THE CAMBRIA FREEMAN.

EBENSBURG, PA.,

Friday Morning, - - March 21, 1873.

THE Pennsylvania Legislature will adjourn finally on the 10th of April, a resolution to that effect having passed the Senate unanimously on Wednesday.

THANKS to Congressman Speer for Census Report, to State Senator Wallace fo Smull's Legislative Hand-Book, and to an unknown friend for Constitutional Convention reports.

OUR humble legislators are trying to imitate Congressmen in the salary line. Having raised the Governor's salary from $5,000 to $10,000, they passed a bill last week raising their own from $1,000 (all they expected to get when elected,) to $1,500.

IN Philadelphia, on Monday last, the Supreme Court in banc delivered the opinion of the court on the Local Option law. Judge Agnew read the opinion of the majority of the court (Judges William Mercur and himself), that the law is strictly constitutional. Chief Justice Read, for himself and Judge Sharswood, dissented.

IN thirty-seven counties of New York that have recently held elections the Democrats and Liberals have carried twenty, against five last year.—There is a net gain of eighty-three towns. In the Michigan town elections there is also a large Democratic gain. Credit Mobilier and the exposure of the corruptions and villanies of such eminent radical saints as Pomeroy, Harlan, Caldwell, and the rest, are evidently doing their work among the intelligent people of the country.

THE increased pay voted to the Governor and other State officers by the present Legislature will take out of the Treasury annually about $65,000.—Borrowing the back-pay idea from Congress, the Legislators elected last fall to serve for three months, for $1,000, propose to increase their salaries 50 per cent., and make it a round $1,500, exclusive of allowances for mileage and postage. We think, with the Clearfield Republican, that this is a greater steal than even that of Congress.

THE Harrisburg Patriot publishes the following brilliant extract from Senator Harry White's great speech against the Philadelphia election bill, delivered on Wednesday night of last week, and only regrets that it has not space sufficient to publish the masterly effort in full. Here is the extract, however, and from it our readers can judge to some extent of the merits of the entire speech:

"The peopawhl of Pennsylvanieawh; our great countrieeo; the great republican partiece of Philadelphieawh; the duty of the legislatieyawrh; senatawhrrs. I pawhszzz! The partieee is responsibbawhlll for this great nashawnnnn!" [Sensation.]

THREE hundred and fifty-seven millions one hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars was the amount of outstanding legal tenders last week. The limit is $356,000,000, but Boutwell and Richardson still insist on their power to reissue the $44,000,000 that was redeemed and cancelled. Notwithstanding the adverse report of the finance committee of the Senate, Secretary Boutwell has just issued another million of these legal tenders. The radical secretary evidently holds the opinion of the Senate in extremely small respect when he ventures on an exercise of power which its committee declares wholly unauthorized by the laws of Congress.

THOSE who were patiently waiting to step into the shoes of some of the present members of General Grant's Cabinet have—with the exception of Mr. W. A. Richardson, who succeeds Secretary Boutwell—been egregiously disappointed, and are venting their feelings against the President in a manner that indicates anything rather than love. The President has seen fit to continue all his old retainers, and in this particular has perhaps done as well or better than he could have done had he resolved upon a change. Whereupon the Phila. Evening Herald very facetiously remarks: Now, we have only one request to make of President Grant. It is a simple one, and he can, if he will, easy grant it. It is this: That the people shall be made fully acquainted with the length of time that Secretary Fish is to remain in his present position. If it be a year, let them know it, or if two or three, or if for the whole term. Everybody is sick and tired of the everlasting rumors in regard to the resignation of this official. Whether these rumors have their origin with the Secretary himself, or whether they are emanations from the prolific pens of idle newspaper correspondents, we do not know, but we do know that the people have had quite an elegant sufficiency of them and are now hoping for their discontinuance.

Letter from Texas.

JACKSON, Texas, March 1, 1873.

MR. EDITOR—Thinking a few words from these genial regions of the "Sunny South" may be interesting to your readers in the boreal regions of the icy north, I will devote a leisure hour in writing about this most delightful portion of the United States.

