BOSTON, July 31, 1872.

My Dear Sir :-- I have the honor to acknowledge by this note, in addition to our conversation to-day, the receipt of your invitation to address the citizens of Lynn, on Thursday evening, in support of the reelection of Grant, and the policy of his Administration.

No invitation could have greater weight with me from any part of the country, nor from any portion of my fellow-citizens, and it gives me great pleasure to assure you that nothing could be added to your suggestions, as the representatives of the citizens of Lynn, to induce me to accede to the request.

Their kindness to me many years since is a continual life-remembrance, and nothing would give me greater satisfaction than to renew my associations with them ; but I regret to say that I am not in accord with them in regard to the Presidential canvass.

Hartranft a Jobber.

This fact is exhibited on every page of 1865 .- The Chicago Times of the 4th inst. his official record. He was selected on account of his jobbing history in connection with the Cameron clique in the State. The old chief knew his man. He had tested him in various ways. In all he proved worthy of the confidence reposed in him the Senator from Pennsylvania. In the Evans case the job was well put up, and executed with pluck and determination. Hartranft placed the claims in Evans' hands. Hartranft made the contract with reference to the compensation in such a manner as to favor the jobbers and rob the it during a drunken spree in this city from State. Hartranft shut his eyes to the well- a barber, who stated he was the murderer known fact that Evans was not acting in a of the children and detailed the deed. proper manner with regard to payment of failed to comply with the law, and inform the Legislature that these claims had not been properly reported to his office. Hartranft accepted a loan of seven thousand dolproceed until Evans was a defaulter to the State to an enormous amount. In all this stupendous job, the Auditor-General of the State, the Grant-Cameron office-holders' candidate for Governor of the State, John was at one time Governor of Massachusetts, F. Hartranft, was directly implicated and John F. Hartranft also stands indicted for using State funds for private stock-job-Charles T. Yerkes, a well-known broker of this city, said upon the stand : "For some years past I have been acquainted with John F. Hartranft, Auditor-General of and carried the same, with money belonging to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which the same J. F. Hartranft had caused to be deposited with this deponent by the State Treasurer." The same witness further declared under oath : "That this deponent did pay to J. F. Hartranft, Auditor-General, on the 10th of December, 1870, the sum of $2,700, which sum was derived from profits on purchases of loans of the Commonwealth and sale of the same to the Fund, which sale was made on the 29th of April, 1870; that said deponent has also paid to said J. F. Hartranft various amounts of money for profits arising from stock speculations with money desposited with this deponent by the State Treasurer at the instance of the said Hartranft." These oath-supported facts show that John F. Hartranft did not hesitate to use State funds for private stock-jobbing operations. He caused large sums to be drawn from the State Treasury, and put into the possession of Yerkes, and with these stocks were bought and traded upon for the benefit of the Auditor-General. Such a use of the funds of the State was illegal. That fact was known to Hartranft when he entered upon the stock speculation. But he is a esperate jobber, and trampled upon both law and his oath of office for the purpose of making money. In this movement he did no discredit to his training in the Cameron school. A jobbing Auditor-General will make a jobbing Governor. Do the people of Pennsylvania want such a chief Executive officer? Another job in which John F. Hartranft was that in relation to comhas daily "grown small by degrees and of the grand results of the war is indispen- promising claims against corporations for beautifully less," and our latest intelligence sable to the permanent establishment of a unpaid taxes. In 1871 suits had been instituted by the Attorney-General of the State against a large number of corporations for taxes. The gross sum claimed amounted to nearly three quarters of a mil-lion of dollars. In May of that year, Mr. Strang, from Tioga county, an agent of Cameron, and a brother jobber with Hartranft, Mackey, Quay and Errett, introduced in the House of Representatives a resolution authorizing the Auditor-General, State Treasurer, and Attorney-General, or a maority of them, to compromise all claims against corporations for taxes then in litigation before the Courts. By the wording of the resolution it will be seen that in reality Hartrauft and Mackey were to do all the business, they constituting a majority of the Board. Why was the Attorney-General excluded from the affair? Because he had disavowed all connection with the job, and insisted that every cent of the taxes claimed could be collected by law, debted, but I believe the result will justify and the sequal showed he was right. But Auditor-General Hartranft urged the passage of the bill, and used all possible means to influence members of the Senate and House to vote for its passage. The reason which was won by the sacrifice of so many of this action on his part is plain. The bill was the fore-runner of a job. The pro-Accept the assurances of my lasting posed compromise of these tax claims would have resulted in a loss to the State of at least $300,000, a full proportion of which would have gone into the pockets of the men who engineered the business. In all these jobs John F. Hartranft was oticeably conspicuous. The loan from Evans; the neglect to inform the Legislature of the condition of his accounts; the stock-jobbing operations with Yerkes, and the tax claims affair with Cameron, Mackey and others, are stains upon his official record which cannot be removed. MURDER WILL OUT .- A Chicago Sensation .- The Murder of the Joyce Children in makes a startling disclosure in a three column sensational article. The writer states he was night reporter in the winter of '71 and found one Nelse Johnson lying on the sidewalk on Quincy street suffering from wounds received in a row. The reporter picked him up and took him into a poor woman's house, where he recovered assisted by the reporter, who claims Johnson gave him a full account of the murder of the Joyce children, at West Roxbury, Massachusetts, in 1865, as the latter had received

