Several years ago, a youth of sixteen years, of good sense and a fair English education, not having profitable employment at his father's home in Kentucky, sought for employment among his enterprising neighbors a few miles distant; and altho wages were low in those days of gold and silver currency, he saved from his first year's wages eighty dollars.

He was then seventeen years old, healthy, lively-looking, aspiring, and ambitious to become useful, noble, and perhaps great. He had always learned that money loaned at high rates of interest was oppressive on the borrower, and reacted on the loaner in the falling of prices of nearly all articles in the commercial world; that men sought justification for their bankruptcy and delinquency in the fact that they had paid large rates of interest.

Feeling, therefore, that liberality as well as justice was necessary to every man's dealing with his fellow men, he loaned his eighty dollars to an exemplary, enterprising and prosperous trading man in his neighborhood, at the lowest rate of interest known in that State, viz: six per cent. per annum. He worked another year, clothed himself in neat Kentucky jeans and other cheap but neat articles of apparel, and went to a country school three months in the winter of that year, and learned the rudiments of Latin and something of the higher branches of mathematics, working for a prosperous and liberal farmer morning and evening to pay his board; and at the end of the second year, or when he was eighteen years of age, he had ninety-six dollars more. His character for integrity and industry began to be better known in the neighborhood, and his services were sought

He worked on a farm and rode as collector for trading men and the sheriff of the county, and at the end of his nineteenth year he had saved one hundred and ten dollars more. With the interest accumulated on his other two years' wages he had now three hundred dollars, was comfortably clothed, and had a good business education, which he improved from one winter to another, till he became a scholar, both literally and and scientifically. His influence and usefulness increasing, he had, at the age of twenty, four hundred and eighty dollars. At twenty-one he had five hundred and fifty dollars, and was well known for his activity, intelligence, virtue and usefulness, as well as for very attractive manners and ways.

He moved to a Western State, where land was cheap, and entered one hundred and sixty acres by a land warrant, which he purchased with one hundred and fifty dollars of his money. He made a good selection of land in a good region of country, and used a portion of the balance of his money in improving his land, buying a little stock and a few implements for farming, and the second year he raised a small crop. Having gone to his new neighborhood with some six hundred and fifty dollars in money and used it cautiously, he by degrees gained the name of a responsible citizen and good paymaster, and his influence rose gradually from his first appearance among his new and scattered neighbors.

Year after year he raised a crop, continued to read the best papers, periodicals and books, which still further improved his For Pamphlet, containing full description mind, till sheep, cattle and other stock grew up in flocks around him, more land adjoining him being purchased from time to time, until now he finds himself, when scarcely at the middle of life, a gentleman farmer of wealth, surrounded by comfort and many luxuries, esteemed by neighbors far and near, and would receive the suffrage of those who know him to any office for which he might be nominated irrespective of party politics, so firm is their confidence in both his ability and integrity.

A REAL BEAR STORY .- A Canada paper tells the story of a little girl and a bear. The girl's name was Addie Baker, and she was only seven years of age. One day she started up the lane that led into the pasture to meet her father and grandpa, who were off in the cow pasture building fence. The lane rises up a sharp hill from the barn for about a dozen rods, and then drops into a little hollow just out of sight of the house. Addie was just going into this hollow-she was walking along with her eyes on the ground-when she was startled by the sud-

You can judge of her alarm to find herself so suddenly face to face, within a few feet, of a large, fierce-looking animal with two little ones. She could not tell what kind of animals they were, but thought at last they must be some kind of sheep, she said, and so threw out her arms to "scare The bear-for such it was-then growled and jumped towards her, showing her teeth savagely. The little girl sprang back in alarm, and ran with all her might for the house, the bear close at her heels. But Madam Bruin for some reason gave up the down hill chase and went back to her over her shoulder, saw that the creature was going back, she stopped, not thinking there was much danger. The bear turned to look at her before she disappeared into the hollow where her cubs were, and Addie said she "dared him," and "made as though she was going after him," whereupon "he looked so ugly that she ran into the house and told the folks about it." Addie's mother knew at once what she had seen, and was very much frightened by the adventure of her little daughter, and also thankful for her escape.

DR. CARPENTER, 136 MULBERRY STREET, NEWARK, N. J.,

Is now treating successfully Consumption, Bronchitis, and all diseases of Throat and Lungs, with his COMPOUND MEDICATED INHALATIONS, CONCENTRATED FOOD, AND COUGH STREP.

During the past ten years Dr. Carpenter has treated and cured thousands of cases of above named diseases, and has now in his possession certificates of cures from all parts of the coun-try. The lubalation is breathed directly into the lungs, soothing and healing over all inflamed surfaces, entering into the blood, it imparts vi-tality as it permeates to every part of the sys-tem. The sensation is not unpleasant, and the first inhalation often gives very decided relief, particularly when there is much difficulty of breathing. Under the influence of my reme-Under the influence of my remedies, the cough soon grows easier, the night sweats cease, the hectic flush vanishes, and with improving digestion the patient rapidly gains strength, and health is again within his grasp.

The Concentrated Food rapidly builds up the most debilitated patient, presenting to the stomach food ail ready to be assimilated and made into good, rich, healthy blood. The Cough Syrup is to be taken at night to allevinte the cough and enable the patient to ob-tain sleep. Full directions accompany each box of my remedies which consists of

From the Ravenna (Ohio) Democrat, July, 1867 A very spirited and interesting Mowing Match was held on the farm of C. H. Bostwick, Esq., near Compbellsport, in this county, on the 15th inst. There was a large attendance of spectators, and more than ordinary interest manifested in the friendly competition. An agreement had been entered into, between the parties representing the different machines, that only Common Machines (such as are ordinarily offered for sale, and not made for special occasions) should be allowed to enter the contest, each machine should mow an equal amount of grass, and one team and driver should be used for all, in order that the trial might be a fair one, and the merits of the machines alone lay claim to public favor. The "ÆTNA" Mower, made by the ÆTNA Manufacturing Co. of Salem, Ohio, for which Peter H. Bean appeared as agent, proved to have the lightest draught, and this, with its simplicity of construction and beauty of design, combined with its powerful cutting qualities, made it the favorite of the
