The following description of the personal ar pearance of the Medoc murderers is given by a correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin:

CAPTAIN JACK.

Captain Jack, the chief or the tribe, and author of the villamous plot, is a full-blooded Modoc of about thirty years of age, though he looks much older. He has a good head, though like all Indians, the forehead is low and retreating. His complexion is dark, being a bright copper-color, and his eyes are black, full and piercing. His hair is long, hanging down to the shape indicates transcess and determination, though it by no means denotes cruelty and baseness-traits which Jack seems to possess above all others. In manner he is cool, self-possessed, and very dignified. He insists on being treated with the greatest respect by all with whom he comes in contact, and the chief ruler of 40,000,000 of people could not be a greater stickler for official etiquette than is this miserable savage. He never smiles. His greeting of his visitors on the eccasion of the visit referred to was a cylendid exhibition of indifference and baughtiness, notwithstanding at the time he was so ill he could not saind up. Before this act of treachery he was believed to be the soul of honor. Settlers in the neighborhood who had many dealings with him said that they never knew Captain Jack to do a mean or base act, nor would be knewingly permit any member of his band to do one. If any of the ranchmen ever complained of any act of peculation or other annoyance Jack was sure to visit punishment upon the head of the offender. He was elected chief of the tribe two or three years ago, and 'Squire Steele, of Yreka, acted as judge of election -a fact which has always made Steele Jack's fast leiend. He was the last man in the tribe who it would be thought could guilty of so base an act-an act entirely out of keeping with his past charac-JOHN SCHONCHIN.

John Schonchin, a brother of "Old Schonchief, is a man about 40 years old. He DEITZ, Patentee, 54 and 50 Pulton St., N. Y. is a lighter colored man than Jack, but is a great deal steuter, being broad-shoulder-ed and quite corpulent. His hair is long and straight and his eyes small and expressionless. His face is pleasing in expression and he is much less determined in look than the younger chief. Schonchin is a rival to the place occupied by Captain Jack, he believing that he had a hereditary claim to the Modoc throne. Consequently he and Jack have not been on the best of terms, though in their horrible plot they scem to have worked together. He is the man who shot Meacham and inflicted the wounds from which the latter is likely to die. Schonchin, in all these peace negotiacions, has been more exacting in his de mands than even Jack himself. On the occasion of Steele's first visit to the lava beds, he was less friendly than any of the others. He even went so far as to accuse Steele of wishing to "falk with two tongwes," and the latter had to make him a sharp speech in reply to prevent a recurrence of the insult.

the man who shot and instantly killed the Rev. Dr. Thomas, is a young Indian about 22 years of age. He is practically white and his complexion quite clear. Hence the name of "Boston" given him by the In-dians, which signifies white. He has no history at all, and gained no prominence in the tribe notil the peace negotiations began, when he acted as messenger. He was one of the young savages who came out to Fairchild's with Steele and party to talk to General Camby about the first of March. The General treated them all very kindly, and their return for this, is his brutal massacre. "Boston" was believed to be one of the best dispositioned Indians is the tribe. He was good-humored, always laughing and talking, and seemed to like the whites better than the Indians. He was one of those indicted by the Oregon Grand Jury for the killing of the settlers, but he was known to have had nothing to do with that matter, being Bankers, 14 Pine St., N. Y. City on the west side of the lake at the time.

HOOKA JIM. This is one of the worst Indians in the whole tribe. He was the leader of the band who committed the murder in December. He is young, not over 21 or 22, but is large and powerful. He is not a Modoc proper, but belongs to a band of Indians known in Siskiyou as the "Como-Twashes." They are composed of remnants of several tribes, and have long been regarded as thickes and murderers. Two of them are in the Lava Ecd-Hooka Jim and the "Doctor"-and even Captain Jack was said to be afraid of them. This Indian has a bad face. He, too, was one of those who came out with Steele, and was the only one that the Chronicle correspondent felt uneasy with, when on one occasion on the route he was left far behind alone with bim. It was getting late in the afternoon, and the party had yet ten miles to ride, when they struck the "divide, a gap in the manniain to the south of Litthe Klamath Lake. There were five whites and fourteen Indians. Steele and Fairchild led the party and as they came out of the trail and struck the Lost River road, Steele put spars to his horse and the whole party started for home on a gallop, the Inans riding along heavily armed, with their feathers and fox tails flying like so many permants. They yelled and howled, and the party came down the slope like flying Tam O'Shanters. Something getting wrong with the Chroniele man's saddle, he stopped to fix it, which took nearly twenty minutes. Hooka Jim and Curly-headed Jack, another Indian that it would not do to trust far, seeing the correspondent stop. rode on a few hundred yards and stopped also. When the latter mounted he saw his own party fully two miles ahead going like the wind. He started on a ran to eatch them, and then the two Indians joined him, and all three went down the valley on a dead run. The Indians rode their onles one on either side and seemed to be highly tickled at the correspondent's somewhat unskillful handling of his horse,-Then they began a series of movements designed to frighten the latter and make him deposit his precious burden in the sage brush, and once Hooka Jim, with a vell, deliberately spurred his pony directly against the horse-a movement that nearly accomplished the desired object. On the whole it was an uncomfortable ride. and the reporter breathed much freer when he came up with Steele.

BLACK JIM. This is another of the murderers of the settlers. He is a tall, savage-looking fellow, with a very dark, thin face. He is about thirty years old, and is one of the most desperate warriors in the band.

"PA," said a son to his father, "what is meant by a 'cleip of the old block?' " "Why, my son, do you ask the question?" "Because I was in Enfield this morning and told a gentleman that I saw fifty squirrels up one tree. They kept trying to my son they meant that you were smart and honest like your ja. You can go and
