to it again, as legal steps are being taken by the betrayed wife's friends to bring this wrong-doer to punishment. The wife is now satisfied that the whole story of the second marriage was fabricated to decrive her and the story of the second marriage was fabricated to decrive her and the story of the second marriage was fabricated to decrive her and they will have a decrease with the story of the second marriage was fabricated to decrive her and they will have a decrease with the second marriage was fabricated to decrease her and they will have a decrease with the second marriage was fabricated to decrease her and they will have a decrease with the second marriage was secon fabricated to deceive her, and she is, of course, very indignant. In addition to this we learn that this gay Lothario paid his court last winter to one of our most beautiful and accomplished belles, whose ap-

It was supposed that the gentleman. as he then appeared to be, and this faseinating lady whose family is one of the oldest and most exclusive in the country, engaged, but it seems that while she enjoyed his conversational powers she discouraged any tender emotions and thus saved herself from occupying the unpleasant position which the last mentioned bride now holds. In a few days the fashionable circles of Washington and a certain lady of the Cabinet will all be at sea in a high state of astonishment, and excitement, and a certain Territorial official, now candidate for Governor, will be brought up with a round turn.-Capital.

How a Spider Spins,-Few thing are more wonderful than the spinning apparatus of the spider. On the under side of the creature's body are placed four or six little knobs, each not larger than the point of a pin These are outlets of certain receptacles within the abdomen, where the silk is prepared. When the spider wishes to spin a thread it presses the knops, or spinnerets, with one of its legs, and forthwith there issues from each, not one, but a thousand fibres, of such exquisite fineness, that it is only when the products of all the spinnerets are united that they become visible to the naked eye. The "thread" of the spider is thus a tiny rope of four or six thousand terial. REPAIRING promptly attended to. strands.
