Monthly for October is a remarkable number for the variety of its articles and the profuseness of its illustrations. It opens, with a pretty little poem by Mrs. Bradley, with a graceful illustration by Miss Hallock, this followed by a ballad by Col. Hay, entitled "Ernst of Edelsheim." Then come some admirable illustrations of Tobacco Culture in the South, with accompanying descriptive article, and another lively illustrated paper on Paris by Edward King. Mr. Tuckerman, formerly Minister to Greece, furnishes a very entertaining sketch of Modern Athens, with a view of the city from a late photograph. Another illustrated artiele is Mr. Cocke's account of a day's hunting on the Prairies. There is a very suggestive essay by Dr. T. M. Coan, of The Independent under the title of "Broad Views;" and the shorter articles are all readable. The new volume of SCRIBNER will contain some features of remarkable interest. Dr. Holland's new serial, "Arthur Bonnicastle," will commence with the first number (No- nia, Miss Hallock. Bret Harte will have a story running through two numbers; there will be some capital stories by Saxe Holm, Noah Prooks, Fannie E. Hodgson, and others of our best story-writers; Mr. R. H. Stoddard, the poet, will furnish a delightful series of papers about authors; Mr. Clarence Cooke promises a series of practical essays on Fur- the United States. siture and the Decoration of American Homes, and there will be a series of portracts of some of the Younger American Au- and Elk in the Constitutional Convention.

THE ALDINE for October is a brilliant number. It opens with a full page drawing, by Victor Nehlig: a graphic and spirited representation of a professional bravo and his employer, and the rival who is about to become their victim. This is followed by "Hollo" and "School Discipline," by John S. Davis-the former a glimpse of boy life in the country-the boy, in this instance, being a young urchin, who has stolen into the woods with his dog and gun; the latter, a view of a village school-house, in which a girl is doing penance among the boys, probably for missing her lesson. F. T. Vance takes us into the Heart of the Adirondacks, of which he gives us three views-"The Glen." a charming bit of woodland scenery, with a little brook fulling over rocks into a still pool; "Preston Ponds," and "Lake Hendera moonlight glance at that mountain girdled sheet of water. From Paul Dixon we have "The Hills of New England," and "Evening," two characteristic and admirable drawings. Then comes "A Serious Case," by Ernst Bosch; "Temple of Cano-va," and "Last Moments of Von Weber;" and, last, a group of "Snow-Birds," by Gil-

The literature is as readable as ever-the most notable articles being: "A Last Visit to Leigh Hunt," by January Searle, a pleasant reminiscence of that genial old essayist; "Painted Boats on Painted Seas," by Hiram Rich, a scholarly essay, drawn from a wide range of reading; "October," a pleasant tit-tle of out-door life, by W. W. Bailey, and the "Heart of the Adirondacks." In the shape of stories we have "Prince and Peassant," by Helen S. Conant; "A Woman's Eternity," by Elizabeth D. Leonard, and George W. Searles contributes a characteristic poem, "In the Woods," and S. W. Duf-Two Lives." Besides these papers there are editorials on "School Children," "A Serious Henry C. Dishong, in said Second Ward, at one editorials on "School Children," "A Serious The electors of the district composed The electors of the district composed of Cambria, to meet at School field a pathetic fantasy, which he calls "The von Weber." A PETRIFIED TREE.—The Philadelphia Record says: There may be seen on the property of Colonel Charles Thompson Jones, member of Select Council, and Mr. Thomas Shaw, at Eden Hill, opposite the Green Tree station, Poxborough, what appears to be a petrified tree of enormous size. It was discovered when workmen were excavating the ground. The trunk of the tree ten feet from the roots is about thirty-three feet in | House in said borough circumference, and in length it can easily be traced to an extent of two hundred feet. A branch of the tree at what was the upne end when standing is nearly six feet in diameter, from which it seems probable the entire length was at least three hundred feet from the root to the top of the giant of the First forest. A piece of the root, sixteen inches in diameter and twelve feet long, has also been exposed to view. Its composition appears to be mica sandstone and feldspar. Mr. Horatio Gates Jones intends to being the subject to the notice of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. The concentric circles denoting the yearly growth of the tree are plainly to be seen. The position of ory is entertained that it was forced to its present position during what is called the drift period, about which there is a lift of Aug. POMOLOGICAL CURIOSITY .- One of the most interesting illustrations of the freaks of nature is now in the possession of Mr. Ellwood Walter, president of the Mercantile Mutual Marine Insurance Company of New Joseph Geis, in said township.

York It is the section of the largely of The electors of the district composed of the York. It is the section of the branch of an apple free having on it one apple and two pears. The fruit is fully developed, and of natural growth. This wonder grew on Mr. Walter's farm, near Englewood, N. J. Mr. Walter states that many years ago, when the apple tree was planted, a pear tree was planted in close proximity to it, and both have grown up. Yet the branches are not interlocked, and there has been no grafting done. The trees are so close that their branches touch each other when swaved by the wind. The fruit is growing at the extreme end of the branch, and the single apple is on a stem between the separate stem of the two pears, These are not apples resembling pears, but are unmistakable There was another pear in the group which was plucked and tasted. The specimen, with the apple leaves attached, has been preserved in a solution of glycerine and al-

APPLE BUTTER. - A correspondent sends the following plan for making apple butter: Soon as the cider is brought from the press, we proceed to boil it down as quickly as possible to avoid fermentation, but instead of beginning to fill in with apples when half boiled, and stirring with a paddle twelve hours, we continue the boiling process until it is boiled down to a good syrup, say about five gallons into one, which can be poured into a wood or stone vessel, and will keep it not ready to make up immediately. The evening previous to making up, with the assistance of our men folks, we prepare and core our apples, which we stew in a little sweet eider if we have it, otherwise, water or some of the boiled down. When the ap ples are cooked soft, commence stirring, addng the bottled cider as fast as it will bear four bushels of apples being quite sufficienfor thirty-two gallous of cider. Three hours, brisk boiling with constant stirring, will make it strong enough to keep a year if de-

PASTE THAT WILL KEEP A YEAR .-Dissolve a table-spoon of alum in a quart of warm water, and when cold stir in as much flour as will make it as thick as cream -mixing the flour in a separate cup so that it will not be in lumps. Add as much powdered rosin as will lie on a dime; and throw in a dozen cloves to give it a pleasant odor. Put a tea-cup of boiling water into a tin dish, and pour in the flour mixture. Boil for fifteen minutes; if cooked in another pan to boiling, it will be less likely to meet at the respecti burn. Let it dry away, and when needed, dissolve a piece in a little boiling water.