Johnson says the barber told him that he the proceeds of his collections. Hartranft had followed the children on June 12, 1865, to West Roxbury woods, and there attempted to outrage the girl. She resisted and he struck her down with a large white handled knife. Just then he saw the boy lars from Evans, and then allowed the job to returning from the other side of the pasture, and started to kill him. The boy ran. the barber chased and caught him and plunged the knife into him many times. He returned to the girl and found her at the top of a ledge of rocks overlooking the highway unable to make a noise. She had afterwards Speaker of Congress, then a interested, and that fact is upon record for vainly endeavored to wave her apron for assistance, but being weak from loss of blood had fallen upon her face insensible. The murderer then outraged the girl and stapped her repeatedly and fled. This barber said he was an associate of Thomas Ainsley, the painter arrested at the time on suspicion of being the murderer.

Johnson's description of the murderer is as follows : He is five feet nine or ten inches high and a large, powerful man, with purchased and sold stocks of different kinds an immense neck; he is twenty or thirty years old and now either in Boston or Springfield, Mass. His name Johnson could not give. The murderer buried the the knife near a beech tree on the spot, and the reporter says that Johnson gave him the informantion on condition that he would not repeat it until the latter was dead. Johnson died a few days ago in the hospital here and the Times now publishes the secret for the information of the Boston police and asserts its belief in its truth.

A METEORIC STONE FOUND THIRTEEN FEET UNDER THE GROUND. -- Some two years ago Mr. John J. Murdoch, of the firm of Murdoch & Dickson, while passing through a field on his farm near Laclede station, observed a curious looking hole twelve inches in diameter and of very recent origin. He thrust a fence rail in it to the depth of eight feet, with a view to future investigation, which was, however, prevented by other matters. What chiefly attracted his attention was the fact that the direction of the hole was exactly perpendicular, cleanly cut and eliptical in shape and that its apparent depth was considerably greater than the length of the rail. Our friend Murdoch was evidently determined that whatever had gone in there should not pull the hole in after it. Outside of his professional pursuits, Mr. F. J. Bowman has an inquiring turn of mind which led him to speculate as to what made the hole. He "interviewed" it yesterday, with the following result : At a depth of thirteen feet four inches there was found a stone twelve pounds in weight, about eight inches in diameter, oblately spheroidal in shape, and of undoubted meteoric antecedents. It was exhibited in our editorial rooms, and has the invariable characteristic of meteoric stones-a fused black crust, like varnish, with which the surface is coated. As to its chemical composition, the predominating element is iron, in a native or metallic state, with a fair proportion of nickel. We doubt whether an opher ærolite of such perfect shape is in existence, as these visitors from the upper regions hardly ever fail to split into fragments before reaching the earth .- St. Louis Times, August 2.

SCRIBNER'S FOR AUGUST .- Two very seasonable articles in SCRIBNER's for August are-the entertaining paper by Mr. Shanks on "Yachts and Yachting," with pictures of celebrated yachts, ocean races, etc., and a pleasant and practical illustrated essay on The Canoe: How to Build and how to manage." There are also three sterling articles by well-known writers on three vital questions-Prof. Comfort's "Should the Study of the Modern precede that of the Ancient Languages?" Amasa Walkers "Labors and Capital in Manufactures," and Charles Dud-Warner's "What is your Culture to Me?" Among the illustrated articles an interesting account of "The Graphic Art," by Bensen J. Lossing, and "The Island of Corfu," by Charles K. Tuckerman, late United States Minister to Greece. Hans Christian Anderson tells the suggestive story of "The Gar-dener and the Manor," and Miss Annan re-lates in a very fresh and striking way that of "Hebe's Jumbles." There is poetry by Louise Chandler Moulten, Mary J. Serrano and Charles S. Gage. Dr. Holland writes about the recent strikes, and discusses, "The Wine Question in Society," and "Novel-Reading." In "The Old Cabinet" we find "A Hard Time for some of Us," "Photo-graphs and Looking-glasses," "A Glimpse of One's self," "Wrecked on a Resemblance," and "Lost Oppertunities." The Depart-ment of "Name and Science" is very entertaining as well as instructive. "Home and Society," among other papers, has a very "Domestic Ethics. sensible one on "Culture and Progress" the "Jubilee" is mentioned, there is something about "Two Modes of Prison Discipline," and a long re-view of Lamon's Lincoln; the number closing with a quaint page of Etchings by the Misses Ledyard.