This is the seat of justice of Jack county, a small but fast improving town on the very outskirts of civilization. Jack is a border county, and has been greatly retarded in being settled, owing to its exposed frontier position, subjecting it to Indian excursions. The population of the county is small at present, but steadily increasing; and the people are felicitating themselves with a hope of an early completion of the Dallas and Washita Railroad, which will be the means of building up the town, settling up the country, and affording ampler means for protecting themselves against the raids of the red savages. This county lies in the "Cross Timbers" at the head of the Trinity river, east of Haskel county, with Throckmorton and Young counties intervening. It has great diversity of soil and surface, and is one of the mineral counties of the State.

The mineral wealth and natural advantage of this portion of Texas will compare with any portion of the United States. All she needs to make her the great producing State of the union, is enterprising capitalists, skilled mechanics and stalwart laborers. She only lacks men of means, of skill and of muscle to develop her vast mines, by the erection of rolling mills, blast furnaces, foundries, grist and saw mills and manufactories of all kinds. Business men throughout the old States have no knowledge of the vast resources of Texas. The explorations of the copper veins in many of the adjoining and surrounding counties, show conclusively that there are within their borders immense deposits of all the minerals known. The supply of these mineral deposits is supposed to be inexhaustible. The most prolific deposits of the richest copper ore known, covers a very large area of Jack, Archer, Clay, Wilbarger and Washita counties. The ore is much easier excavated from the stratas in which it is found in the counties than is the copper ore found in any other country, and the ore is much easier smelted than any other copper ore known.

The coal in Young and adjoining counties that his road will develop, will exercise a most important influence on the future welfare and prosperity of Texas. There is an abundance of this most valuable mineral fuel in Young and adjoining counties, to supply the most extravagant demands of the State for centuries. The quality of the Texas coal compares favorably with the coal of Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois and Iowa. Young county especially, is full of coal, it being found everywhere in the sinking of wells. In a geological survey of the State, made in 1866, there were discovered at the mouth of Whiskey creek, near Fort Belknap, three distinct coal beds, separated by bands of limestone, fire clay, sandstone and shale. This coal it is said cokes without changing its form, and burns with a bright yellow flame. The value of the coal in this portion of Texas cannot be overestimated. There is, in addition to these immense coal deposits, in the same limits, vast accumulations of iron ore, which only require a judicious expenditure of labor and capital to be converted into a prolific source of wealth. The gypsum beds in these northwestern counties are believed to be the largest in the world, and capable of supplying all the demands of the south and west for thousands of years. Between the Brazos and Big Washita rivers, there are hills seven hundred feet high, composed almost entirely of this material. In this section of the State are also found immense beds of hydraulic limestone and extensive beds of building rocks of great beauty and durability; also immense quarries of [illegible] limestone of remarkably fine texture; which receives a very fine polish, and is as beautiful as the Tennessee marble for ornamental work. There has also been discovered in this district specimens of galena or sulphurate of lead, which induces the belief that future researches will develop the existence of valuable veins of this metal.

I would here ask, what other district of country in the United States so rich in all the elements of greatness, and offers such inducements for capitalists and men of enterprise? No other country in the world is comparable with this portion of Texas in the richness of its various minerals; in the variety and fertility of its soil; in the diversity of its productions, and in the salubrity of its climate. Most especially does it excel as a pastoral country, as its wide prairies and sloping hillsides teem with herds of cattle, horses, sheep and goats. No portion of Texas' vast domain has a climate more genial and healthful, and no territory of equal area presents so many inducements to men of enterprise and capital, nor such varied enticements to the industrious emigrant. When the Dallas and Washita Railroad is built, no other section of the Union will increase so rapidly in population and wealth as these northwestern frontier mineral counties of Texas. There is no limit to the productive capacity of this portion of the Lone Star State. The building of the Dallas and Washita road will cause a stream of emigration to flow into these frontier counties, not only from the old States, but from the Old World, that will drive back the savages that the general government has allowed to act as a barrier against civilization. The completion of this road will people all the frontier counties, which are now comparatively an unoccupied wilderness, with a brave, hardy class of men, who will protect themselves without applying and pleading for aid from a government that has shamefully abandoned its citizens to the merciless red men; the fathers, sons and brothers to be murdered, scalped and mutilated; the children to be throttled and brained, and the wives and daughters to be outraged and borne into a captivity worse than death. As before observed, the completion of the Dallas and Washita Railroad will attract to the frontier counties, colonies of brave, hardy men, who will be able to protect themselves from the predatory excursions of the Indians, wherever they may choose to locate. The Washita Colonization, Agricultural, Mining and Manufacturing Company, which is directly identified with the Dallas and Washita Railroad Company, offers inducements to emigrants they will not meet with elsewhere. I may speak of this colony in future letters.

