

ALTOONA, PA., April 18, 1873.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

There and the Other Place. Slight snow on Wednesday. Weather indications on Thursday, with indications of snow.

Robert Roberts, an old and much respected citizen of this place, was stricken with paralysis yesterday at noon, and is unable to recover.

The Clearfield Raftman's Journal says that an old man from Cambria county, whose name it did not learn, met with a severe accident at Chase's dam, on Clearfield Creek, while rafting week before last.

The Ebensburg jail at present contains eight prisoners. Two of these are awaiting trial, five are serving sentences, and one is held until a requisition is received from the proper authorities in Clearfield county, for a larceny committed in that county, and for which he was bound over by Esquire Scanlan, of Carrolltown.

The death of the infant child of Mr. Wm. A. Jones, of this place, noticed elsewhere, leaves that gentleman entirely bereft of what was until less than six weeks ago a most interesting and promising young family, but completes we hope one of the saddest series of bereavements this community has ever been called upon to witness.

The barn of Mr. J. F. Goughnour, in Taylor township, narrowly escaped being burned down a few evenings ago. One of the members of his family happened to observe a bright light at the barn at about 11 o'clock at night, and hastening out he discovered a quantity of hay on the barn floor on fire.

On last Monday morn, in Altoona was born the nearest of neat little dailies; the Morning Tribune they call the gossamer, and for lying no one should assail us, for we truly declare that not anywhere in all this great Yankee nation, do we know of another we could call its twin brother, or one that contains more real information about passing events, or more sound, solid sense, than this handsome, wide awake daily; so here is the best of good luck to those two men of pluck (may they live long and gayly) and—just here we meant to say McCann & Dern, who know all that needs to be known about printing a pretty paper, and who, with the localistic assistance of two such able reporters as Cal. Hackett and Todd Hutchinson, cannot fail to keep the Morning Tribune what it now is—an honor to Altoona and a credit to its projectors. Terms, $6 per year, or 3 cents per copy.

Two SPECIMEN SCALAWAGS.—We find the following in Tuesday's issue of the Johnstown Voice, with the request to publish, which we do as desired for the benefit of all concerned:

Editor Voice—Two scalawags, more properly named frauds, got on the mail train at Tyrone, Friday, the 11th inst. At Altoona they purchased cakes, coffee, etc., from the poor cake women, who earn a scanty living by selling eatables to travelers, and while the women were busy selling the cakes, the two fellows slipped away, leaving two poor women each minus a tin and twenty-five cents. They got off at Cresson. One of the party wore a new white felt hat, and was in the habit of taking a cigar every time he stepped out of the train. The other wore a black and red striped coat, and was in the habit of taking a cigar every time he stepped out of the train. A MYSTERY.—A Human Skeleton Unearthed.—A heavy man was found on Dunings Creek branch railway, near the station, last about six weeks ago, lying on a log, which suddenly gave way and fell into the stream. The man's hat was found near the log, and the hatraff had appointed Geo. T. Esq., of the Johnstown Tribune, to reconstruct the District Court office he is to fill, if undisputed at the election in October.

On the 13th inst. at Altoona, a young man named Wm. Ford was killed by the Way Passenger train west, and his life is despaired of. He is a native of Morrisville.

On the 13th inst., the employees of Cambria Iron Company's steel works finished their day's labor of twenty-two hours in three turns, and work eight hours a day.

A WESTMORELAND TRAGEDY.—Terrible Termination of a Family Feud—One Man Killed and Another Beaten Nearly to Death.—Another murder to swell the list of crime. It is Westmoreland county that this time adds her quota to the most heinous crime in the calendar. This murder, too, is peculiarly atrocious—a family feud, revived by the "drunk," in which an old man sixty years of age is shot by his son-in-law. The affair occurred at Penn Station, on the P. R. R. early on Sunday morning. It seems from all that we could learn that a coal miner, named B. H. B. Turley, of Turley Creek, repaired on Saturday evening, accompanied by a son-in-law named Gibson and his wife, to pay a visit to another son-in-law named Adams, who was at the Penn Station, with the intention of spending Sunday with them. Adams is employed in the Westmoreland Coal Company's mines. The party in good time arrived at the station, where it was the intention to have a general justification, as on Saturday all parties had received their monthly wages. Liquor had been drunk, and the party got into a "flowing bowl" was quaffed and passed from lip to lip, till perhaps the entire party got merry and then boisterous. At this stage of the party, Adams, who was at the time revived and the maudlin sentimentalities just passed turned into maudlin raving and cursing—madness brought on by liquor and by the fact that Adams had been in the habit of progressing some time when blows commenced to be exchanged. This had gone on but a short time when Adams, it is alleged, drew a pistol and fired at the other party, the old man being killed. The shot took effect in the shoulder, but it did not appear to much affect him physically, but rather to excite him with brutal courage, and he reloaded his pistol and fired again. Adams then again levelled his pistol, his wife throwing up his arm and endeavoring to hold him and stop him from again firing. Adams, however, was unsuccessful, for her finger was caught under the hammer of the weapon and she was compelled from pain to let go her pistol. Adams then again levelled his pistol and fired, the ball passing directly through the breast into his heart, killing him instantly. Adams then turned and fled from the scene, leaving the other inmates of the house all frenzied with liquor, were holding a high carnival of crime among themselves. Gibson, son-in-law who started out with Adams on the evening of the murder, was so terribly beaten that his life is despaired of. He is also charged with being concerned in the murder of Beveridge. The killing of Beveridge occurred on the 13th inst. at one place, for as soon as he dropped to the floor the perpetrator of the terrible crime tried to make good his escape, but in this attempt he was overtaken by the police and taken to the Greenburg jail for trial. Gibson is still at Penn Station, where he lies in a dangerous condition. He is receiving medical care, but his condition is not improving. The murder of Beveridge's remains were taken to Turley Creek for interment.—Pittsburgh Gazette.

HEAVEN bless S. J. Hess, who with his hair, unperturbed by any other, is complete in its main street, in famous Johnstown borough, where all will find treatment kind and never know a sorrow for having their hair cut.