INWARD INJURIES .- Those outward manifestations of frail and departing health are easily detected ; in truth, outward signs are often marks of an inward disease ; the pale face, the lustreless eye, the sunken and hollow cheek, with now and again the circumscribed spot, which, whilst it may not, like that on Cæsar's face, denote anger, it does denote something lacking harmony in the inward workings of the human constitution. How quickly does your ear eatch the irregular strokes of the pendulum of the clock which indicates something wrong in its internal workings, but how vastly more certain, and of infinitely more importance, is the muffled beat of the heart, or the gurg ling sound of the lungs, in warning us of the human organism. When to this is added the cough, the pains in the chest; the difficult breathing, the livid color of the lips, the hectic fever and the night sweats, what more can be wanting to apprise us of approaching danger. Take DR. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE.

-----Hannan and Henry.

Although this article bears at its head the names of the Democratic and Radical candidates for Assembly in this county, we do not propose this week to enter into a general discussion of their merits, but briefly to notice a communication signed "Citizen," which appeared in last Saturday's issue of the Johnstown Daily Mountain Voice. That communication is simply a repetition, ad nauseam, of the stale, flat and unprofitable cry against that mythical organization known almost exclusively to certain Johnstown agitators as the "corrupt Ebensburg Ring." It is also a lame and impotent attempt to revive that most preposterous of all humbugs, the removal of the county seat from Ebensburg to Johnstown. That insane project having, by the proper authority, been consigned to merited oblivion, we did not suppose that any man even in Johnstown would now have the temerity to attempt its resurrection, or even do it any kind of reverence.

The pith and marrow of the communication, however, is in the following sentence: "This combination (meaning the conjuredup "Ebensburg Ring") has managed by persistent and malicious intrigue to tie up our Court," &c. We were and still are imgressed with the belief that it was the Supreme Court of the State, and not the terrible "Ebensburg Ring," that "settled the clation of the constitution and the law, as diction, imperatively demand that the Court "Ring" at Ebensburg or elsewhere, but by paign was perfected. the highest judicial tribunal in the State? "THE BLOODY CHASM."-General Kilpatrick has the honor of having given at once the most stinging rebuke and effective answer to Secretary Boutwell's recent oratorical bosh about the "bloody chasm. If the three hundred thousand soldiers of the North and three hundred thousand of the South-the flower of the nation-who gave up their lives in the civil war, are not enough to "fill up the chasm," what more, General Kilpatrick asks, would Mr. Boutwell have? The graves of our Northern hill-sides and the blackened wastes of the South show how ample has been the sacrifice on both sides, and at how great a cost has been removed the ancient cause of difference between sections of the same country. He who would call for more of the same sort, who would ask that the result of the bloody struggle be negatived and the old hostility renewed, is surely not worthy of confidence either as a patriot or a man of common sense. Mr. Boutwell's metaphor was, indeed, a most infelicitous one, and the exposure of its hateful application comes with greatest force from one who fought gallantly through the war, and now generously accepts its results without tion. a tinge of the rancor that inspires the Secretary of the Treasury. But if the chasm is not filled, it is likely to be by the dumping into its abysses of Mr. Boutwell and the Administration of which he is a part .--Sunday Mercury.

GRANT'S SAVINGS .- It may interest the Grant men, who are so fond of quoting Greeley, to read what Grant has said. We give specimens below :

"I only voted at one PresidentItial election, then I voted for Buchanan."-Grant in 1866.

"There is such universal acquiescence in the authority of the general government throughout the portion of the Southern States visited by me, that the mere presence of a military force, without regard to numbers, is sufficient to maintain order." Grant's Report to Congress in 1866.

"I am a Democrat, and when I am convinced that this war is waged to prosecute the designs of the abolitionists, I pledge my honor as a soldier that I will carry my sword on the other side, and cast my lot with that people."-Grant in 1863.

"The liberties of the country cannot be maintained without a one-term amendment to the Constitution."-Grant in 1868.

HORRIBLE MURDER IN ILLINOIS .- A horrible murder was committed near Yates City on Monday morning. The victim was the wife of John Matthewson, a farmer, married but a few months. The murderer went to the house about 8 A. M., while Matthewson and a hired man were working in a distant field, and ordered breakfast, While Mrs. Matthewson was preparing it he undertook to ravish her. She resisted, and her clothing and person showed unmistakable signs that there was a terrible struggle for life. When her husband returned at night he found her body in the cellar, with her throat cut and her skull crushed. Great excitement prevails here,