WASHITA.

THE N. Y. Sun propounds the following plain but pointed propositions:

Suppose that in the month of September last the Republican managers had announced that if they should succeed in the approaching Presidential election, one of the measures which they would first enact would be to raise the salary of President Grant to $50,000 a year.

Suppose it had also been believed by the people that the Republican majority in Congress, after having been paid the stipulated salary for their services, would vote themselves $5,000 each out of the Treasury.

Or suppose that those two propositions had been incorporated in the Republican platform adopted by the Philadelphia Convention, by which Grant was nominated for re-election.

How many States would Grant have carried? How many Republican Congressmen would have been re-elected? Is it not evident that Grant could not have got a single State, and that every Republican candidate for Congress, running on such a platform, would have been defeated?

All this being true, is it not the insanity of public robbery which has led Grant to lobby for the passage of a bill through Congress raising his own salary to $50,000 a year, and which has led Republican Congressmen to pass that bill? If they dared not announce this enormous act of robbery as a part of their plan before the election, how do they expect the people to regard it after the election?

A MOST BRUTAL MURDER.—We are called upon to chronicle the most brutal, inhuman murder that has occurred in this city for years. Charles J. Cloak murdered his wife while she was peacefully slumbering along side of his own mother, early on yesterday morning. The weapon used was an ordinary wood ax, the poll end of which was driven into the skull, causing almost instantaneous death. Cloak was arrested and is now confined in the Central Station. A reporter of the Dawn interviewed him and also visited the scene of the inhuman act. He, however, learned little to fix a motive or explain the cause of the horrible deed, further than is inferable from the fact that Cloak was crazy from the effects of whisky. He can himself assign no cause, nor do the neighbors know of any difficulty between them. In the dead hour of night, with nothing to excite deadly animosity he procured the ax from the yard and going to her bedside, with one blow dashed out her brains, and this after having lived with her for over thirty years, and without apparent cause. Cloak is a machinist by trade, is 52 years of age, and with the exception of going on an occasional spree, he has borne a fair reputation. The Coroner viewed the body yesterday and will hold an inquest to-morrow.—Pittsburgh Sunday Dawn.

A NEW CURE.—The following case of Mr. Kurtz, Postmaster at Athens, Ohio, is one of considerable importance, inasmuch as Mr. K. had undergone various modes of treatment with different persons for the past few years, without any material relief. When he came to me he was in a very reduced state, and had about given up all hopes of ever being cured.—He is a well-known gentleman, and has numerous relatives in this city, and is the son of Mr. George A. Kurtz, of Allegheny city:

DR. KEYSER: I am glad to be able to report to you, that your medicines are exercising a most [illegible] influence on my system. Their restorative effects are manifest, that I can now perform considerable manual labor, not only without feeling exhausted as hitherto, but with, I think, positively beneficial results. I am also steadily increasing in flesh; have gained about nine pounds since I commenced treatment with you.

W. W. KURTZ.

—A terrible conflagration occurred at Elyria, Ohio, Saturday night. The fire originated about midnight in the dry goods store of Starr Bro.'s & Co., in Ely block, corner of Well and Broad streets, and in a short time the flames were bursting from every window. The wind was blowing a gale at the time, and drove the fire through the entire block of ten elegant stores, stopping only at Washington avenue. Telegrams were sent to Cleveland for aid, and a steamer arrived about 3 A. M., but the danger was then mostly over, though the engine rendered efficient service in preventing further spread of the fire. The total loss will probably reach $200,000; insurance, $138,000. The finest business part of the town was burned.

MANY excellent and ingenious pieces of mechanism have proved utterly worthless to the possessor, because they required so much skill in the operation.

Of this class, however, we must except the DOMESTIC Sewing Machine, which for simplicity and durability of construction, and ease of operation, is far in advance of all its competitors.

It is pronounced by all who have seen its work to be the ne plus ultra of sewing machines. Attention is directed to advertisement in another column.

—The most extraordinay frog story that we have seen for a long time comes from Colorado. The Greeley Tribune tells it thus: "Mr. Graham recently found a petrified frog in excavating his well. Its features were wonderfully well preserved, and the owner had intended to present it to the Greeley Geological Cabinet, but one day the boys shattered it with a hatchet, and, to their utter surprise, an old Aztec coin dropped out. The date cannot be deciphered, but the figure of a head is plainly visible."

News and Political Items.

—At Mahanoy City, Pa., Lentz, Bowman & Co.'s "breaker" was entirely destroyed by the tornado there on Saturday night.

—The bill fixing the election of State Treasurer in March, has been negatived in the Senate, and the present incumbent, Mackey, will hold over.

—When Brigham Young's children sing "Father, dear father, come home," the effect is said to be wonderful. The old man comes home without delay.

—An ingenious Baltimorean has invented the name of Candenline for an infant daughter unexpectedly presented to him a few days ago on the Camden railway.

—Enosburg, Vt., registers eight voters who have had amongst them twenty-five wives; one of them having been married four times, and each of the others thrice.

—Bishop MacIlvaine, of the Episcopal church and Bishop of Ohio, died at Florence, Italy, last week. His body will be brought to Cincinnati, Ohio, for interment.

—A baby was recently taken from the St. Paul boarding-house by a writ of habeas corpus, where it was detained as security for the indebtedness of a bankrupt boarder.

—One hundred cases of measles are reported in the town of Meredosia, Ill., all of which broke out within three days.—No deaths are reported from the disease as yet.

—Mr. George Ackerman, for some years postmaster at Latrobe, died on Saturday from the effect of an injury received by being thrown out of a sleigh a few weeks since.

—At a saw mill in Olean there is a log containing twenty-eight hundred and ninety-two feet, board measure. It weighs eight tons and takes six horses to draw it on a sled.

—Elijah Somers, of Crisfield, Md., has been a member of the "culled persuasion" for 115 years. It is said he can swear and drink whisky equal to any man in the state, black or white.

—Three small children, son and daughter of Henry Phebe, and a son of Charles Blake, were drowned at Bangor, Maine, on Thursday, by breaking through the ice while they were at play.

—From Portland, Or., comes the news of the loss of the United States mail steamer George S. Wright while on her voyage from San Francisco to Sitka. It is feared that all on board are lost.

—There is a religious sect in Vermont who wash each other's feet. A down-east exchange suggests that there is a sect in Washington who wash each other's reputations, but it is not a very religious sect.

—Straw is elected Governor of New Hampshire by about 400 majority. Which indicates that the wind continues to blow Republican at that quarter, though with a slight abatement of intensity.

—It is rumored that our government is likely to take steps to establish a new State on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, with San Luis as the capital.—The project was first conceived by General Shields.

—The Legislature of Ohio has passed a joint resolution censuring the Ohio members of Congress who voted for the back pay swindle. They also censure those who voted against the bill, and nevertheless took the money. Right.

—A young man named Albert Keeler brutally killed a girl named Ida Spencer, aged fourteen, in Syracuse, N. Y., on Monday last. In trying to escape by jumping on the last car of a passing train he missed his hold, fell, and broke his neck.

—A colored member of the Alabama Legislature said in debate, the other day, that some of the Republican leaders were only actuated by a desire to occupy cushioned chairs through colored votes. The black man is becoming educated.

—A notable bell which now adorns the steeple of a Baptist church in California enjoys the unique distinction of having rung the knells of twenty-one murderers and summoned twice as many vigilance committees to their duties as guardians of the peace.

—A small pleasure steam propeller called the Grace Irving, bound from Boston to New Bedford, foundered at half-past three P. M. on Sunday, drowning James Ritchie, of Boston; Captain Ben F. Loudon, Geo. A. Browne, and Israel F. Parsons, of New Bedford.

—The most remarkable suicide of the time is that of T. F. Anderson, cashier of Lamberton's Bank, Franklin, Pa., on Friday last. He gathered and placed in the fire bank-notes, bonds, and bank papers to a very large amount, and then ran home and shot himself.

—In 1840 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company owned one locomotive, three passenger and one baggage cars. Now the same company controls sixty-three railroads, with a total length of 16,000 miles and a value of $670,000,000, together with 250 miles of canal and a line of steamships.

—Mr. H. L. Kauffman, residing on the Harrisburg turnpike, Lancaster county, caught eleven very curious birds one night last week, on his premises. They are apparently foreign to these parts, are white and gray mixed, somewhat larger in size than snow birds, and are altogether very pretty.

—In the township of Worth, near Chicago, on Friday morning, a house occupied by John Simmons, a farmer, was burned, and Simmons' father, aged eighty, and his child, aged two years, perished in the flames. A thousand dollars in bank notes secreted in a crevice in a wall of the house were burned.

—An honest old gentleman in Chicopee, Mass., waited vainly ten minutes for the gatekeeper to come out at a bridge recently made free, and finally got out of his sleigh, opened the door of the old tollhouse, laid ten cents on the table, and departed, happy in the consciousness that he had done his duty.

—It is estimated that the cost of the Briceland trial to the county of Washington, Pa., will reach about $3,000. The cost of the twelve jurors in the case, together with the two tipstaves having them in charge, alone amounts to $1,012.01, and $200 have been paid to witnesses for the Commonwealth.

—The old Catholic church and eleven dwellings in Norristown, Pa., were totally destroyed by fire on Monday night. All the property destroyed except the church was owned by William Simpson & Sons, of No. 130 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. Loss about $29,000, but the amount of insurance is unknown.

—Five hundred thousand dollars was voted by the lower House of the Legislature Thursday evening in aid of the Centennial Celebration. The bill now goes to the Senate, where we have no doubt of its passage. In the meantime subscriptions to the stock throughout the State are being rapidly and largely made.

—A clergyman, in Missouri, reports that recently he was called upon by a man to attend the funeral of his child; that the next day this man was thrown from his horse and killed; that the next day the widow came and asked him to preach the funeral sermon for her husband and child; and that the next morning she was fatally stabbed by another woman.

—August Mayford, a German, deliberately jumped down the Central shaft at Scranton, the other morning, and was instantly killed. He was supposed to be deranged. A short time previous to making the fatal leap he asked a workman if he would jump down. The man declined to do so, and Mayford exclaimed, "Well, if you won't, I will," and he was as good as his word.

—The third incendiary fire in less than a week at Cedar Falls, Iowa, occurred on Monday night last, by which the dry goods and boot and shoe stores of Fitcher & Fennerick and B. Thope, jr., were burned.—Loss, between $20,000 and $25,000 dollars. Insurance about $14,000. Five men were buried in the ruins of the falling walls.—Two were seriously, though it is thought not fatally injured.

—The telegraph informs us that a Mrs. Spicer, in a Western city, very nearly lost the right of dower in her deceased husband's estate—amounting to $40,000—for lack of a marriage certificate. It may be well to ask, how many married ladies in this country are better off than Mrs. Spicer. The manner in which the registration of marriages in some portions of this country is managed, ought to make ladies nervous.

—Five thousand five hundred Sacramento salmon were placed in the river at water works wharf, Harrisburg, by Col. James Worrall, Fish Commissioner, and D. W. Seller, Esq. The fish were hatched from ova, at Morristown, N. J., and were brought to Harrisburg by rail in three cars. They were from one to two inches in length, and seemed in a healthy condition. Quite a number of persons were present to see them let loose in the river.

—The latest invention for heating purposes is the charcoal "parquett," a new kind of heater, consisting of charcoal mixed with some ingredients which make it smoulder slowly. The fuel is encased in an iron tray enclosed in a copper box hermetically closed. The heat from one fire will last twenty-four hours if necessary, and the expense is really almost nominal. It is said to accomplish the object more safely and effectually than any form of stove or steam pipes.

—A hard working girl, named Lizzie Wallace, living in New York, losing a relative, and having no money to pay for the burial, pawned some furs that belonged to another person, to meet the expense, intending to redeem and restore the goods as soon as she could earn the means. For this she was sent to the State prison for one year. In the meantime, the fact is noted that Hon. Wm. M. Tweed enjoys excellent health, and intends making the tour of Europe next summer.
